Dedication

upremely important in the fulfilment of a university's mission is the factor of growth. To keep pace with the twofold development of Washington in intellectual things and in numbers, outgrown ideas must constantly be replaced and outworn tools cast aside for new ones. Again and again friends of the University have made gifts of equipment, without which her work must be hampered and delayed. In grateful recognition of their generosity, to them the 1925 Tyee is dedicated.

The President's Message

The University of Washington has an illustrious ancestry. ~ It is the scion of Western Civilization, the inheritor and transmitter of the art, science and philosophy of the ancient Universities of Paris, Bologna, Heidelberg, Oxford and Cambridge. ~ It is also a child of young America ~ taking its stature and strength and grace from the rich, favorable and free life of the Pacific Northwest. ~ Its colleges and schools are the answer of science to a country calling for productive release, its departments are the reflecting facets of its wealth in youth and things. ~ The University is true to its descent, but it has found its own individuality. ~ There is no other University like it. ~ It is of the historic stock ~ but it has a personality of its own.

The Columns

We mean things to those Whose lives are strong;
We are more than we are:
A song in a song;
For we are your spirit
That must dare to live,
We, of your Alma Mater
Who ask, and who give…

The Chimes

We are of youth: our song is bold,
And yet, we must be very old,
For oft at night, beneath the moon,
We meet old friends, all lost too soon,
When down the wind goes, whispering,
Some half-forgotten tune.

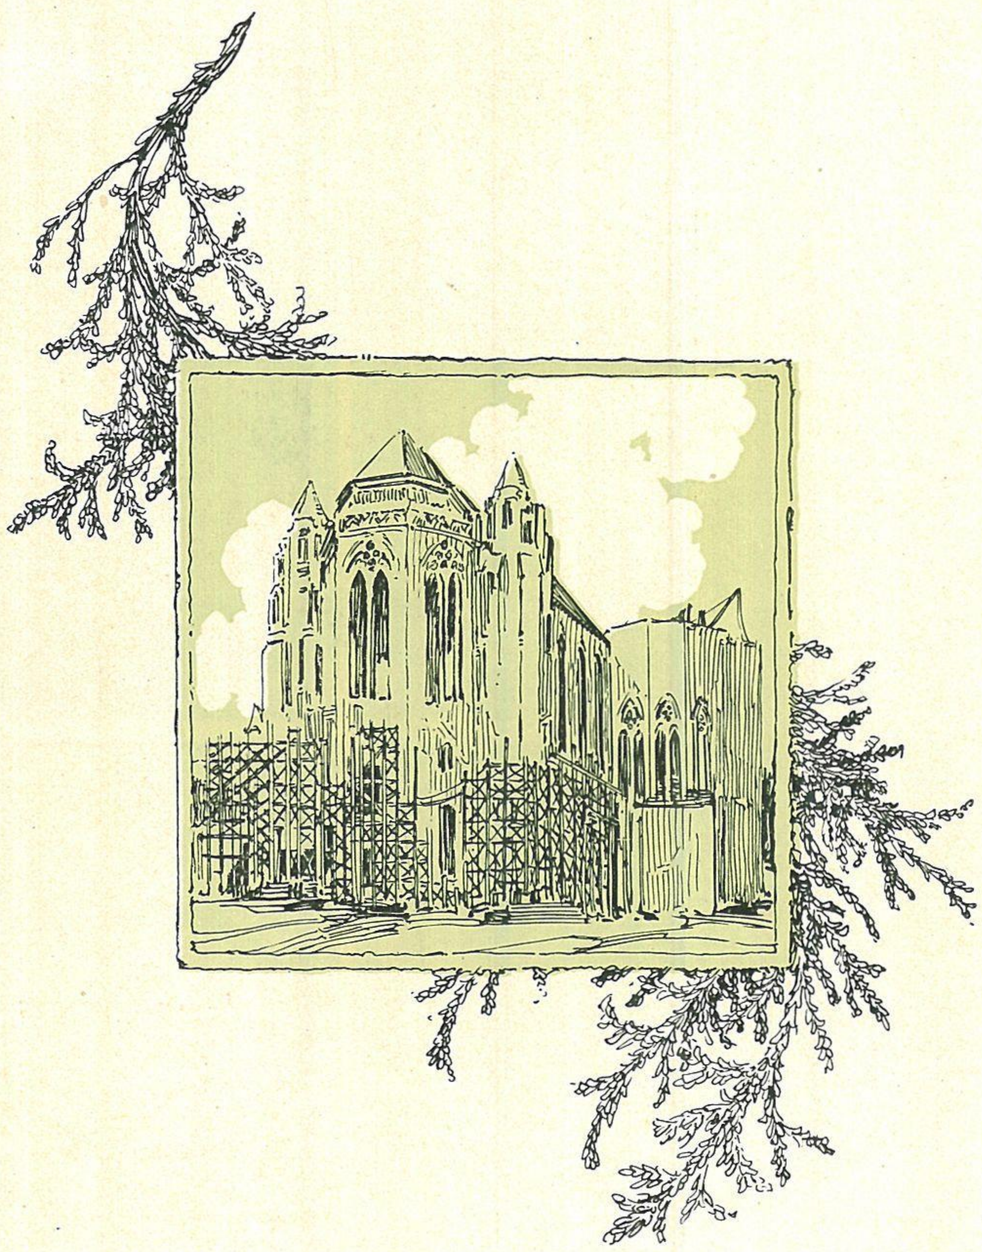

The Chimes

The Old Library

Of my mine of men's thoughts,
I have given immeasurably;
Yet, not solely for that
Would I have you remember me;
When Spring goes round and kisses
the face
Of things, and songs of birds begin,
Remember, too, of what a trysting place
I've been!

Meany Hall

I loved, if you were my daughter,
I was proud, if you were my son,
For you all took an oath of allegiance
To Washington
Here by the tall, cool poplars,
I am growing old, so old;
My life is a "Welcome!" and fond
"Farewell..."
To the sons of the Purple and Gold.

College of Liberal Arts

OF ALL THE COURSES in the College of Liberal Arts, those in Contemporary Literature have aroused the most marked interest in recent years. Professor Joseph B. Harrison is partially responsible for the success of these courses through his presentation of this vast subject in many of his classes. An Oxford graduate, Professor Harrison has gained that deeper insight which Oxford grants its students through its close relationship to the sources of literature.

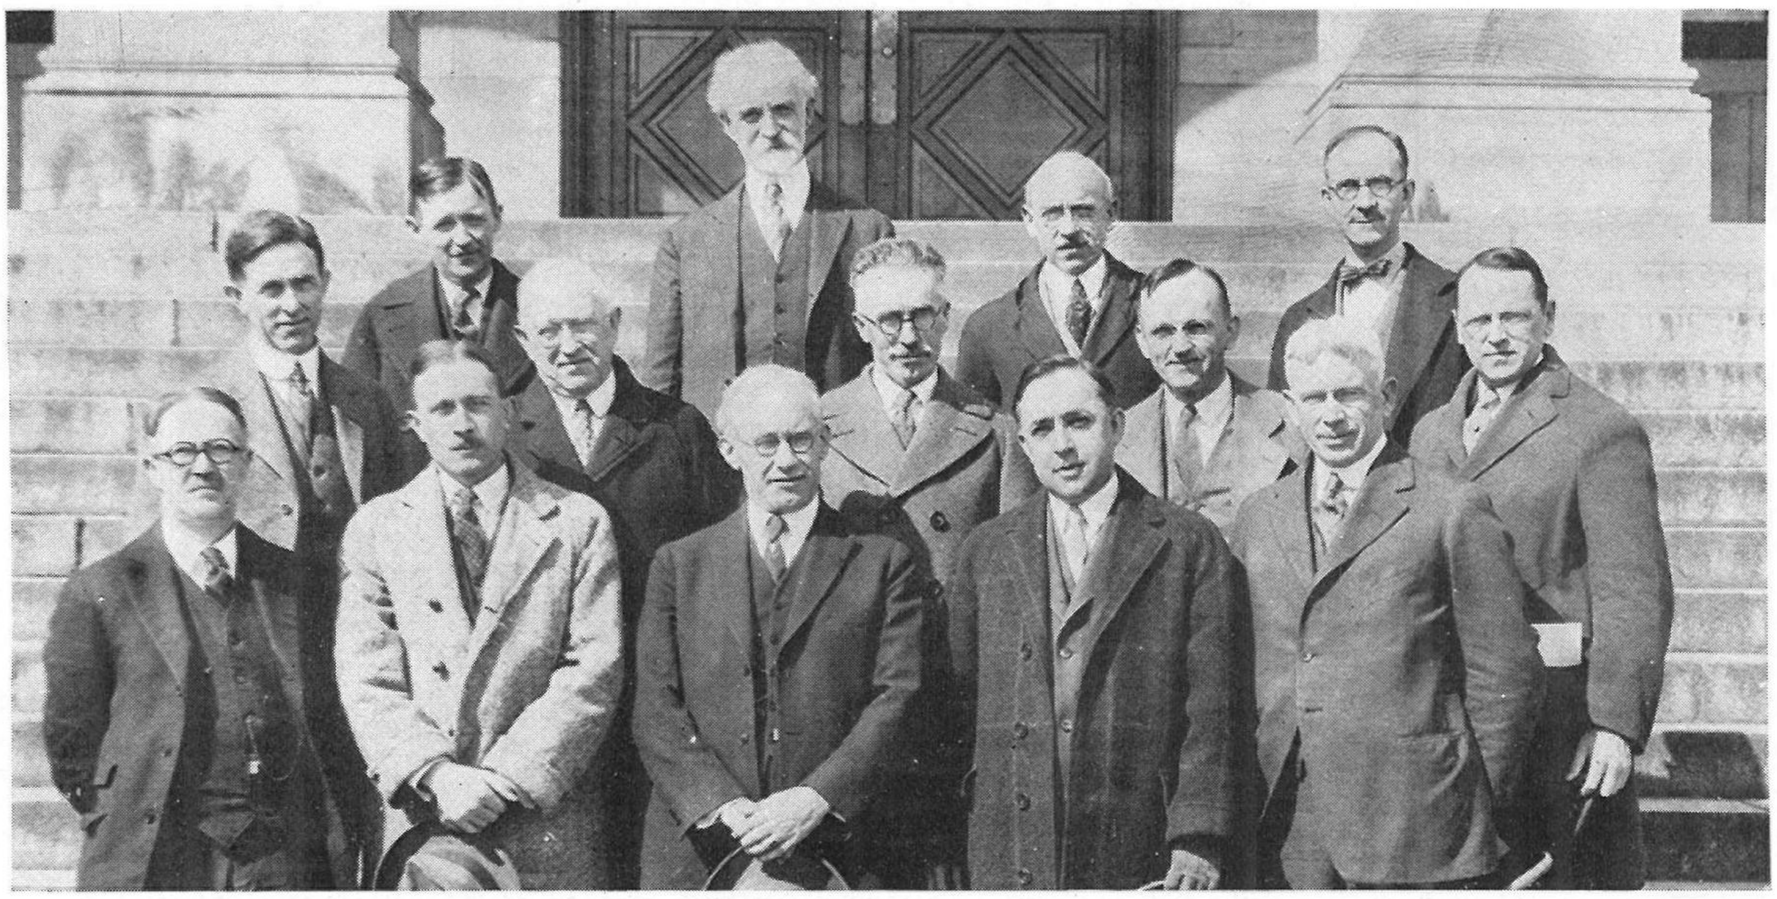

The College of Liberal Arts is steadily developing men and women with a more cultural appreciation of life, and provides a wide background for entrance into any field. Cultivation of the emotions which is rather passed over in professional training receives just consideration in the College of Liberal Arts.

An interesting addition to the curriculum of the College is the courses in foreign trade sponsored by the department of Oriental Languages and Literature. This indicates a broadening trend and an appreciation of a cultural background in a business field.

The College of Liberal Arts still maintains the largest enrollment in the University. It is also the oldest College. The headquarters of the College in Denny Hall which holds one of the divisions of the College, formerly housed the entire University.

All the branches in the Classical Language and Literature group, including the departments of English, Romanic, Teutonic, and Classical Languages and Literature, still hold their classes in Denny. The Philosophic group, which comprises the department of Sociology, Political Science, History, and Philosophy, with the addition of Oriental Languages and Literature, is located in Philosophy hall.

The Dramatic Art department, which according to curriculum comes under the supervision of the College of Fine Arts, has its Crow's Nest and theatre workshop in the far corner of the attic of Denny Hall. This is a miniature theater which has this year had presented in it many groups of plays which have offered an opportunity for a vast variety of local talent.

College of Science

DR. JOHN WEINZERL, Professor of Bacteriology is writing a book entitled "Public Hygiene," which he hopes to have out by next fall. He is writing the book for two reasons, first because there is at present no college text suitable for a hygiene class, and secondly because hygiene needs must be treated from a different angle than they have been heretofore. Dr. Weinzerl treats his subject in the light of methods of controlling and preventing disease rather than from the angle of specific diseases. Dr. Weinzerl is making a definite contribution to the college by supplying the need for a text book which will give the students of Washington an opportunity to study hygiene in the light of present day theories.

As significant of the high type of work attained by both students and faculty members of the College of Science, is the announcement of special honors won by graduates within the past year. From the considerable contingents representing this school in the principal graduate schools of the country, came reports of the high quality of their work, and the attainment of fellowships and assistantships by them when thrown into competition with students of other schools. Also it is with great pride that mention is made of the honors given two among the faculty of this school—Dr. Bell, Professor of Mathematics has received the Boucher Prize, a prize awarded only every five years for the highest type of work done in the field of mathematics. To Miss Martha Koehne, assistant professor of Home Economics, the May Pemberton Nourse Fellowship has been awarded. This fellowship, consisting of $1,500, is awarded by the A. A. U. W. every two years for further study in Public Health Service. Miss Koehne will leave in August to take up her work under Professor Mendel of Yale University.

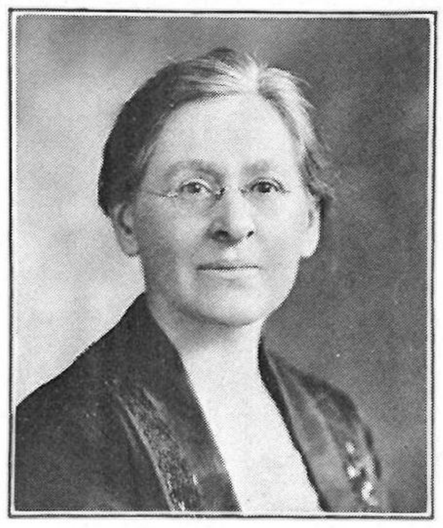

That the public may know and appreciate the work done in this school, in the spring quarter of the year all departments stage an "at-home." At this time the work of the various departments is illustrated, the laboratories thrown open, and the work of the class room demonstrated. Not only does this afford an opportunity for all to see and understand what the work of the school is, but also it puts the department on their mettle to show definite progress from year to year. This year the Wednesday night lecture course has been re-established; it was started to set forth for the people of Seattle the advancement of science, as represented in different lines, in interesting lectures.

College of Business Administration

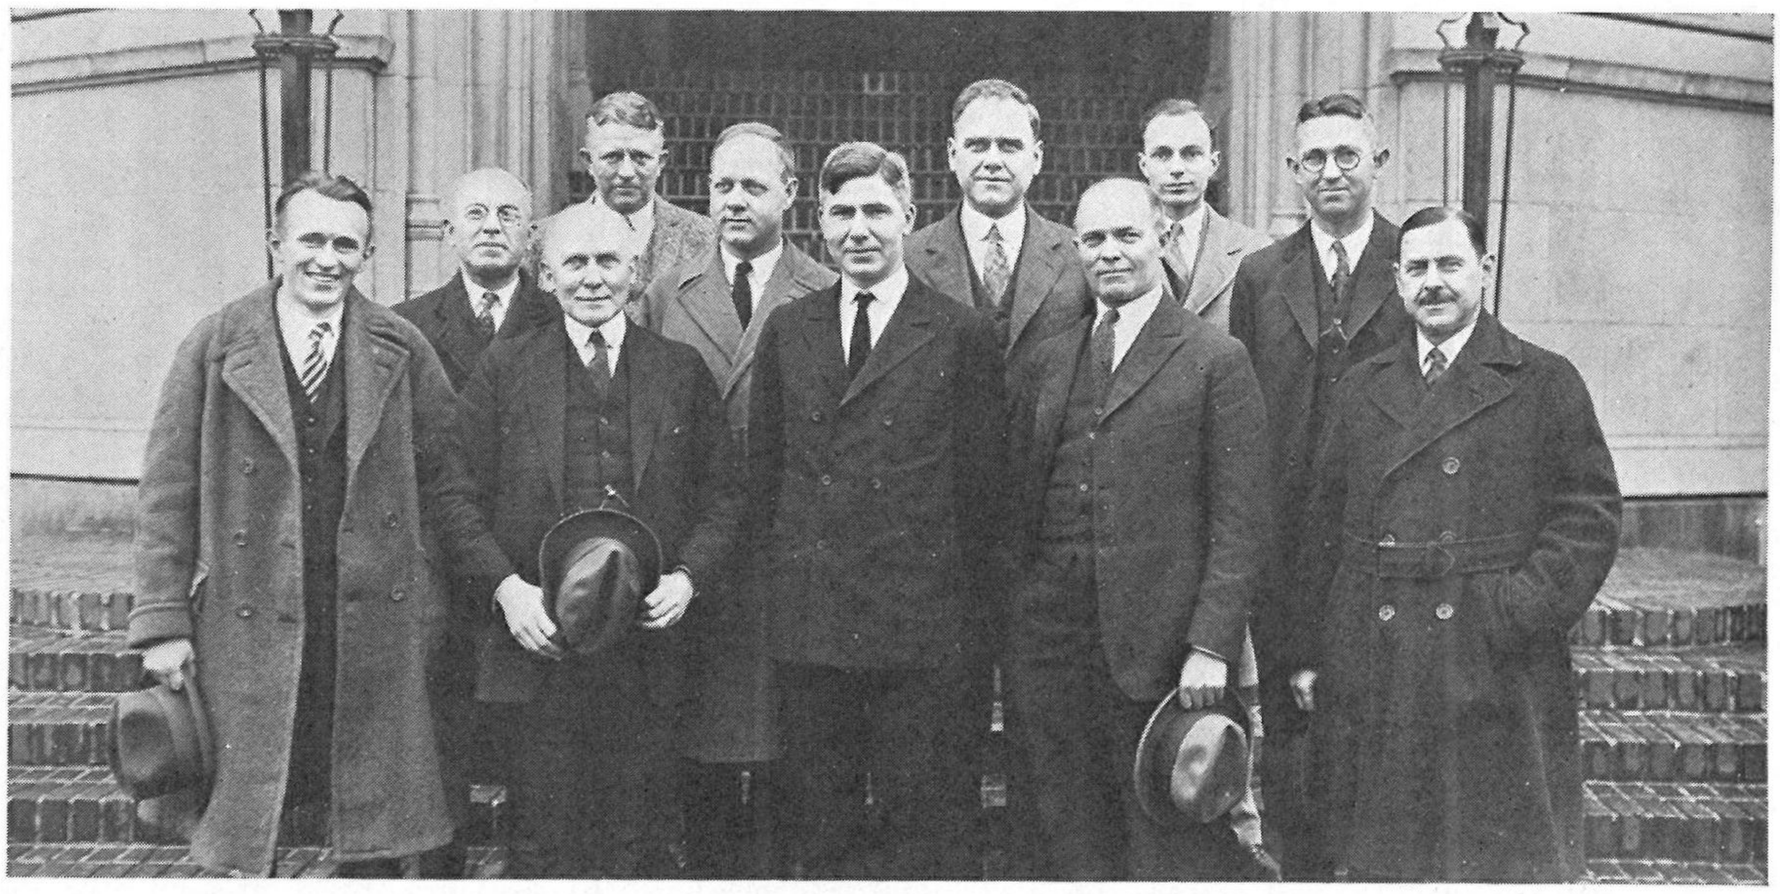

THE COLLEGE OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION endeavors as any other professional school, to train men and women for their life's work in such a way as best to serve the interests of the community as a whole. Mrs. Theresa McMahon, whose courses on the social aspects of standards of living have always been of interest to students in the College, has recently written a book called the "Social and Economic Standards of Living" which will be published by Harper Bros. during the summer months.

The B. A. College has established many outside contacts. The marketing department among other things is contrasting the food industries of the State with a view to improving the marketing organization for distribution of Washington products. Professor Eldred is making studies of the marketing problems of Washington as joint grocers, dairymen, and others in co-operation with various agencies, all of which are endeavoring to improve the economic conditions of the state.

There is a constant contact with downtown business houses who co-operate with the College in taking merchandising majors in for apprenticeship work in merchandising. The college has also offered assistance to a number of business firms in the form of advice with regard to industrial management and organization.

Dean Howard T. Lewis was appointed a member of the Commercial Commission to the Orient which will spend two months visiting Japan, China and the Philippines. The Commission is composed of Northwest business men and the purpose is to cement business relations between the Orient and Seattle, carrying to these countries the good will of the Northwest.

College of Engineering

A PROPELLOR of an entirely new type, an invention upon which Frederick Kurt Kirsten, Professor of Electrical Engineering, has been working for the last seven years, and which will be manufactured in Seattle in the near future, has been patented in all the important countries and has attracted the attention of high authorities both in this country and abroad.

Designs for application of the new form of propulsion to dirigibles of the Shenandoah type will be submitted to the United States Bureau of Aeronautics, upon request of Commander Richardson of the bureau. Other American officials interested in the new propellor are Admiral Moffett, Admiral D. W. Taylor, Admiral Robinson, and Commander Richardson, all of the United States Navy.

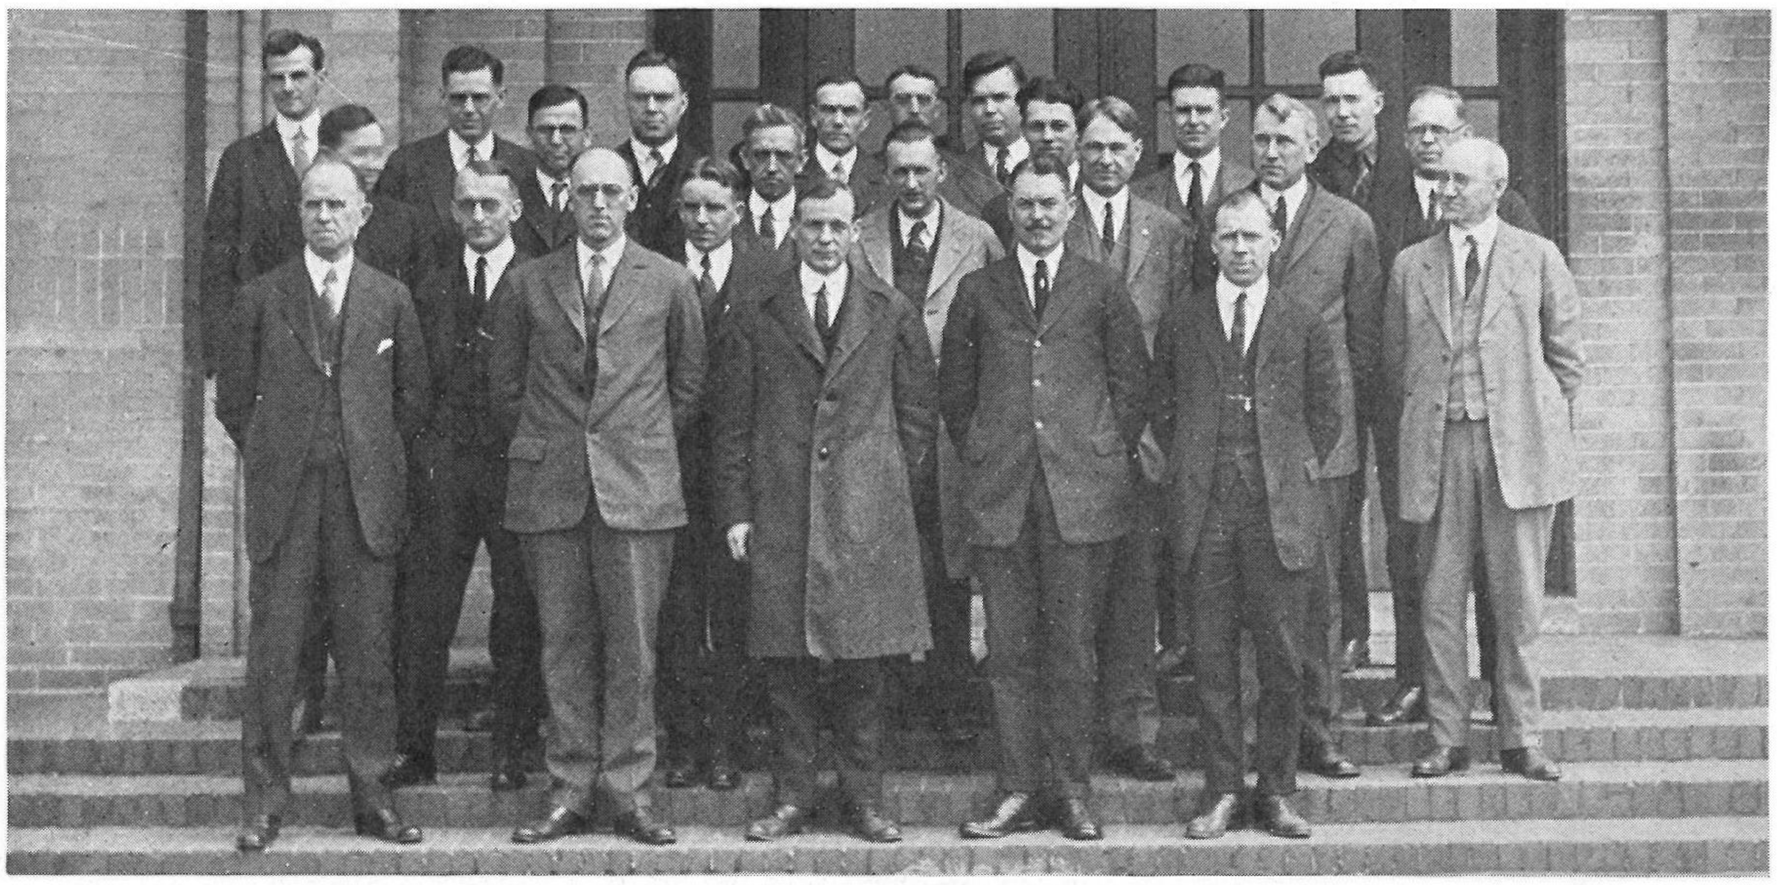

Permission to develop the propellor for Germany has been asked by Dr. Eng (Johann Schutte), who had charge of the construction of war dirigibles for Germany.

For the manufacture of the new propellor the "Kirsten-Boeing Engineering Company" has been organized. This company will license its manufacture and use and will make all products of research in connection with the new propulsion system. This invention is the result of an immense amount of research and testing, upon which over $175,000 has been expended.

The first successful effort to systematize electrical transmission line design and eliminate the uncertainty of "engineering judgment" has resulted in the production of a bulletin by Professors E. A. Loew and F. K. Kirsten on the economic design of long transmission circuits.

Among University of Washington graduates in electrical engineering is F. W. Peters, who now occupies an important position in the railway division of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, New York.

Charles W. Harris, professor of civil engineering at the University of Washington, in charge of hydraulic work, and consulting engineer for the Long-Bell Lumber Company, is a civil engineering graduate. Horace G. Deming, a graduate in chemical engineering, is Professor of Chemistry at Nebraska University.

School of Education

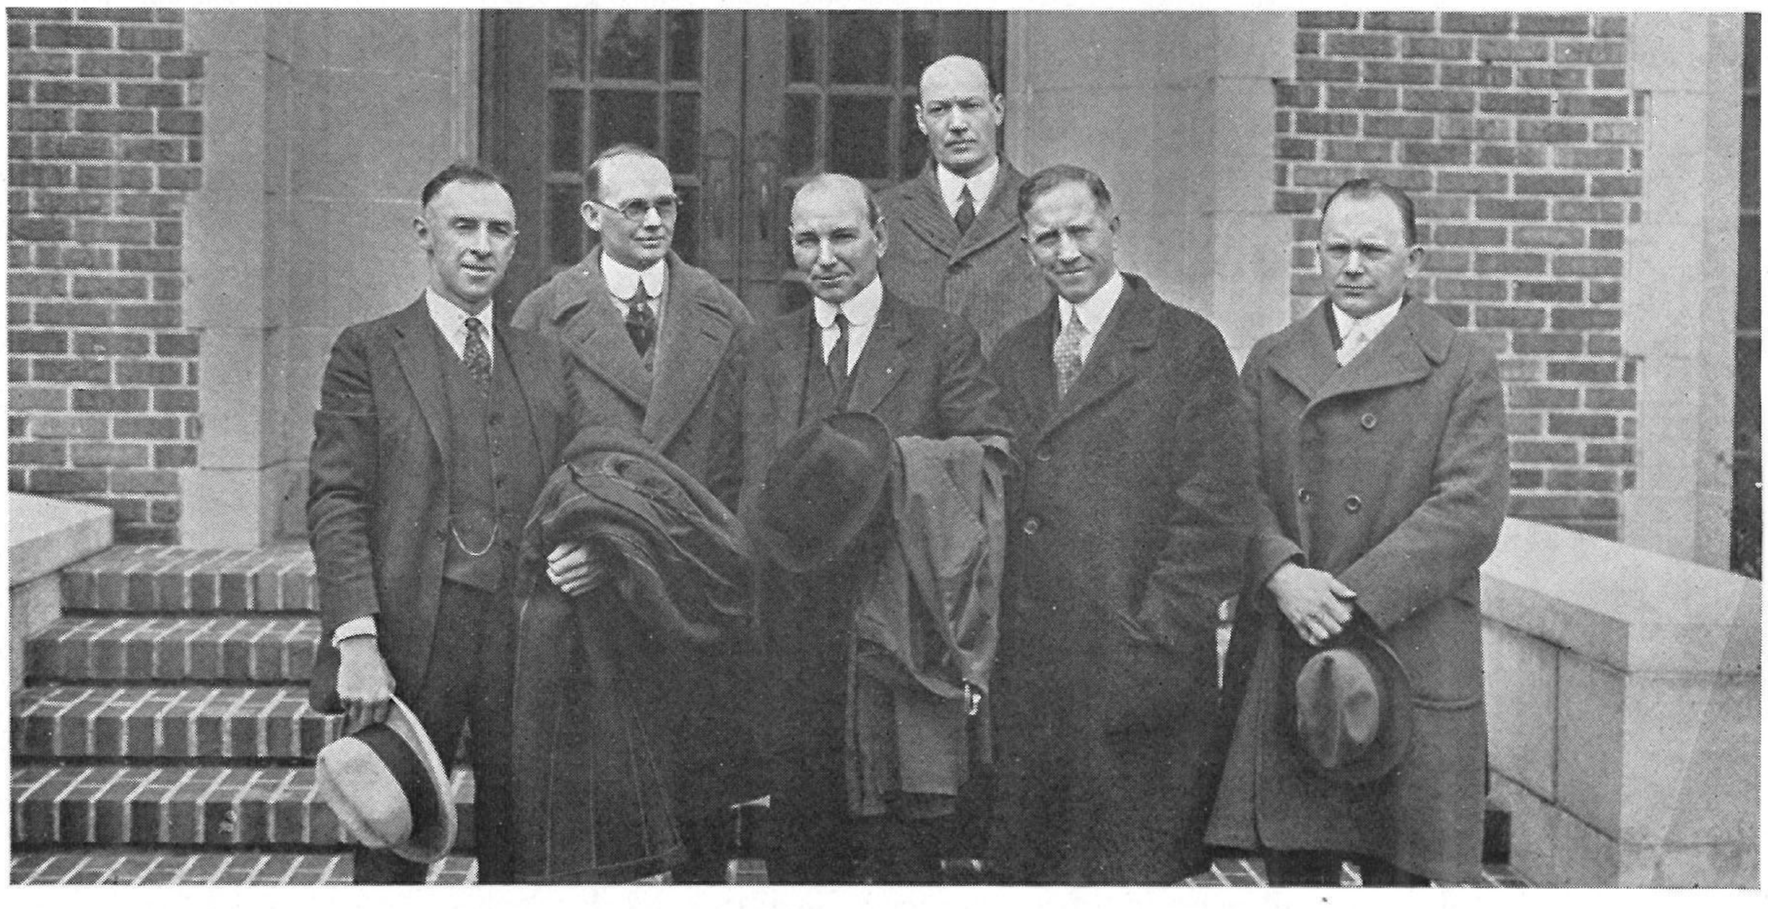

EDWARD DUNNINGTON RANDOLPH, Ph. D., Professor of Education, a graduate of Columbia University, is the author of "The Professional Treatment of Subject Matter" published by Warwich and York in March, 1924. This book is an analytical study of the development of the ideal of the professional education of teachers. It traces through the main conflicts between the adherents of the idea that knowledge of the subject to be taught is the only necessary equipment of the teacher, and the idea that beyond this the teacher needs special professional education.

The College of Education was recently supplanted by the School of Education. It is the fifth department on the campus to become strictly professional. The work is now based on two years of college or normal.

The School of Education is especially fitted to train students to become high school teachers, high school principals, superintendents of public schools, grammar school principals, supervisors of primary schools, normal school and college instructors in education, experts in educational research, specialists in the education of defectives, playground directors and juvenile court workers.

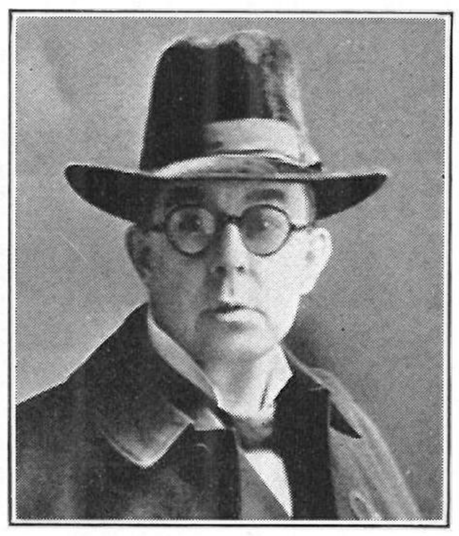

A new education club for men has recently been organized. In addition, chapters of Phi Delta Kappa, men's national honorary educational fraternity, and Pi Lambda Theta, women's national honorary educational sorority have been established for several years.

Graduates of the School of Education are holding fine positions in many parts of the world. In the Philippine Islands, George Meade McKee, A. M., is a teacher of English at the Lanao High School. Alice B. Brethorst, A. M., is a professor of Education at the University of West China. Ray Charles Holbrook, A. M., is Superintendent of Schools in San Bernardino, California. Frank Kale Foster, A. M., is Superintendent of Schools in Douglas, Alaska. The School of Education has also supplied many of the towns of the State of Washington with school superintendents and principals from among its graduates.

Ayer, Williams, Bolton, Jensen, Roberts, Dvorak

School of Law

PROF. CLARK P. BISSETT'S course in community property in the School of Law is based upon a two-volume set of case books compiled by himself and entitled "Cases on Community Property." These books, which were published in 1922, fill a long felt need in his classes for a comprehensive survey of the law on that subject in this State, and have been highly praised by lawyers. They contain material which has been the outgrowth of the Washington State Community Property Law, which is not exactly like that of any other State in the Union.

A textbook on the subject of community property is being written by Professor Bissett.

Professor Bissett is considered an outstanding authority on Abraham Lincoln, and he has one of the largest Lincoln libraries in the country. He is the author of a recent book entitled "Life of Lincoln."

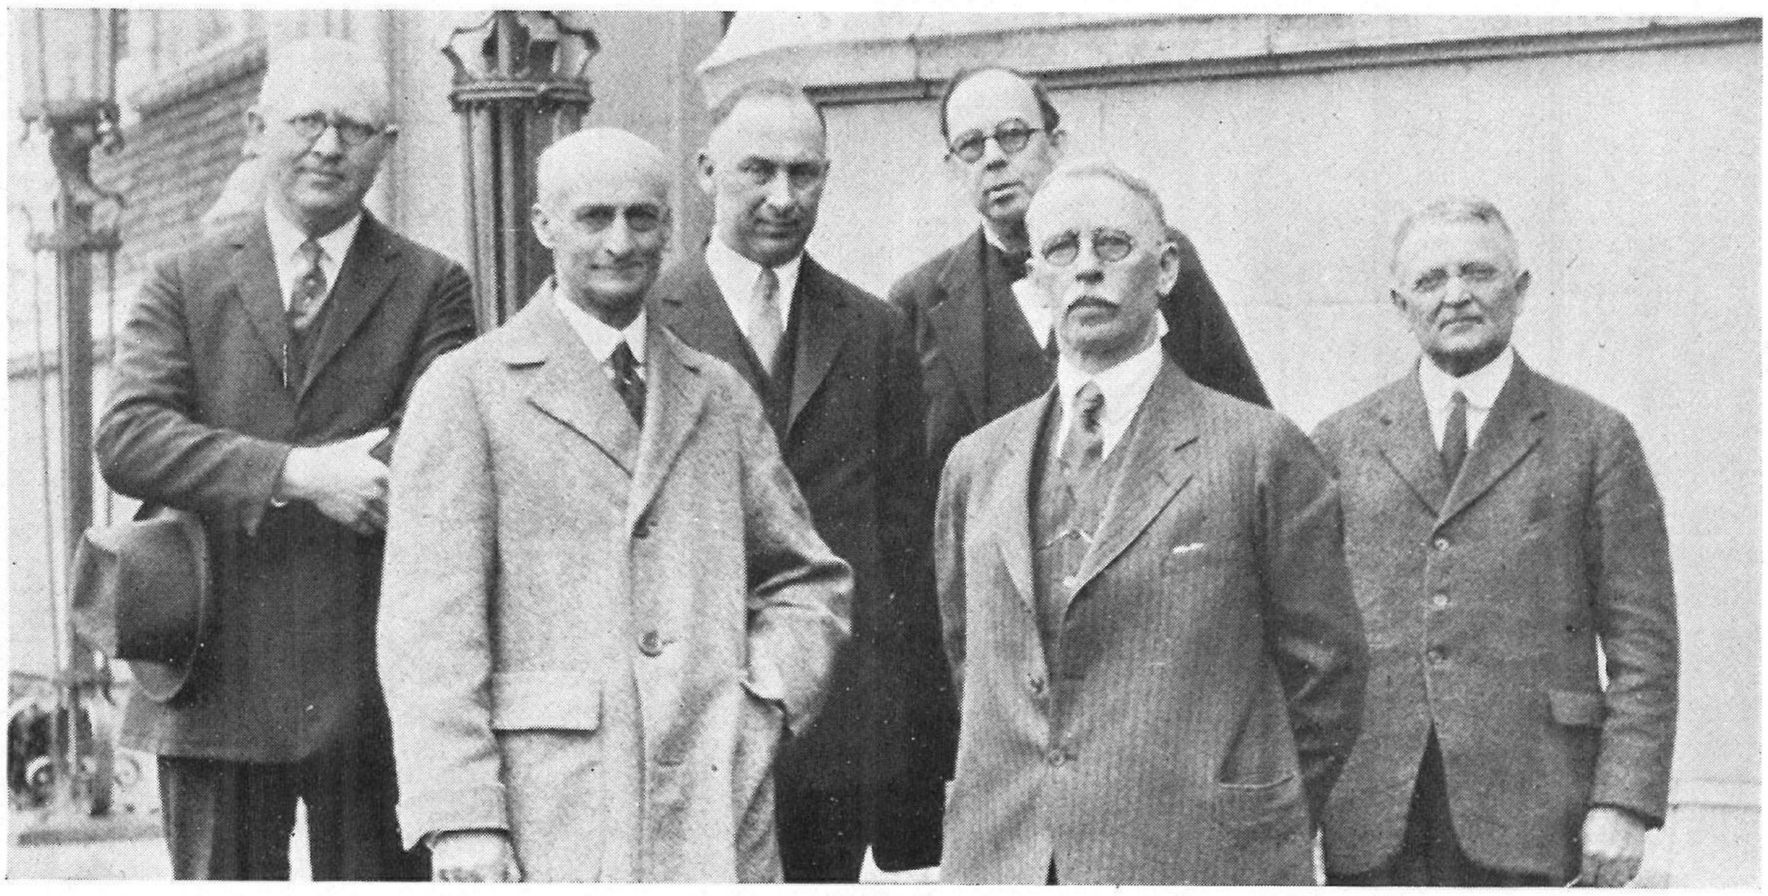

To maintain a Law School that classifies among the best in the country is the aim of the faculty of the University of Washington Sschool of Law, according to Dean John T. Condon. The school is now in that classification. It is rated in "Class A" among American Law Schools, independently by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, the Association of American Law Schools, and the section of legal education of the American Bar Association.

Among graduates of the University of Washington School of Law is Walter M. French, who has been Judge of the Supreme Court of Kitsap County for a number of years.

John H. Dunbar, Attorney General for the State of Washington, and Thomas P. Revelle, United States District Attorney for the western district of Washington, also received their education in the School of Law.

Another graduate in the field is Homer Kirby, Superior Court Judge for a district comprising Cowlitz, Klickitat, and Skamania Counties.

Two judges of the King County Superior Court are University of Washington graduates, Malcolm Douglas, who attained this position at the 1924 election, and King Dykeman, who has held the position for over a decade.

Fine Arts College

MISS FRANCES M. DICKEY has an entirely new and unusual course for a music department. It is called Advanced Sight Singing, in which some quarters are spent in reading oratorios, operas and still others in shorter choral forms much as one would spend a quarter reading Shakespeare in an English course. A new course for those who intend to supervise music is one where the students themselves learn to play wood wind and brass instruments. Piano pedagogy is another innovation. Children come to the University and receive instructions from the students who have their own pupils for this practice teaching.

The Fine Arts College with its ever increasing appeal for the student is continually broadened and advanced for the benefit of those in the school.

The McDowell Club which was organized last year has finished another successful year. The aim is musical development and to more closely unite the students in a purely social manner. It is not for a select few musicians but has a membership consisting of Freshmen as well as Seniors.

Beginning this year the Ladies' Musical Club of Seattle will award $100 to the Senior girl who has shown marked ability and has done the most for the department, not only in musical activity, but also in inspirational aid.

Karl Gerhkins of Oberlin, Ohio, will teach the first half of the summer school session. He is known not only for his work in public school music at Oberlin College, but also for his books. Two of them are, "Fundamentals of Music" and "Essentials in Conducting."

The graduates of this school have positions of importance in many high schools of this state and also in schools of Dillon, Montana, Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn, New York and Franklin High School, Los Angeles.

College of Pharmacy

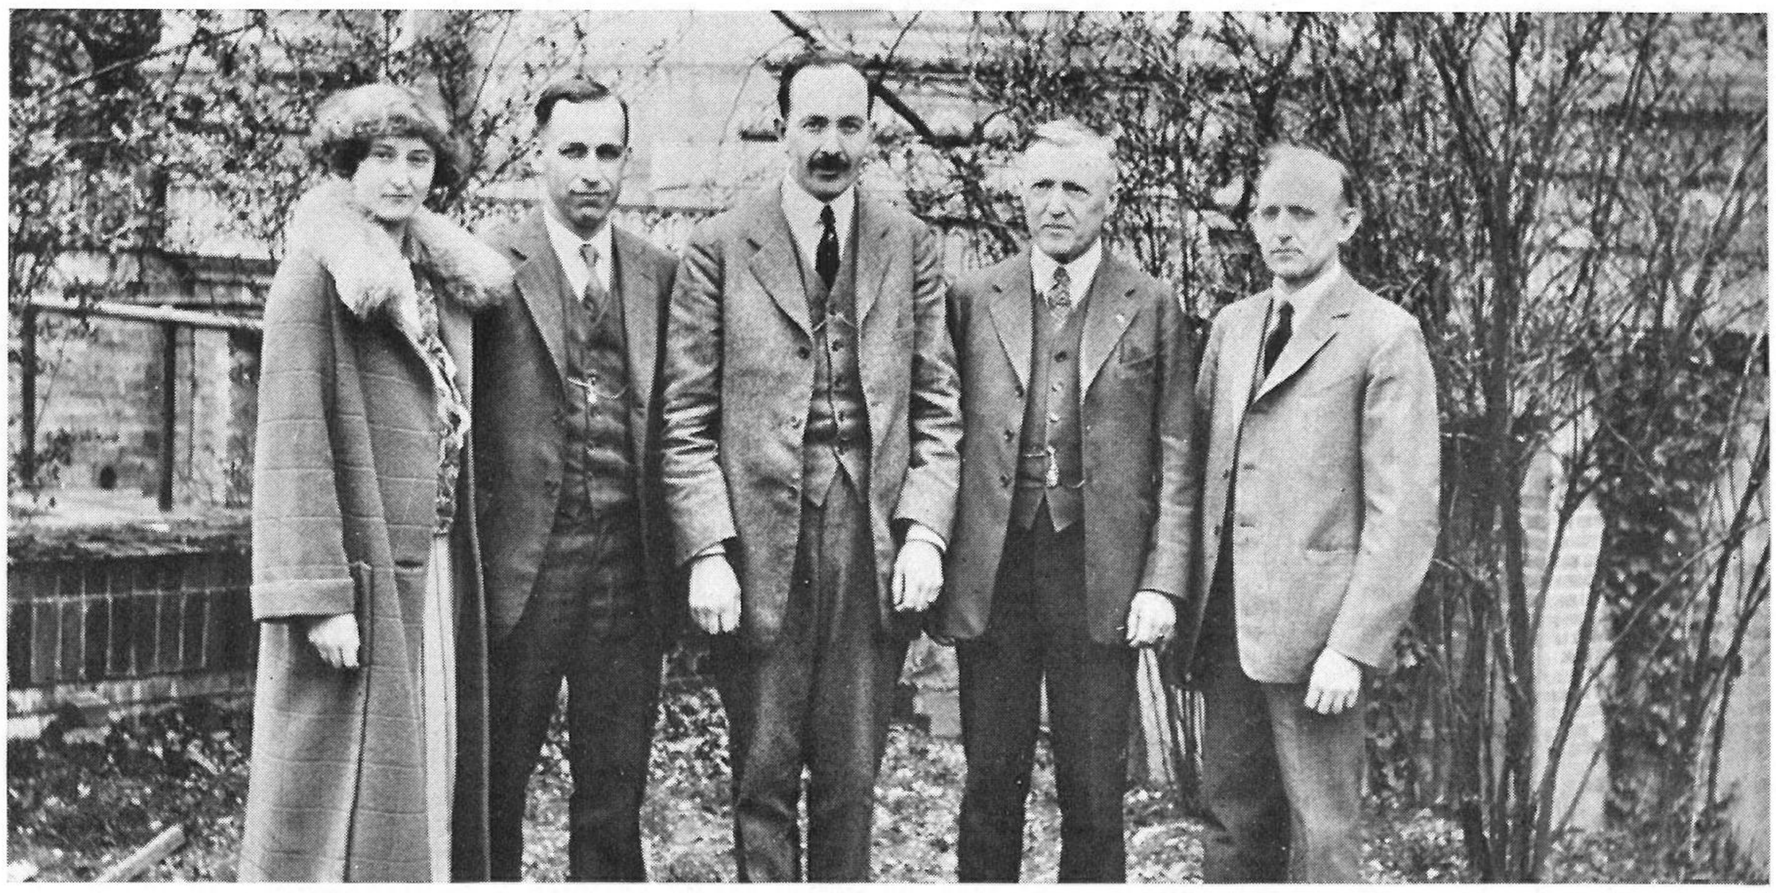

IN THE EARLY DAYS of American Pharmacy the apothecary shop was the college; the employer was the instructor, and the indentured apprentice, the student. The terms of the indenture compelled the employer to teach the profession of Pharmacy to the apprentice. As time progressed, colleges of pharmacy were inaugurated; the first being at Philadelphia in 1820. From that time on the responsibility of the employer as a preceptor gradually became less until at present none is assumed. In contrast to this the responsibility of the colleges increased. The prerequisites for college entrance and the requirements for graduation, due to the efforts of the American Pharmaceutical Association and the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties, have been increased from no requirements for entrance and as little as a lecture course for graduation, to a prerequisite of graduation from accredited high school and a full three year course in pharmacy.

At present the movement towards a four year course granting a Bachelor of Science degree is progressing.

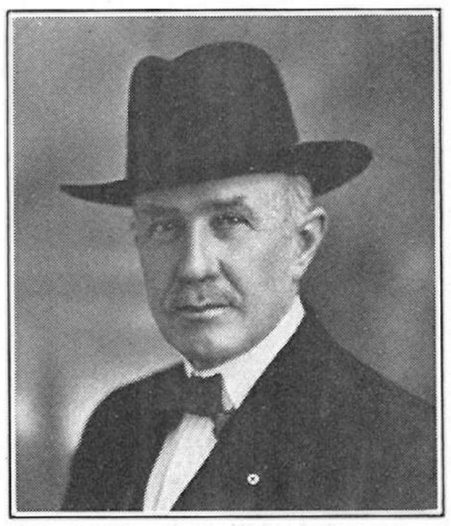

The colleges belonging to the "Conference" all of which comply with the above requirements are not subclassified. Should such a division be introduced on a basis comparable to that used among medical colleges, Washington would, according to statements made in communications from men prominent in the many phases of pharmaceutical work, collegiate industrial and governmental, stand among the foremost in class A. The State of Washington is the second in the Union, to grant State Certificates of Registration, upon graduation, without the customary "apprenticeship" and "state examination."

A constant study of recent investigations in medicine and chemistry applicable to pharmacy must be carried on, and summaries of this presented to the student. In addition, research directly applied to pharmacy must be conducted. The great mass of practical information now available to the practitioner has been gained through constant investigations in new fields and it is to the schools that we must look for the actual work which will give such results. No college can retain or improve its relative standing without devoting considerable time to research. Washington now ranks second in number of research students and the faculty is endeavoring to retain or even better this standing.

Snidow, Goodrich, Lynn, Johnson, Langenham

Library School

THE LIBRARY SCHOOL is constantly growing and gaining recognition as one of the principal library schools of the country. In 1920 it was admitted to the Association of American Library Schools which includes in its classification only fourteen schools throughout the country.

It is interesting to note from what far corners of the country come students to this school. In the present class of twenty-six, the following colleges and universities are represented: Whitman College, University of Manitoba, B. C., University of Montana, University of British Columbia, Columbia University, Magill University, Canada, University of Nebraska, and the University of Oregon. One hundred and sixty-four students have graduated from the school to date, and they are now filling various positions, in all parts of the country. The demand for librarians is relatively steady, and it always has been greater than the school has been able to meet.

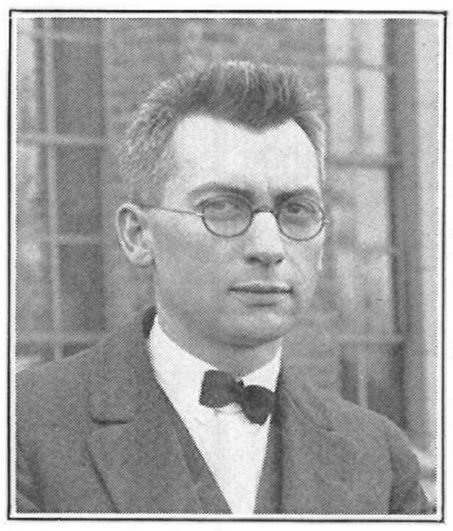

In 1916 the alumni of the Library School organized, and through their organization great service has been rendered the school. Noteworthy of their work is the publication of two articles—in 1919 they published "A Call to Librarianship," and in 1921 "Books and the Ideal State." Now in preparation is the "Register of Students from 1913 to 1924, with Historical Sketches and Statistics." To them also must credit be given for the University of Washington Loan Fund, which started two years ago, and is rapidly growing. At present the fund consists of $700, and loans are available to any student who has met the regulated character and scholastic requirements and has been registered in the school for at least one quarter.

The Library School is unique in the fact that its teaching staff is engaged in active practical library service. This year Miss Sara Virginia Lewis, Superintendent of Book Circulation in Seattle Public Library offers work in Book Circulation. Miss Lewis is nationally known in her profession and is a frequent contributor to library publications.

Henry, Putnam, Alfonso, Martin, Smith

College of Mines

THE OUTSTANDING EVENT of the past year in the College of Mines was the publication of a bulletin on "The Clays and Shales of Washington, Their Technology and Uses," by Professor Hewitt Wilson. This bulletin summarizes the results of a survey of the ceramic resources of the State, made by the College in cooperation with the Northwest Experiment Station and the State Geological Survey. It points out the directions in which the industry can expand to the best advantage; for instance, the experimenting has been especially productive in the fields of ordinary fire clays and a superrefractory called sillimanite, which is used in the manufacture of a high grade fire brick and spark plugs.

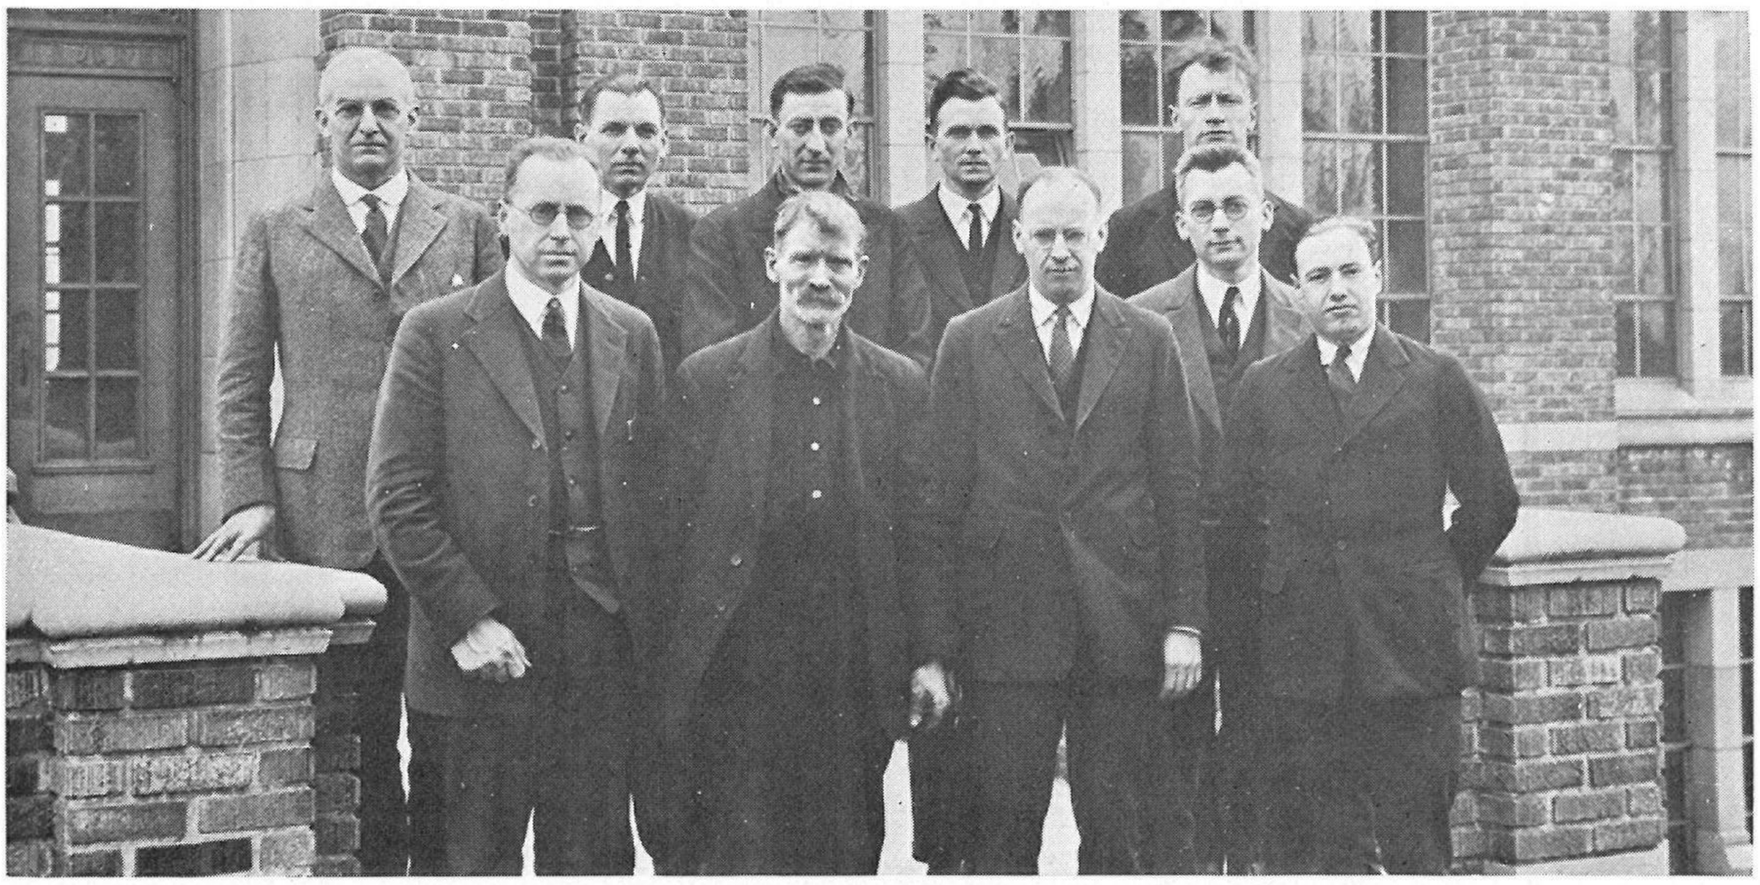

Since the completion of that report Professor Wilson has succeeded in making whiteware from materials found wholly in Washington, the first whiteware of this type produced on the Coast. Samples of this ware are on exhibit at Mines Laboratory.

The making of sponge iron and the production of steel and gray foundry iron in the electric furnace were other studies carried on during the year in the College of Mines.

A notable event among graduates of the College was the naming of a town in honor of Livingston Wernecke, '06, who is engineer and manager of the Treadwell-Yukon Company. When the rich silver-lead prospects in the Mayo district of Yukon territory were discovered, Wernecke was quick to recognize their possibilities. He took options for his company and has since developed a highly profitable mine. The town of Wernecke is situated at Keno hill.

Terra cotta used in the construction of recent buildings on the University campus was made under the direction of two graduates, A. Lee Bennett and E. F. Goodner. Bennett is ceramic chemist for the Northern Clay Company at Auburn, where the terra cotta was burned for the Mines and Forestry buildings, while Goodner is ceramic engineer for the Washington Brick, Lime & Sewerpipe Company at Spokane, makers of the architectural terra cotta for Education hall and the new library.

Fred T. Heath, another Mines graduate, has patented a new Heath structural tile unit, which is now being manufactured in the East.

College of Fisheries

GREAT EXPANSION in the food preservation work of the College of Fisheries resulted in the reorganization of the College last fall under the name "College of Fisheries and Food Preservation."

Associate Professor Carl R. Fellers, who heads this growing department, has been doing, among other things, research to develop means of detecting in berry products evidence of spoilage which occurred before canning, and recently has had published a paper on this subject. Sanitation regulations in canneries is another field in which the department has been active.

How can fish going upstream to spawn be conducted safely past the many dams now being built? How can young salmon and trout be conducted through or over these dams on their journey downstream to salt water, and kept from going into irrigation ditches to their death?

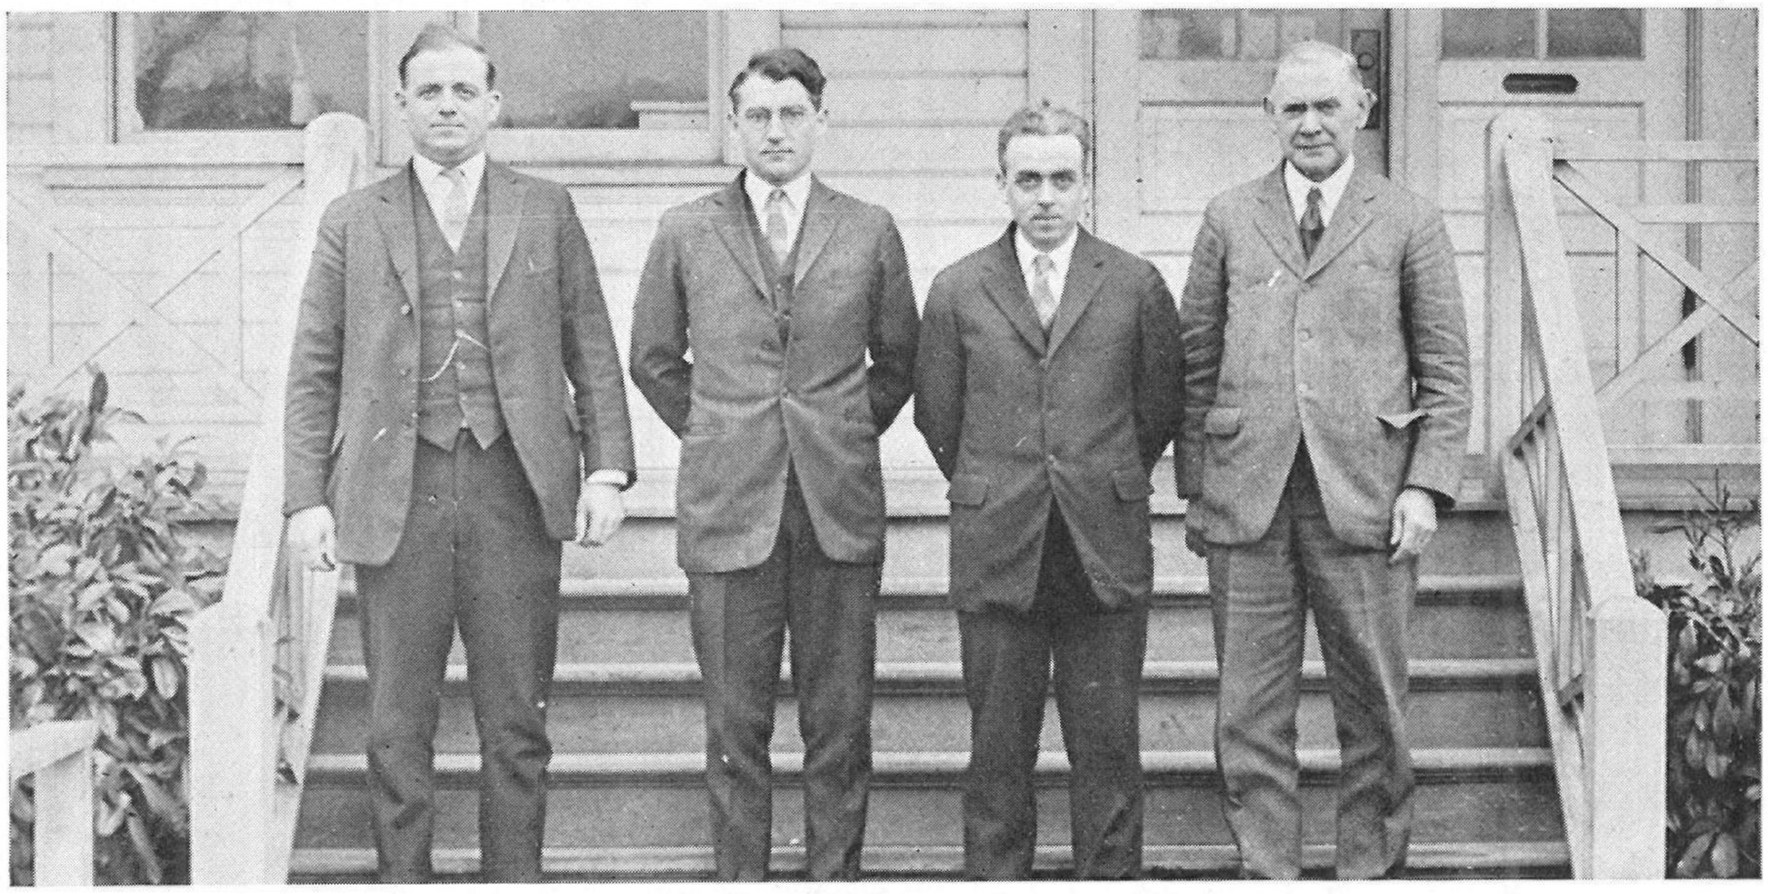

These are problems upon which depends the future existence of our fisheries and canneries along with the development of our hydro-electric plants, according to Dean John N. Cobb of the College of Fisheries. And so the College, in collaboration with the Washington and Oregon fish commissions and leading hydro-electric companies, is seeking to find means of accomplishing these things.

A series of experiments on fishways to enable fish to get over high dams was started last summer under the direction of Dean Cobb at the Condit dam in this state. A skip hoist was devised in which wire baskets were used, by means of which the fish were elevated, without water, to any height desired. Though this was a violation to precedent it proved to be a wise move, for it was found that fish could be lifted in this way with little harm.

Andrew W. Anderson, graduate of '22, is operating a fish by-products plant which he established in Iceland last summer. He lives in Norway and is North European agent for a San Francisco machinery manufacturer.

Lawrence T. Hopkinson, a former student here, has been field agent for the United States Bureau of Fisheries and Executive Secretary of the United States Fisheries Association.

Harvey C. McMillin and Milton G. James, both of '23, are scientific assistants for the United States Bureau of Fisheries, with headquarters at Washington, D. C. Reginald H. Fiedler, '21, is field agent for the United States Bureau of Fisheries, and James E. Munson, '23, is executive secretary for the United States Fisheries Association.

Nightingale, Fellers, Crawford, Cobb

School of Journalism

FRED W. KENNEDY, Assistant Professor of Journalism and Director of the Journalism Laboratories was made a member of the Executive Council of Sigma Delta Chi at the last annual convention held in Indiana. Mr. Kennedy is also Field Manager for the Washington State Press Association. His work in this organization has received wide recognition.

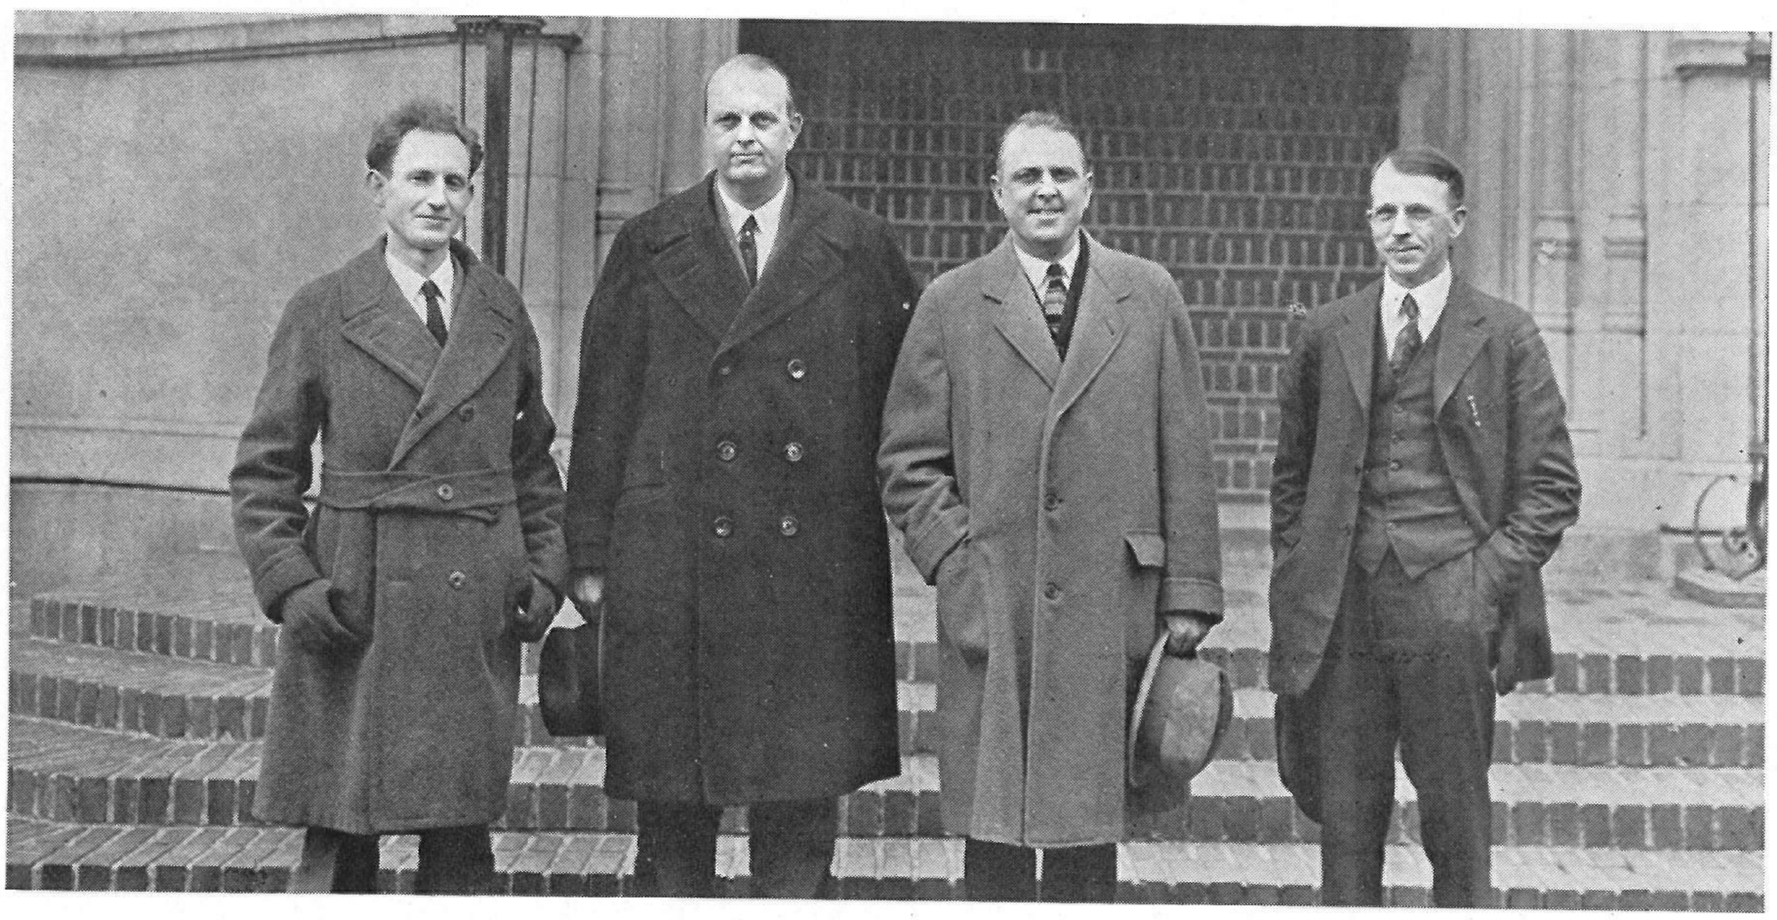

The School of Journalism offices have been combined with the Frederick A. Churchill Junior Memorial Library and moved into larger quarters in Commerce Hall. The Library has recently received a number of new books and periodicals pertaining to journalism.

Opportunities for practical experience in journalistic work have become an important part of the curriculum of the School of Journalism. The work of putting out an issue of The Star and an issue of The Daily Journal of Commerce is done by Journalism students. Practice as reporters for the Seattle papers is required in another course. Some of the journalism students are employed as special reporters and correspondents at the University by local newspapers and dailies in neighboring cities.

A new course will be added to the curriculum of the School next year. This course which is to be given by Professor Jones will be known as Law of the Press. A course in Journalism for teachers was offered for the first time this year and a course in Publicity was added to the schedule.

A new book, "Newswriting for High Schools," written by L. A. Borah, Professor of Journalism, was published in April by Allyn and Bacon, Boston.

A scrapbook of articles by Journalism students which have been published is kept in the Journalism Library.

Hall, Jones, Borah, Kennedy

College of Forestry

WOOD PRESERVATION and kiln drying make up the field in which much research work is being done by Assistant Professor Bror L. Grondal, of the College of Forestry. He has patented a new type of dry kiln with an improved circulation method which is coming into extensive use. This kiln is being manufactured by the North Coast Dry Kiln Company, a local concern.

Professor Grondal also has invented a wood preservation process, which is being used in this State in the manufacture of wood pipe, and has perfected a new wood preservative which is cheaper and better than creosote. Professor Grondal is a Washington graduate, having received his master's degree here in 1912.

Work toward state forestry policy legislation has been the most far-reaching constructive endeavor of the College of Forestry during several years. The State Forestry Conference was organized in 1921 and directed by the college. It has succeeded at the 1923 and 1925 sessions of the state legislature in getting legislation passed to the following ends:

(1) Creation of a state forest board; (2) provision for the establishment of state forests for reforestation purposes; (3) creation of better fire prevention laws. Other matters fostered include changes in the timber tax laws and establishment of a "state forest experiment station."

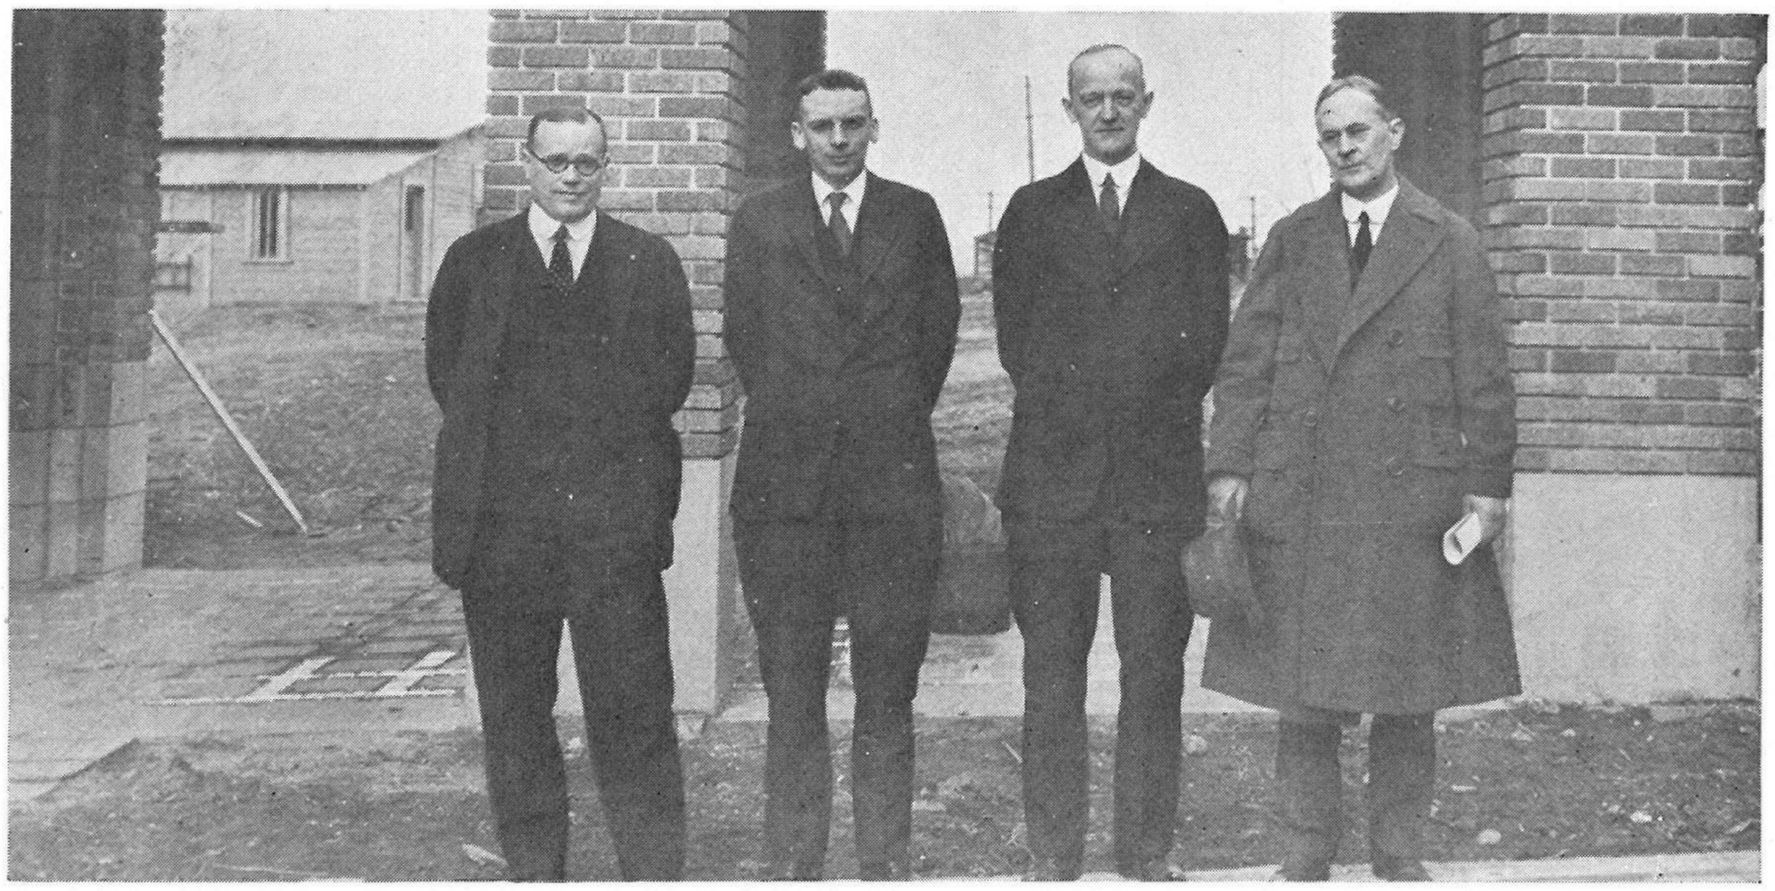

Alfred H. Anderson Hall, the new forestry building, completed this year, is the gift of Mrs. Agnes H. Anderson of Seattle, a memorial to her late husband. It is a huge contribution to the College of Forestry, helping to make it one of the finest in the world.

Russell Watson, '15, until recently was teaching forestry at the University of Michigan, and Thomas C. Burleigh, M. S. F. '20, is head of the forestry department at the University of Georgia.

A sky line log carriage, which is being manufactured in Seattle, was invented by Newell Wright, B. S. F. '14, who is president of a lumber company in Oregon, and Axel Brandstrom, M. S. F. '20, who is running a construction company organized by himself.

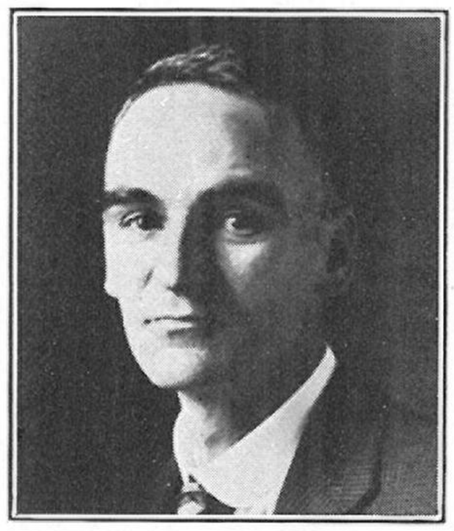

Moritz Mueller, B. S. F. '14, designed and patented a new kiln. He is president of the Northwest Blower Kiln Company.

J. Kenneth Pierce, '21, is logging engineer for the government of Madras, Chepauk, India.

Grondal, Clark, Kirkland, Winkenwerder

Graduate School

ERIC TEMPLE BELL, Professor of Mathematics, was awarded the highest honor that can be conferred on a mathematician in the United States. He was awarded, jointly with Professor Lefschetz of Princeton, the Boucher Prize of the American Mathematical Society for 1924, given once every five years to the resident of the United States or Canada who makes, in a five-year period, the most significant contribution to mathematical research. Professor Bell's work appeared in 1921 in the Transactions of the American Mathematical Society, entitled "Arithmetical Paraphrases."

During the fall quarter, 1924-1925, the graduate enrollment was 285 as against 272 for the fall quarter of 1923-1924, and for the winter quarter, 287 as against 250 for the corresponding quarter of the previous year. At present there are about 35 accepted candidates for the doctorate and about 175 for the various master's degrees. The summer quarter continues to attract the largest number of graduate students, the enrollment for 1924 being 646.

There are 100 fellowships and scholarships representing an annual grant of approximately $45,340. Among these are a number of fellowships which make it possible for the student to give his whole time to study and research. The University teaching fellowships range from $540 to $720.

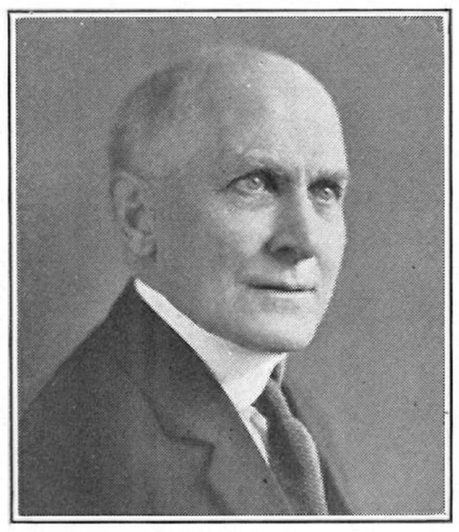

The increased provision for the library, the time allowance for members of the faculty engaged in research, and the establishment of a substantial budget for the publication of research, have given marked impetus to advanced scholarship.

BY DOROTHY BRASSINGTON

C. R. Atkinson, Professor of Transportation

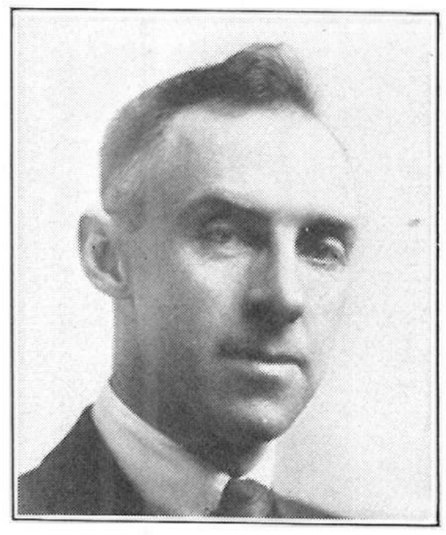

PROFESSOR C. R. ATKINSON of the Department of Business Administration, though reasonably young in years and still younger in spirit, is a veteran in school work and a close observer of economic tendencies. A little over half his life as a teacher was given to public school work where he developed marked elements of leadership. During a period of six years while engaged in public school work he served as Treasurer and President of his State Teachers' Association and President of the State Board of Examiners. His service in public schools included terms as High School Principal, County Superintendent of Schools and City Superintendent of Schools.

Deciding to specialize in Economics and Political Science, Dr. Atkinson went first to Washington, D. C. where he took courses in George Washington University and spent much time watching the wheels of government go round. After receiving his Ph. D. at Columbia, Dr. Atkinson was one year in Ursinus College as head of the Department of History and Political Science, four years in Lawrence College as head of the department of Economics and Politics, and seven years in Marquette University as Dean of the College of Business Administration.

In the fall of 1923 he came to the University of Washington as Associate Professor of Business Administration, having charge of all the courses in Transportation and some in Foreign Trade. Since coming here he has been admitted to membership in the Seattle Industrial Traffic Managers' Association and is the only man not engaged in practical traffic work to be so honored.

Fred C. Ayer, Professor of Education

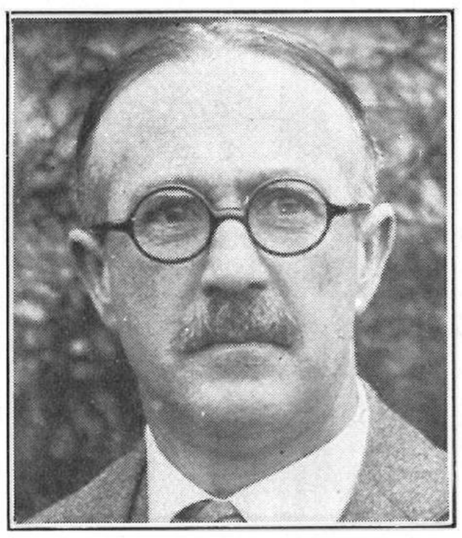

TO FACILITATE the research work of the School of Education in connection with the public schools and to make it, in this respect especially, the leading institution in the country, is the work to which Professor Fred C. Ayer has devoted the major share of his time and energy since he came to the University in 1918. Acting as Director of the Research Department of the Seattle Public Schools, Professor Ayer has had a splendid opportunity to put the discoveries of educational research into practice. The progressive movement during the past three years in Seattle's schools has been based upon research and survey work carried out under the direction of Professor Ayer.

His special field of interest is administrative research, which he sets forth clearly in a number of publications. A recent article which appeared in the American Digest was edited as a "Brilliant Survey of Seattle Schools." He has received a contract for a new book on "Introduction to Modern Education," and is writing a second book on "The Organization of Supervision." About forty of his articles have appeared in various educational periodicals.

After receiving the degrees of Bachelor of Science and Master of Science Professor Ayer received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Chicago. He has held positions as Professor of Biology at different institutions, Professor of Education at the University of Oregon, and at the State University of Iowa, before coming to the University of Washington. He has directed various school surveys since 1915 and is associate editor of two educational journals, the School Review and Educational Measurement Review.

Allen R. Benham, Professor of English

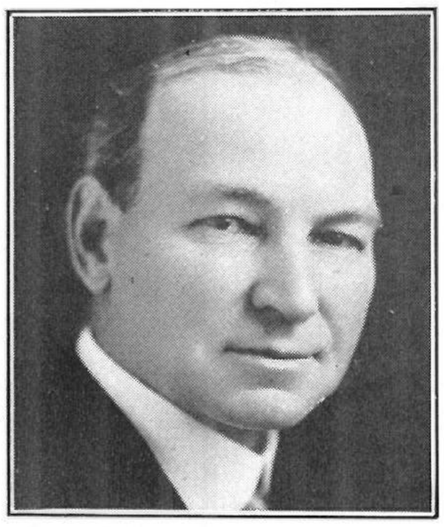

THE PRIVILEGE of instructing American armies in France was accorded to Dr. Allen Rogers Benham during the war from 1918-19, in Burgundy at the A. E. F. University. In 1918 Dr. Benham went to France with the Y. M. C. A. and joined the army educational corps, and was immediately pressed into service with the establishment of the Burgundy University.

Dr. Benham has been with the University of Washington since 1905, and during that time he has written "Specimen Letters," "English Literature from Widsith to the Death of Chaucer," and edited "Carlyle, Past and Present" with Prof. H. G. Pearson in 1923. He is now at work on the second volume of his Source Book for the History of English Literature—"English Literature from Chaucer to Bunyan."

Dr. Benham has served Washington since 1914 as secretary of Phi Beta Kappa. He is constantly watching for prospective members, and does much to promote the intellectual life of the students, outside of the realm of the classroom. As a member of innumerable learned societies and as president of the local Philological Society, Dr. Benham has established a wide contact, and consequently exerts a broadening influence on the lives of the students with whom he comes in touch.

A large library which is always at the disposal of his students, seems virtually maintained for their benefit in Dr. Benham's office in Denny Hall. A variety of material for interesting research is always available there, due to Dr. Benham's special hobby for book collecting. That he reads 15 languages Dr. Benham weighs as a minor accomplishment. When he considers such a thing minor it does not seem strange—in the light of his many other accomplishments—that Dr. Benham has received national recognition in "Who's Who."

Frederick E. Bolton, Dean, School of Education

"DEAN F. E. BOLTON has the best arrangement we know of for promoting student mastery of the science of professional education," said a writer in the Journal of Education. "Through his ideals for American education, Dean Bolton has added much constructive thought and work to the field of teaching, and the broader field of education in general."

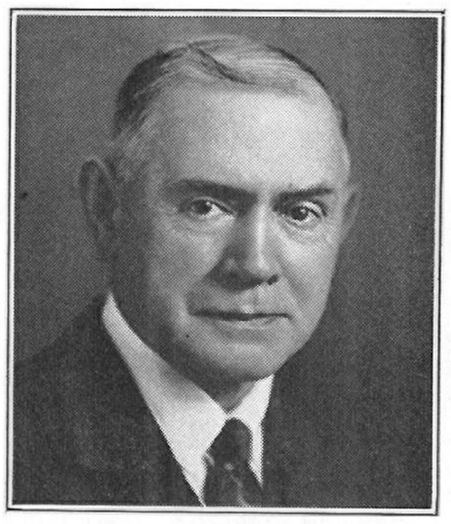

That teaching may some day be regarded as a life profession, similar to that of law or medicine, is Dean Bolton's hope at the present time. In putting the training of teachers on a professional basis, Dean Bolton feels that it will hold attractions for a larger number.

Dean Bolton received his degree of B. S. from the University of Wisconsin in 1893, and M. S. in 1896. He attended the University of Leipzig in 1896-97, and was an Honorary Fellow at Clark University 1897-98, receiving his Ph. D. degree in 1898.

The first book Dean Bolton had published was one written while he was in Germany on the "Secondary School System of Germany" in 1901. Since then he has written "Principles of Education" in 1910, and "Everyday Psychology for Teachers" which came out the fall of 1923. He is now writing "Adolescence in Relation to the High School." In addition to his books, approximately one hundred of Dean Bolton's articles have appeared in various journals. The most recent one was in Scribner's on "Idealism in Education," which was published in the January issue, and reveals Dean Bolton's chief concern for education—that it may be a means for developing finer and more beautiful lives rather than a means of pecuniary gain. He quotes Milton in the expression of his ideal that "education should fit the individual to perform skilfully, justly and magnanimously all the arts of peace and all the arts of war."

John N. Cobb, Dean, College of Fisheries

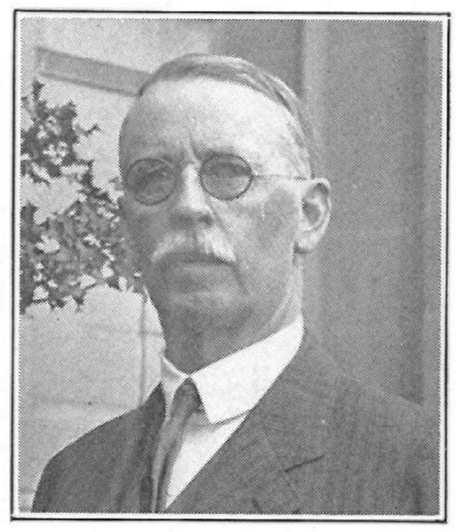

A PIONEER in the study of Fisheries and a builder of that industry is the reputation attained by Professor John N. Cobb, Director of the College of Fisheries. In 1919 Dean Cobb organized the College of Fisheries, patterned after no precedent, and the first one of its kind in the world, other than the one in Japan, many of whose graduates and instructors now come here to get advanced training.

As a Field Agent for the United States Bureau of Fisheries from 1895 to 1912, Dean Cobb revived the fisheries of the States of New York, Vermont, North Carolina, Florida and of Alaska particularly, through legal action taken on his recommendations, and his work also required a thorough investigation of the fisheries of every State in the Union.

Dean Cobb also had to blaze the way with Fishery Literature and he is now at work on "Fisheries of the United States," a comprehensive book on a virtually untouched subject. He has also undertaken two popular works, one on Pacific Coast Salmon and one on Trout, designed to promote sport fishing. Dean Cobb's other books include: "Fish Cookery" (with Mrs. Evelene Spencer), "The Canning of Fishery Products"—the first book covering that field, and so vital to this part of the country when it is realized that the Pacific Coast produces nine-tenths of the canned salmon of the world. He has also written: "Fisheries of Alaska," "The Salmon Fisheries of the Pacific Coast," "The Pacific Cod Fisheries," "Commercial Fisheries of the Hawaiian Islands," "The Lobster Fishery of Maine," "The Sponge Fishery of Florida," and various government reports which are the result of exhaustive surveys in all parts of the country.

As a newspaper reporter and city editor, Dean Cobb began his career in 1886. He later became interested in Fisheries and worked in government capacities until be became connected with the University of Washington. He edited the Pacific Fisherman of Seattle for four years. Through the knowledge he has imparted to a vast number of students on a hitherto practically untouched industry Dean Cobb has contributed very definitely to the economic and commercial interests of the United States.

John T. Condon, Dean, School of Law

DEAN JOHN T. CONDON has just completed his twenty-fifth year as Professor of Law and Dean of the Law School at the University of Washington. He has been in that capacity since 1899 when he was the only one on the Law faculty. Its growth since then may be partially indicated by the fact that there are now 6 members of that particular faculty.

Dean Condon attended the University of Washington as a student from 1875 to 1879. He received his degree of Bachelor of Laws from the University of Michigan in 1891 and the degree of Master of Laws from Northwestern University in 1892.

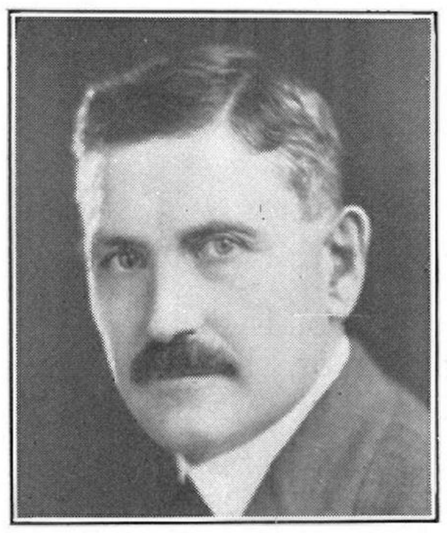

Developed around a small personal collection of books of Dean Condon's, the Law School now has the finest library west of the Mississippi River and the school itself is recognized by the Council on Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar to be in Class "A"—the highest group classified.

That students should be intensely interested in law—should find it all absorbing and have the highest faith in the legal profession—Dean Condon regards as a pre-requisite to admission in the School of Law. He does not believe that any student should start preparation for that profession until he is convinced that his faith in it is invincible.

Dean Condon is now Dean of Faculties and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta and of Phi Delta Phi. Partial evidence of the regard held for him by the student body was given in 1922 when the Tyee was "dedicated in honor of Dean Condon, who by his interest in and service to Washington has won the respect and confidence of the students."

Theodore C. Frye, Professor of Botany

A UNIVERSITY BIOLOGICAL STATION, second to none, is the ambition of Theodore C. Frye, Professor of Botany, and his chief work at the present time is directed toward the fulfillment of that aim.

When Professor Frye became Director of the Biological Station, which is located at Friday Harbor, in 1914, he established three aims: the first and chief one was to organize a Research School for Biology, here in the Northwest, which should naturally draw Biologists to a common region, for mutual encouragement as well as increased knowledge. Secondly, he desired to give students in Biology a common meeting ground with leaders in Biology, that they might receive inspiration through such contact. The third function of the Station, Professor Frye believed to be the possibility for improving Biological teaching in the State.

As a result of Professor Frye's careful direction, through the research done at the Biological Station, three and a half volumes have been published. Subscriptions and exchanges have been obtained from practically every civilized country of the globe. and through these publications, the Biological Station is better known in foreign countries than is the University of Washington itself.

Among the more important of Professor Frye's writings are: "Height and Dominance of the Douglas Fir," "Laboratory Exercises in Elementary Botany," "Northwest Flora," "The Ferns of Washington," "Elementary Flora of the Northwest," "The Kelp Beds of Southeast Alaska," and "The Size of the Kelps of the Pacific Coast of North America."

Professor Frye came to Washington as Professor of Botany in 1903, and when Dean Landes was Acting President of the University, he was Acting Dean of the College of Science and remained in that capacity until 1916. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Sigma Xi, and the Botanical Society of America.

Irving Glen, Dean, College of Fine Arts

THE COLLEGE OF FINE ARTS, under the direction of Dean Irving Glen, has developed in the past 14 years from a staff of five instructors and half a dozen major students to a corps of 33 instructors with nearly 500 students. And this may be said to be just one of the many things Dean Glen has done for the University.

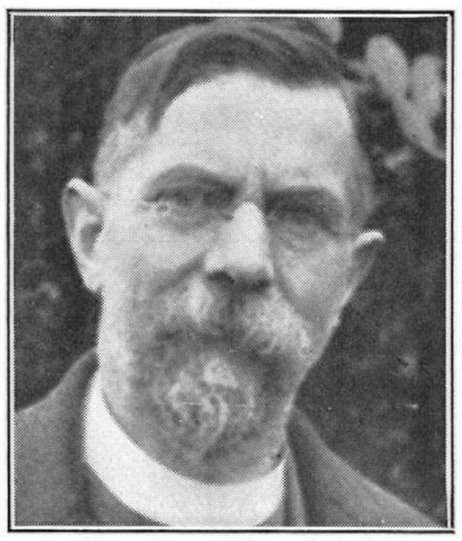

During the years that Dean Glen has been here, he has directed the production of a yearly light opera, and inaugurated the yearly Glee Club state tour for which he selects the programs every year. He formed the Women's Ensemble, that there might be a means of providing choral study for women, which is a group composed of selected voices of the entire campus. The yearly concert programs under Dean Glen's direction, produced in connection with the work of the music department, have included material from such Grand Operas as Faust, Tanhauser, Aida; the oratorios of Elijah, Creation and Stabat Mater, and the cantatas of The Golden Legend, Tales of Old Japan, Hiawatha's Wedding Feast, etc.

Before coming to Washington, Dean Glen was connected with the University of Oregon from 1897, as Professor of English Language and Literature, Dean of the School of Music, and Professor of Music and Musical Director. He was Musical Director for the Willamette Valley Musical Festival, during the years 1903, 1907, and 1909, and of the Gladstone Park and Ashlord Chautauqua during various seasons. He is a member of the Modern Language Association of America, Phi Beta Kappa, and Phi Gamma Delta.

The College of Fine Arts evolved out of the Music Department years ago. Owing to the demand by the public school system for properly prepared teachers in other lines such as art work, painting and design, architecture and dramatic art, the several courses combined into a College, which now grants a degree in Fine Arts, and every year under the guidance of Dean Glen sends well equipped men and women out over the State to further develop lines of cultural interest.

Herbert H. Gowen, Professor of Oriental Languages

DR. HERBERT HENRY GOWEN'S name ranks among the learned men of this country, because he is, first, a clergyman, in charge of St. Barnabas Chapel, Seattle; second, an author who has had published 17 well-known works on a great number of subjects; third, a member of the University faculty, as Professor of Oriental Languages and Literature; and fourth, a missionary in charge of the Seattle Japanese Mission.

Doctor Gowen has held interesting positions in widely scattered parts of the globe. From the years 1886 to 1890, he was in charge of the Chinese Mission in Honolulu, Hawaii. From there he returned to Great Yarmouth, England, where he remained for two years as Curate of St. Nicholas Church. His next journey was to Westminster, B. C., where as Rector of St. Barnabas he stayed until 1896. At that date he came to the Trinity Parish in Seattle and since 1914 he has been in charge of St. Barnabas Chapel. He has been on the University faculty since 1906.

Besides being president of the Washington State Philological Society, Doctor Gowen is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Author's Club (London), the American Oriental Society, the Royal Asiatic Society, and a Fellow of the Royal George Society, London. His knowledge of languages is extensive, including a reading and translating acquaintance with a considerable number. He has contributed 17 books to the roll of contemporary literature since 1891.

At present Doctor Gowen is at work on his revised History of China, and is contemplating a similar work on the history of Japan. It is Doctor Gowen's hope to widen the scope of this department so that it will offer subjects on the commercial side as well as those of liberal arts, and to accomplish this, courses relating to foreign trade are being added to the curriculum. Trade with the Orient is a dominant phase of foreign trade on the Pacific Coast and Doctor Gowen believes these courses will prove most helpful.

William E. Henry, Director, Library School

THE LIBRARY SCHOOL, founded in 1911, is Dr. William E. Henry's creation. When, in 1906, Dr. Henry first came to the University as librarian, the Library School was a department of the College of Liberal Arts. It is now organized as a one-year course for Seniors, and has been an impetus for graduate work in many Eastern universities. Fifteen graduating classes under the direction of Dr. Henry have resulted in Washington's students invading all sections of the Northwest and the country as librarians.

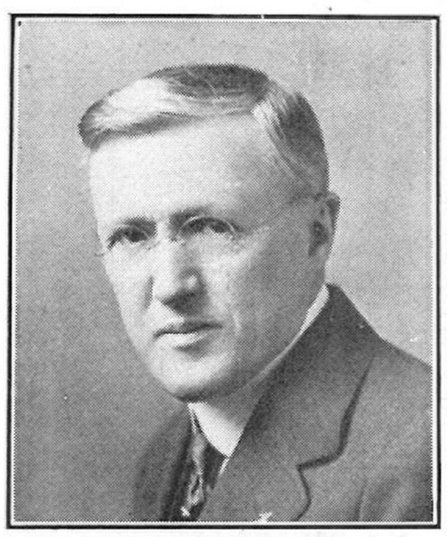

Dr. Henry was the State Librarian of Indiana before he came to Washington and held that position from 1897 to 1906. He first graduated from the Indiana State Normal School at Terre Haute and then received his A. B. and A. M. degrees from Indiana University. At the University of Chicago he did post-graduate work for two years and was a Fellow in English from 1894 to 1895. His first teaching position was as instructor in English at Indiana University from 1891 to 1893. From there he went to Franklin College, Franklin, Indiana, as Professor of English, remaining until 1897.

Increasing the Library School in 1911, Dr. Henry felt that it would offer more intense training for future State Librarians and satisfy a need felt in that direction. That it has far exceeded the purpose for which it was originally founded is shown by the success of the school's graduates in all parts of the country—in California, all through the Northwest and as far East as New York.

Dr. Henry is regarded by national authorities who comprise the judges for admittance in "Who's Who" as a definite addition to the field of library science and his work is regarded as particularly noteworthy.

Charles W. Johnson, Dean, College of Pharmacy

AS DEAN of the College of Pharmacy since 1903, Charles W. Johnson's scope of activity has been threefold. His first attempt was to increase the standard of requirements in the College, and this School was the first in the West and third in the United States to drop the two year course. Secondly, Dean Johnson has devoted a great deal of attention to the graduate work, for the preparation of students as teachers in Colleges of Pharmacy and as research workers in manufacturing houses.

Dean Johnson's third interest was more or less political. It involved the responsibility for the final placing of the present Pharmacy Law on the State Statute Books, requiring graduation from a College of Pharmacy in order to be a Registered Pharmacist in the State of Washington.

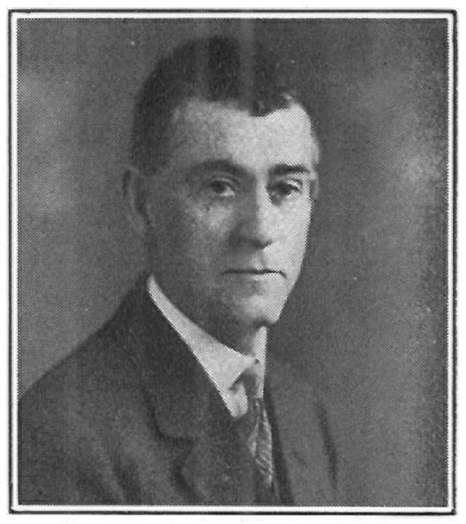

As State Chemist for the State Department of Agriculture since 1909 Dean Johnson has had analyzed under his direction about 23,000 food and drug products. The poison cases throughout the State are also handled by him.

Last year Dean Johnson was elected President of the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties. He has been a special food and drug inspection chemist for the United States Department of Agriculture since 1907, and was also chemist for the State Dairy and Food commission of Washington from 1909 to 1913.

Dean Johnson received his degrees for graduate work from the University of Michigan. He was a pharmacist at Ann Arbor and Detroit,assistant instructor of Chemistry at the University of Michigan, instructor of chemistry at the State University of Iowa, and came to Washington in 1902 as Professor of Pharmacy and Chemistry.

His national activities included membership on the committee in charge of the revision of Volume X of the United States' Pharmacopoeia, besides his widespread work in government and state capacities.

Trevor Kincaid, Professor of Zoology

THE DEVELOPMENT of a new industry on the Pacific Coast has absorbed the greater part of Professor Trevor Kincaid's time and energy for the last few years; his chief endeavors have been directed toward the study of the oyster. and he is at present adviser to the oyster industry on the coast. The innovation, however, lies in his attempts to propagate the Japanese oyster so that it will grow in our waters, which will mean the establishment of an entirely new industry in this part of the country.

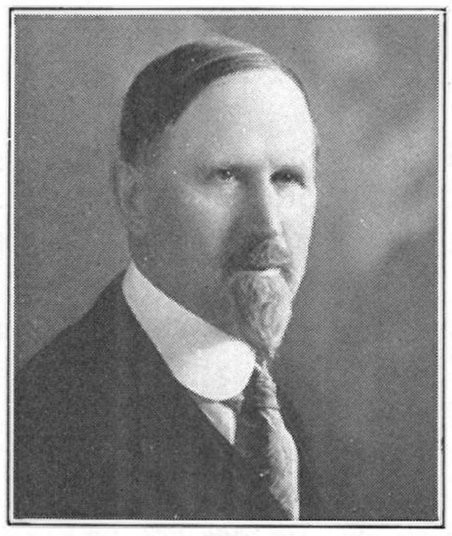

Professor Kincaid's greatest interest used to be the study of economic entomology. He is still at work on it in trying to annihilate the earwig by introducing enemies from Europe. At present his greatest interest is Marine Zoology and the shell fish industry particularly. His most recent publication was "Fishes of Puget Sound." His main report on the oyster industry in the Puget Sound region he hopes to have published soon; it contains material which he has been compiling for a number of years.

Professor Kincaid became connected with the University of Washington just 31 years ago, as a Freshman student. He received the degrees of B. S. and A. M. from this institution. He became Assistant Professor of Biology in 1899 and has been Professor of Zoology since the department was first formed in 1901. He studied at Harvard University from 1905 to 1906 as an Austin Scholar.

Professor Kincaid has acted in various capacities for government investigations; he was an assistant on the first American Fur Seal Commission, entomologist on the Harrison Alaska Expedition, and as a special field agent for the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Japan in 1908 and in Russia in 1909 he carried on an investigation of parasites of the gypsy moth.

Various papers and reports relating to the entomology of the Pacific Coast and particularly Alaska, have been contributed by Professor Kincaid to the Entomological News and other publications.

Henry Landes, Dean, College of Science

SINCE 1895, when Washington's enrollment numbered only 300, Dean Henry Landes has been a member of the faculty. When the College of Science was organized in 1912, he was appointed Dean. As early as 1903, when "Who's Who in America" contained but few names, that of Dean Landes was among them.

From January 1, 1914, to July 1, 1915, Dean Landes was acting president. At the legislative session during his administration the present building plans were put into effect, and also during that time, a careful survey of the campus was made and the present arrangement of the various quadrangles was blocked out as a permanent building scheme.

Before he came to Washington in 1895, Dean Landes was principal of the Rockland, Maine, high school and was assistant to the New Jersey State Geologist. He received his degrees from Indiana University and Harvard. He also studied at the University of Chicago and has traveled in every state of the Union except Florida.

Dean Landes was the State Geologist for Washington for 20 years. In that time 24 bulletins and annual reports were issued, and with the cooperation of the Federal survey, many quadrangles were surveyed and many streams measured for flow and for power.

"A Geographic Dictionary of Washington," "An Outline of the Geology of Washington," "Coal Deposits of Washington," "Preliminary Report on the Underground Waters of Washington," and "Metalliferous Resources of Washington" are among the writings Dean Landes has had published, besides many articles on various phases of general geology, geography, economic deposits and mountaineering.

Dean Landes is a Fellow of the Geological Society of America, a member of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers and of various other scientific associations. It is well known that his intensive work in geology has made his name nationally significant.

Carl E. Magnusson, College of Engineering

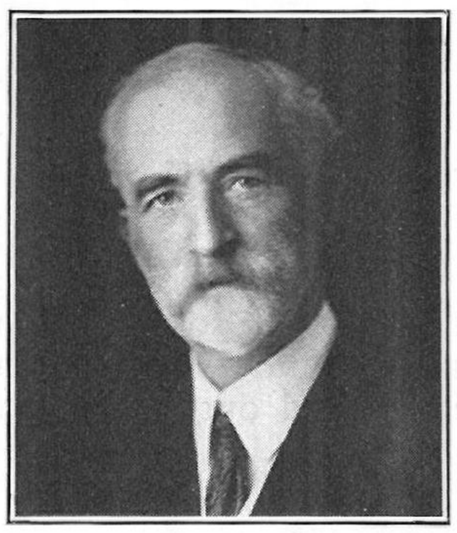

THE PROFESSIONAL RECORD of Carl Edward Magnusson, Dean of the College of Engineering, is an unusually brilliant one and one of manifold inspiration to his many students and colleagues. Dean Magnusson especially desires that the industrial research at Washington—the investigations in the technologic department—shall become an increasingly important factor in developing the State's resources. In that way, through engineering research, Dean Magnusson aims to make this place a hearth of new ideas, that through continued development we may take the lead here.

Last summer Dean Magnusson was a member of the American Committee of the World Power Conference which was held in London. After the conference he toured the continent with twenty-four other engineers of international prominence who directed their attention especially to the hydraulic power feats achieved in Sweden and Norway.

Dean Magnusson's career is an interesting one to follow. He is a Fellow in the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and during 1920-1921 was Vice-President. At present he is chairman of the Water Power committee for the Seattle Chamber of Commerce. He was with the General Electric Co., 1911-12; with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1917; and was consulting engineer for the American Nitrogen Products Co., 1917-18. He received his training at the University of Minnesota and the University of Wisconsin where he received his Ph. D. degree in 1900, and later studied under Dr. C. P. Steinmetz of Schenectady, N. Y.

Dean Magnusson has been Director of the Engineering Department Experiment Station since 1917; chairman of the University Research committee since 1920 and President of the University Research Society since 1923. His published works are: "Alternating Currents," which is to come out this spring in its third edition, and "Electric Transients," besides twenty-six technical papers and bulletins published in the last twenty years.

Edmond S. Meany, Professor of History

"THE KEEPER OF WASHINGTON'S TRADITIONS" has become Professor Edmond S. Meany's title during the long years he has been associated with the University of Washington. Locally he is known as the guiding light of Washington spirit—while nationally he has received recognition as an outstanding professor in the field of history, and as an author. His name has appeared in "Who's Who in America" since 1908.

On the campus Professor Meany is revered by the students to whom he administers the Ephebic Oath, and for whom he originated Campus Day in 1904; by the Juniors for whom he plants the tree on Junior Day and writes a poem inspired by the occasion, which he has done for twenty years; and by the Seniors for whom he officiates as Grand Marshal on Commencement Day. National fame, however, has come in part, with the publication of thirteen notably prominent works, which have appeared from 1900-1923.

That history, in revealing the solutions of the problems of the past enables students to cope more successfully with problems of the future through supplying them with new courage and hope, is Professor Meany's belief and he strives to interpret history with that aim in view. Since 1897, when the History department was established and Professor Meany was installed as Professor, it has had an unusual growth.

For the past 15 years—ever since the Washington Historical Quarterly was started—Professor Meany has been its editor. Professor Meany is also President of the Mountaineers, a Seattle Scout Commissioner and a member and officer of a number of national associations.

Professor Meany obtained his B. S. degree from the Territorial University of Washington in 1885, and M. S. in 1899. He received the degree of Master of Letters from the University of Wisconsin. In 1894 he was made Secretary to the Board of Regents, and ever since that date he has been primarily engaged in promoting the interests of Washington to whom he has devoted his entire life and service, motivated solely by the unselfish ideal of a grander and broader University.

Charles C. More, Professor of Engineering

UPON GRADUATION from Lafayette College with the degree of C. E., Professor Charles Church More was awarded a Graduate Scholarship at Cornell University where he worked for a year, and received the degree of M. C. E.

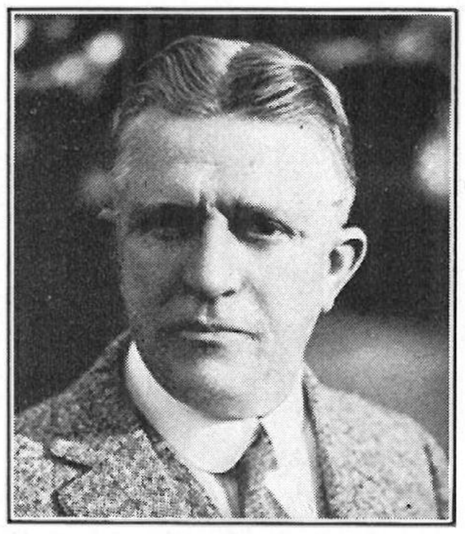

Professor More first came to the University of Washington in 1900 as Acting Professor of Civil Engineering and since 1917 he has been head of the department. While engaged in engineering practice at various times, the greater part of his work was with the following concerns: Pencoyd Iron Works and American Bridge Company, Philadelphia (steel bridge work); D. H. Burnham & Co., Architects, Chicago (steel building work); United States Engineering Department, Fort Warden, Wash., (fortification work); Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Ry. Co., Seattle, (bridge and building work); Turner Construction Co., New York, (reinforced concrete building work).

As Captain in the Engineering Reserve Corps, Professor More entered active service in 1917. For ten months Professor Moore was stationed at the Engineer School, U. S. A., at Camp Humphreys, Virginia, as Senior Instructor in Engineering Mechanics. His students were officers of the Regular Army and were all West Point graduates. That he might install the method of teaching Engineering Mechanics which had been developed at the University of Washington before the war, Professor More was detailed to the Engineer School. This method had received favorable mention in a report given before the Joint Committee on Engineering Education of the National Engineering Societies.

Professor More is a member of numerous National Engineering Societies, Phi Kappa Psi, Sigma Xi, Tau Beta Pi, and Phi Beta Kappa; and served the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa as treasurer the first two years after its installation.

W. D. Moriarty, Professor of Economics

AS THE AUTHOR of two books, through his work in advanced economic theory, and innovations in merchandising and advertising, Professor Moriarty has established for himself a preeminent place on the University faculty as well as among national leaders in economic thought.

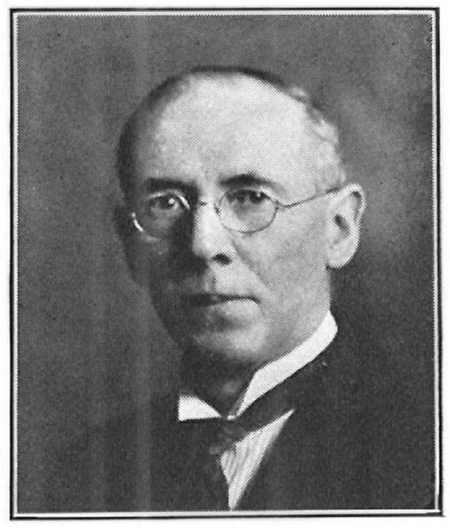

Perhaps one of the most interesting things Professor Moriarty has done since he has been at Washington, has been the arrangement he has made with Marshall Field, of Chicago, whereby apprentices in advertising are assured positions there without application, on his recommendation. The establishment of the apprenticeship system in merchandising is also due to Professor Moriarty.

Besides the text, "Economics of Marketing and Advertising," published in 1923, which is now used in many leading universities in the country, Professor Moriarty has written another book which will be ready for use next fall, "Economics for Citizenship," designed for high school seniors.

Professor Moriarty has been on the Washington faculty since 1919, as head of the marketing department. His work at the University of Michigan with which he was connected from 1908 to 1917, as assistant professor of English and Economics, was developed particularly along the lines of commercial correspondence, sales and office management, and advertising. He received his degree of doctor of philosophy from the University of Michigan in 1909.

As a member of numerous honor societies and associations Professor Moriarty's name is nationally known and is synonymous with the development of a closer understanding of University and business men.

Robert E. Moritz, Professor of Mathematics

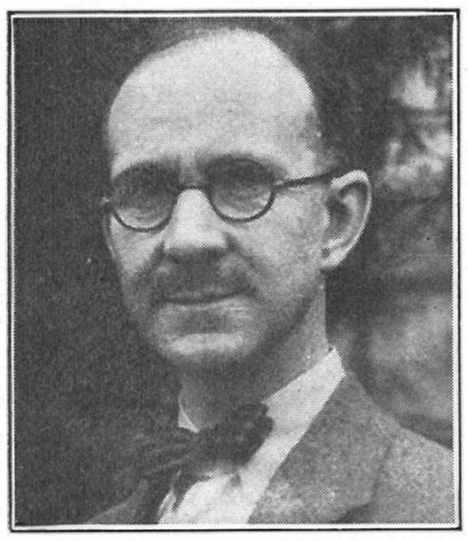

"EVEN RHETORIC BOWS TO NUMBER"—so states Dr. Robert E. Moritz in his article on "The Variation and Functional Relation of Certain Sentence-Constants in Standard Literature," and it might be added that he has been instrumental through his work in sentence-constants in achieving the result stated above. Much light has been thrown on the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy and on the problem of some of Chaucer's writings as to whom the writings should be attributed. The solution has been reached by mathematicians, among whom Dr. Moritz prominently figures, who have analyzed the cadence of an author's style, and through its reduction to numbers, have been able to classify various writings and settle age-old disputes.

"Wer Ists"—Germany's "Who's Who,"—which is regarded as the highest possible international rating of eminent men, includes the name of Dr. Moritz. His biography is also contained in the International Who's Who, and American Men of Science, as well as "Who's Who in America." His publications have been numerous and are highly regarded by authorities in the field of mathematics. His books include: "Memorabilia Mathematica," "Elements of Plane Trigonometry," "Short Course in Mathematics," and "Plane and Spherical Trigonometry." Thirty-four of his scientific papers and nineteen of his educational papers have appeared in various American and foreign magazines. His reputation is wide-spread as the inventor of an instrument for tracing cyclic-harmonic curves—the cyclo-harmono-graph—which has proved an invaluable aid to the study of higher mathematics.

After graduating from college, Dr. Moritz studied further in five different Universities, receiving the degree of Master of Philosophy from the University of Chicago, Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Nebraska, and Doctor of Natural Science from the University of Strassburg, Germany. Dr. Moritz has been on the University faculty since 1904, as Professor of Mathematics. Such an interesting career as his creditably reflects upon the institution of which he is a member.

Frederick M. Padelford, Dean, Graduate School

DR. FREDERICK MORGAN PADELFORD is inextricably bound up with the aims and traditions of Washington. He has been here in the capacity of Professor of English and head of the English department since 1901, and as Dean of the Graduate School since 1920. During those years he has developed a high intellectual standard for students in that department, and with the establishment of the rapidly growing Graduate School, he has brought added repute to Washington.

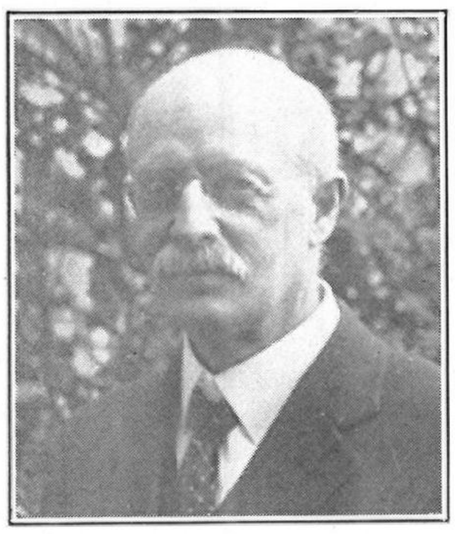

His most important project on which he is now at work is the editing of the first volume of a Spenserian edition, which will contain an exhaustive study of the poetry of Edmund Spenser. This work is the joint product of six men prominent in the field of literature, Doctor Padelford being the editor of the first book of the Faerie Queene, the first volume to come out, which will be published this summer.

Doctor Padelford was also a joint editor of "The Modern Students' Book of Literature," which was published last spring. In addition, he is the author of many other well known and widely used books.

Before coming to Washington in 1901, Doctor Padelford was a member of the faculty of the University of Idaho for the two preceding years as Professor of English. He did intensive research work at the British Museum and at Oxford from 1905 to 1906. He received his Master's degree from Colby and his Ph. D. degree from Yale in 1899; he was a Fellow at Yale from 1898-9.

During his residence in Seattle, Doctor Padelford has been president of the Seattle Fine Arts Association, and a trustee of the Seattle Public Library: he is a member of the National Institution of Social Sciences, of Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Phi Beta Kappa.

Oliver H. Richardson, Professor of History

DR. OLIVER H. RICHARDSON'S professional interests lie chiefly in four fields of history in which he has specialized and in which he has always been keenly interested: English Constitutional History, European History from 1870 to the World War, Mary Queen of Scots, and certain aspects of Prussian History. He has been Professor of European History at the University of Washington since 1909.

Dr. Richardson is a graduate of Yale, of the class of '89, and received both his Master's and Doctor's degrees from Heidelberg, Germany.

Before coming to Washington, Dr. Richardson's academic appointments included: Instructor in History and Political Economy, Colorado College; Professor of History, Drury College; Assistant Professor of History at Yale until 1909, when he came to Washington where he has remained.

A large number of Dr. Richardson's Historical Critiques have appeared in the American Historical Review. In 1897 he published the book "The National Movement in the Reign of Henry III and Its Culmination in the Barons' War." A later work is the "Syllabus of Continental European History from the Fall of Rome to 1870." A few of his other writings are: "Religious Toleration in Brandenburg, Prussia, and Its Material Rewards"; "Lord Acton's Obiter Dicta on History"; "Mary Queen of Scots"; and "History and the Fine Arts."

As a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Richardson was a charter member of the local chapter, and twice president of it. He is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society of England, a member of the American Historical Association, and Vice-President of the Pacific Coast Branch in 1917-18, and at the present time. On the campus Dr. Richardson was chairman of the Assembly Committee for several years, and he had full charge of the exercises at the Inauguration of President Suzzallo. The interest and energy he has expended on local activities is well known and appreciated by the students for and with whom he has worked.

Milnor Roberts, Dean, College of Mines

SINCE DEAN MILNOR ROBERTS has been on the faculty of Washington, from 1901 to the present time, as Dean of the College of Mines, he has had official duties at most of the expositions and has been an officer in all of the mining engineering organizations, both local and national. He began mining as a boy in Colorado, and since his graduation has served as Consulting Engineer for many companies and as expert in important mining and smelting litigation.

One of the greatest inspirations to Washington's internationally known crew men, and to all of Washington's famous athletes in recent years, may well be said to be the cooperation they have received from Dean Roberts as chairman of the Athletic Committee, which position he held for thirteen years. During that time Washington engaged some of its most famous coaches and became prominent in all sports. A coaching barge designed by Dean Roberts for Coach Conibear is thought to be the first of its type ever built and was the model for the present barges that are used quite generally.

Dean Roberts' vital interest in Washington's many activities has been expressed in a number of ways. He is one of the founders of Oval Club, and has also always had charge of the actual operations on Campus Day as "Major-General" under "General" Meany. The first grandstand Washington ever had was designed and built by Dean Roberts, as was the combined shell and canoe house, now used as the canoe house.

Dean Roberts has edited and written a number of bulletins and has had many articles published on mining and allied subjects in scientific journals. His article which appeared in the National Geographic Magazine entitled "A Wonderland of Glaciers and Snow" is one of the first published descriptions of Mt. Rainier in winter. "Who's Who in Engineering" and "American Men of Science" include Dean Roberts' name, as well as "Who's Who in America." It may rightly be said that the ever spreading reputation of the College of Mines is largely due to Dean Roberts' undivided interest, which he has always unselfishly devoted to its development, that his aims and ideals for it might be more immediately realized.

Stevenson Smith, Professor of Psychology

ONE OF THE MOST HELPFUL pieces of work ever done on the campus which exerts a powerful influence on the lives of about 1,000 people a year is under the direction of Dr. Stevenson Smith, head of the Psychology department. This is the Psychological Clinic, or Gatzert Foundation for Child Welfare. Every year hundreds of children, as well as adults are tested in the Clinic, for the purpose of aiding them in adjusting themselves to their environment. Cases involving conduct, speech and various anomalies of habit formation are constantly before the Clinic, and the responsibility for the prescribed treatment for all such cases rests with Dr. Smith.

Dr. Smith has also been the Psychologist to the Seattle Juvenile Court since 1911, and during 1918-19 he was in charge of the intelligence testing of the Thirteenth Naval District. He has been a member of the Washington faculty since 1911 as head of the Department of Psychology. The five years preceding his coming to Washington he was Professor of Psychology at Hampden-Sidney College, Hampden-Sidney, Virginia, and was an Assistant in Psychology at Columbia from 1905-06.

Dr. Smith received the degree of Bachelor of Science from the University of Pennsylvania in 1904. He continued his graduate work at the University of Heidelberg, Germany, at Columbia University and received his Doctor's degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1909.

During 1923-24 Dr. Smith was Professor of Clinical Psychology at the University of Hawaii. His work now as director of the clinic is an all-time demanding enterprise and the numerous readjustments that are made through it are contributing in many ways toward the betterment of the community and of Seattle as a whole, both physically and mentally.

M. Lyle Spencer, Director, School of Journalism

A VARIED CAREER covering a wide range was Dr. M. Lyle Spencer's before he came to the University as Director of the School of Journalism. After graduating from Kentucky Wesleyan College, he continued his work at Northwestern University where he received his Master's degree, and at the University of Chicago, where he took the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

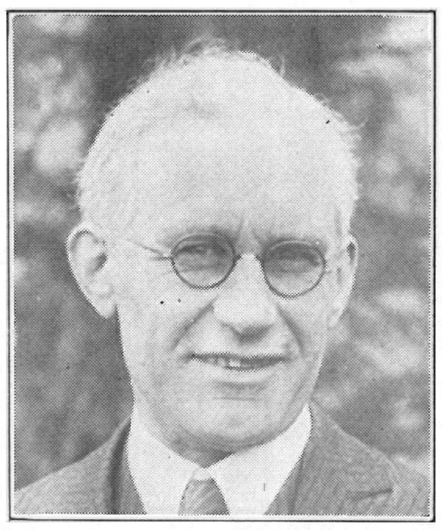

Dr. Spencer taught in various capacities at Kentucky Wesleyan College, and was a Fellow in English at the University of Chicago at different times, after which he became Assistant Professor of English at Wofford College, South Carolina. He was also Professor of English at the Woman's College of Alabama at Montgomery, and at Lawrence College, Appleton, Wisconsin. As reporter, copyreader, and editorial writer he worked on the Milwaukee Journal for four years.

During the war Dr. Spencer held a captain's commission in the Army. After his return from active service he became Director of the School of Journalism at this University in 1919.

As an author, Dr. Spencer is well known for his texts, "News Writing" and "Editorial Writing," both of which are used in all parts of the country in journalism courses. He also has written "Corpus Christi Pageants in England" and "Practical English Punctuation." He edited "Simms' Yemassee," and has contributed many articles to educational and literary magazines.

The annual High School Conference which has developed into a convention of great size under the direction of the Associated Students, was an idea originally conceived by Dr. Spencer who planned, before it attained such large proportions, that it should be held under the supervision of the School of Journalism. Many other innovations in journalistic work on the campus are due to Dr. Spencer, who is striving constantly for a broader training of Journalism majors.

David Thomson, Dean, College of Liberal Arts

AS DEAN of the College of Liberal Arts David Thomson is head of the College with the largest enrollment in the University. A vast majority of the students who enter college to attain a cultural background during their four years here are registered in the College of Liberal Arts, and it is for these students that Dean Thomson has arranged the courses in the college that they may provide for them the fullest possible mental development in the short time allotted to them.

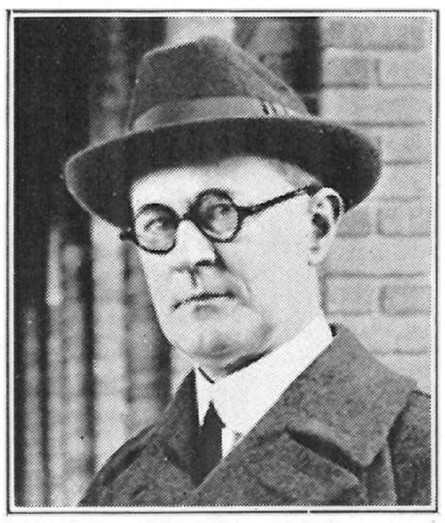

It is Dean Thomson's hope now for the College of Liberal Arts to some day have on the faculty a man who will arouse general interest in art in the large sense—to give the students some help in the way of general appreciation,—to make of the students cultivated laymen with ideals and hopes and a general comprehension of music, painting and sculpture. The College of Liberal Arts now offers one a general education which will stand one in good stead no matter what line of work one enters, Dean Thomson believes, and feels that the purpose of the College of Liberal Arts is the cultivation of the emotions which is rather passed over in professional training.

Dean Thomson has been on the Washington faculty since 1902. He has been a member of the Board of Control for twelve years and of the Students' Affairs committee.

Dean Thomson is a member of the American Philological Association, Washington State Philological Association, Psi Upsilon and Phi Beta Kappa. He received his degree of B. A. with first class honors from the University of Toronto in 1892. During the years 1899-1902 he was a student at the University of Chicago and was an assistant in Latin at Chicago from 1901 to 1902. From 1908-09 he studied at Munich. He has been Professor of Latin since 1902 and dean of the College of Liberal Arts since 1917 at the University of Washington, and has been nationally selected as outstanding in his work for which he has been placed in "Who's Who in America."

Hugo Winkenwerder, Dean, College of Forestry

THAT THE STATE OF WASHINGTON now has a definite forest policy is due entirely to the efforts and work of Dean Hugo Winkenwerder, Dean of the College of Forestry. He organized and managed the State Forestry Conference, and through a number of committees this Conference has made a thorough study of all phases of the forestry situation in the State, besides contributing greatly to the welfare of the State in forestry matters. The Conference is now working for conditions which will enable private timberland owners to practice forestry on their logged-off lands. Dean Winkenwerder has been chairman of the Conference since its origin in 1922.

Dean Winkenwerder has been connected with the University since 1909. Before that time he was Assistant Professor of Forestry at Colorado College, and previous to that he was in charge of the education of the United States Forest Service. He received his M. F. degree from the Yale School of Forestry.

At present Dean Winkenwerder is supervisor of Reforestation with the Cedar River Watershed, chairman of the Education Committee for the Society of American Foresters, and has been a member of the Board of Trustees of the Natural Parks Association since 1920. He was a collaborator in the United States Forest Service from 1908-1914 and was vice chairman of the Washington State Forest Board from 1923-24. In 1902 he wrote and published "The Migration of Birds," and in 1907 "Forestry in the Public Schools." A later book was "Forests and American History," In 1915, with E. T. Clark, he wrote "Problems in Forest Mensuration" which recently came out in its second edition.

Dean Winkenwerder's work has contributed steadily to the solution of national and state forestry problems, and it is well recognized that his interest has made the Washington School of Forestry a leading one in the United States.

Howard B. Woolston, Professor of Sociology

PERHAPS no one could claim a more interesting career than that of Dr. Howard B. Woolston. At present a Professor of Sociology, he started out in life with the intention of entering the clergy. His investigations centered upon the psychology of religion, which in turn led on to sociology. After receiving the degrees of B. A. from Yale and S. T. B. from the University of Chicago, he was offered a Fellowship at Harvard in the Psychology of Religion. The next two years he spent abroad at Paris and Berlin where he continued in the fields of Social Science, Philosophy and Sociology.

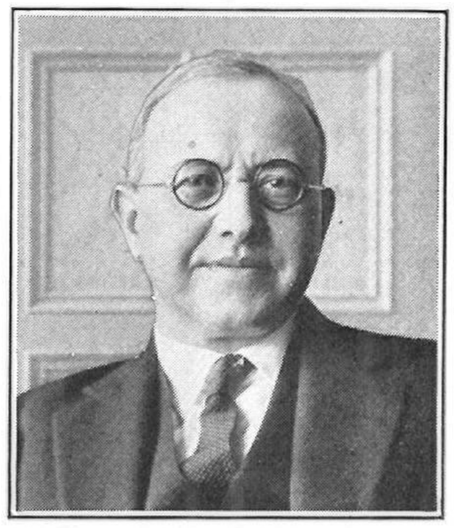

After returning to the United States he directed school extension and neighborhood work in Roxbury, Mass. Later he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at Columbia and, immediately after, entered the faculty of the City College of New York where he remained for nine years as Professor of Sociology and Statistics until the world war began.

In 1918, Dr. Woolston entered the service as a statistician of the Red Cross Bureau of Tuberculosis as a Major. Later he became manager of the bureau for the relief of the Serbian refugees, and went with the Red Cross into the Balkans to aid in the reconstruction of an almost entirely destroyed nation. For this worthy service, Dr. Woolston was decorated Officer, Order of St. Sava—a Serbian honor.

Dr. Woolston's pet project is the establishment of a Social Science Institute through which one can chart the social movements in Seattle, and which will reveal the tendencies of poverty, crime and other evils. This will be modeled after Dr. Geddes' "Outlook Tower" in Edinburgh, which attempts to focalize and interpret the life of the city to its people. Dr. Woolston is now at work on a book "Relief, Reform and Reconstruction," and is just completing a book on "Urban Sociology." He is a member of Zeta Psi, American Sociology Society and Phi Beta Kappa.

Henry Suzzallo, President of the University

IT SEEMS FITTING that we should close our section of Washington's famous men with the name of Dr. Henry Suzzallo, President of the University. That Washington has achieved "national significance under the leadership of President Suzzallo"—to quote from the Journal of Education—is a result of the infusion of his idealistic and energetic spirit into all its activities, and the readiness of the faculty and students of this University to absorb his aspirations and hopes and to make them part of their own. His work as a leader in thought and action has brought renown to our institution and his new honors constantly reflect new glory on the University of Washington.

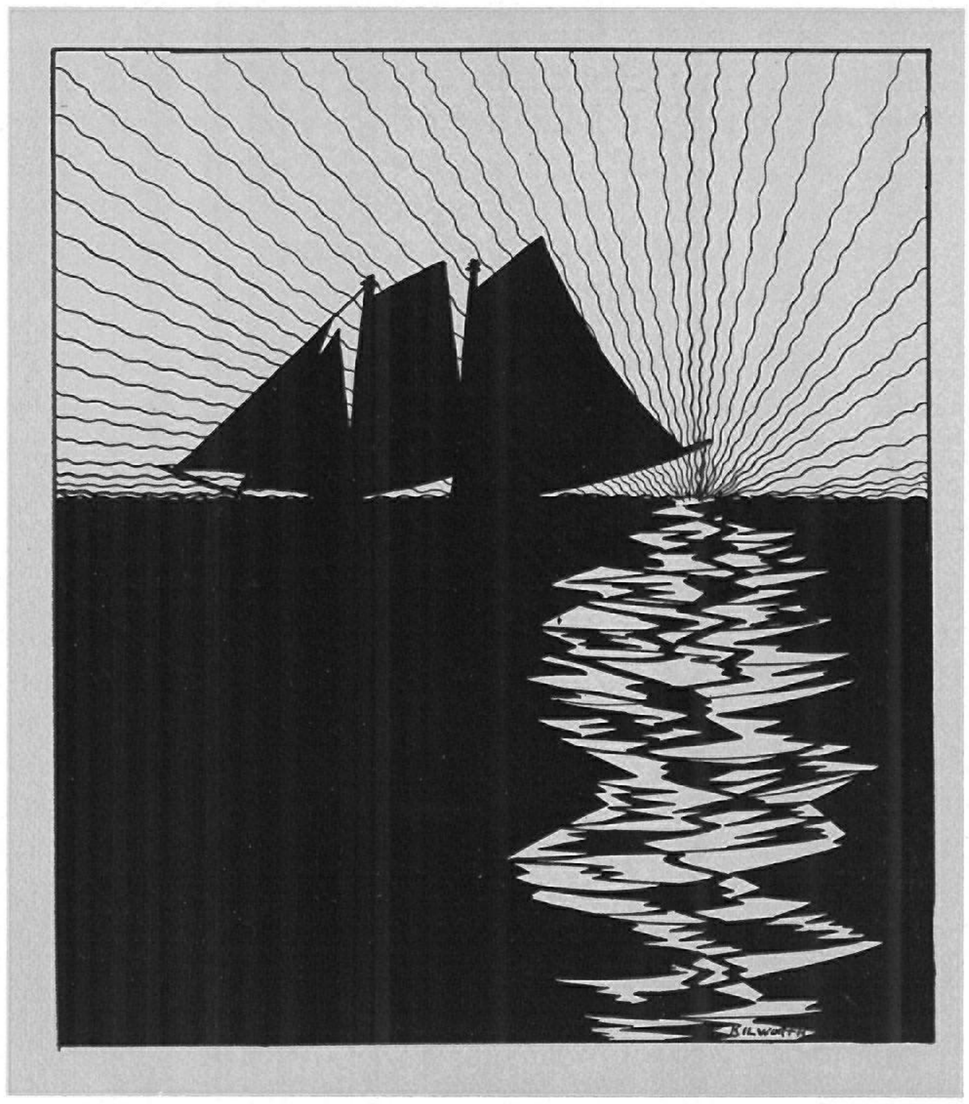

Dr. Suzzallo is widely known for the versatile and effective quality of his public services both in the United States and abroad. He is an Elector of the Hall of Fame; Honorary Vice-President and Director, National Committee for the Prevention of blindness; a Member of the National Institute of Social Sciences; Board of Visitors for the U. S. Naval Academy; the National Rehabilitation Committee of the American Legion; the Educational Policy Committee of the Council of Schools of Religion; the Advisory Committee of University and College Presidents on Summer Military Training, and National Educational Committee Boy Scouts of America.

At one time or another within recent years Dr. Suzzallo has served as Member at Large, Division of States Relations of the National Research Council; as President of the National Association of State Universities; as one of the Committee of One Hundred of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; and as Member of the Honorary Committee of the American Bible Anniversary Celebration.

With interests that reach beyond the commonwealth and the nation, President Suzzallo's services have been given international outlet and recognition. Dr. Suzzalllo has served on the Dante Commemorative Committee of the Italy-America Society and has been decorated as a Knight Commander of the Order of the Crown of Italy. As a Trustee of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching he has served Canada and Newfoundland as well as the United States. He is a Correspondent of the Royal Society of Literature, London, and member of the Advisory Board of the English Speaking Union. The university of Heidelberg, has recently appointed him a member of the Advisory Committee for its International Institute, and he is now the American Representative on the Educational Survey Commission of the Government of the Philippines.

In addition to his services as educational executive and publicist, Dr. Suzzallo has performed extensive editorial services. He has edited seventy volumes of the Riverside Educational Monographs and six volumes of the Houghton Mifflin Professional Library, and has also been a Contributing Editor for the Lincoln Library and a Departmental Editor for the Cyclopedia of Education. He is the author of several series of school texts and has recently published "Our Faith in Education," which is an exposition of the American attitude toward public education.

Dr. Suzzallo is a graduate of Stanford University, and received the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy at Columbia University. He was an Assistant Professor at Stanford University, and later an Adjunct Professor and Head Professor at Columbia University. He occupied the Chair of Philosophy of Education in the Teachers' College and the Faculty of Political Science in Columbia University where he was responsible for the first development of the field of Educational Sociology. In 1915 he came to the University of Washington as President and since that date it is with ever growing interest that the University plays the part of spectator and participator in the many and varied events which mark the public services of the guiding spirit of this institution.

Senior History

WITH a "Who's alive, we're alive, one-nine-two-five," the class of 1925 started out in the traditional manner to show the college that they were here—painting the water-tower, keeping the vigilance committee busy, and further bringing down "glory" upon their heads by abducting the Soph Siren, which they returned "by request."

In April, by selling tags on Paddle Day, they raised the money to bring the California Frosh crew north and then beat that crew by eight lengths. The outstanding social events of the year for the class were the two Freshman Mixers and the Frosh Frolic.

The Sophomore year was marked by the Sophshindig, the Skeleton Skip, and the cruising party in May. January 11 was "Soph Hello" Day when each Sophomore greeted with a "Hello, Soph," any one distinguished by the class badge.

Among the social affairs of the third year were the Junior Jinx in November, the Junior-Senior Round-up in January, and the Junior party in April. Junior Day, May 24, was a success with its class breakfast, carnival, water sports, honoring of the Queen and the concluding dance.

The Prom given by the members of '25 was called the Chauve-Souris, following the Russian motif throughout. The J. G. V., one of the most profitable ever produced, was presented two nights in Meany Hall, February 29 and March 1.

A distinctive class garb, red vests with the numerals in gold, was adopted and worn throughout the third year.

With the coming of the fourth year, the Seniors of 1925 decided that by that time some of them had earned the right to recognition and that elections of popularity should not be confined to class queens but the honors should be passed around. So in November a hotly contested election was held for the following dignitaries: best looking man, best looking girl, class politician, best man dancer, best girl dancer, man with the biggest feet, man with the most powerful physique, girl with the best line and the biggest fusser.

Charity work played a prominent part in the activities of the Seniors. Shine Day, when eminent fourth-year men and women knelt and blacked boots, brought in fifty dollars for the Orthopedic Hospital.

The Junior-Senior Round-up and the Senior Soiree, exclusively a class function, were the two main social events of the last year. June 13, Class Day, and June 15, Commencement, ended Senior year and college life for the class of 1925.

Junior History

THE JUNIOR CLASS this year adopted the policy of appointing a new social committee for each social function instead of having one permanent committee for all occasions.

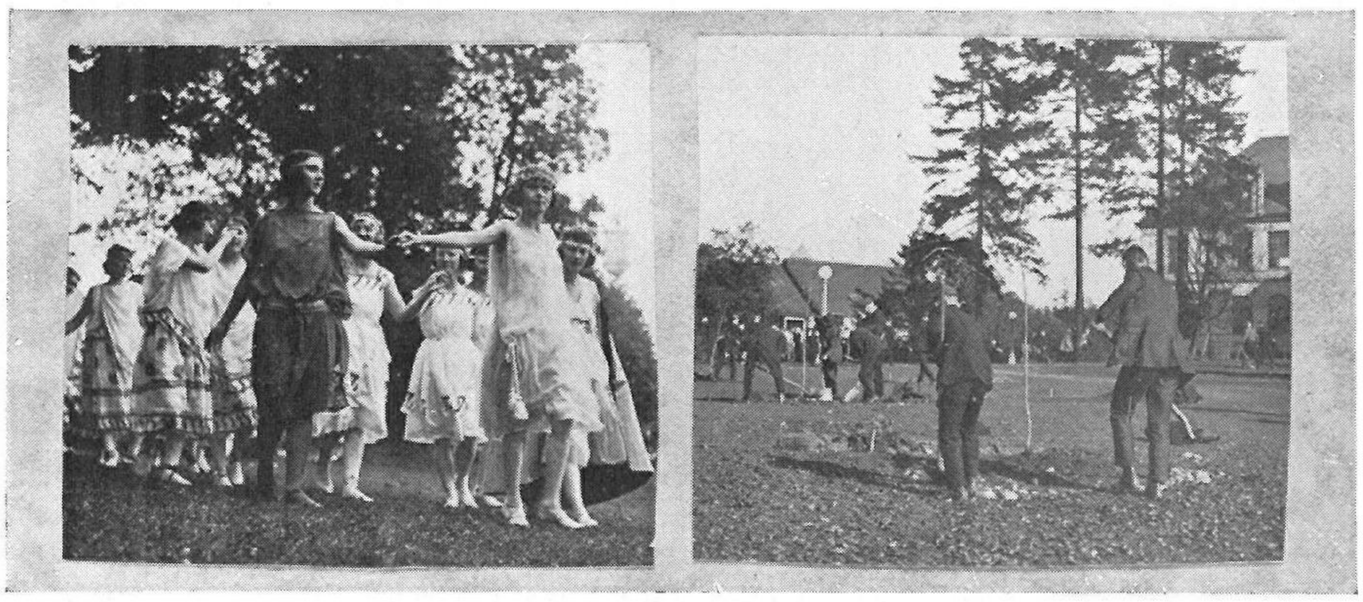

"Bo" Wilson was chairman of the first dance committee, the Junior Jinks, which was held on November 15, at the Women's University Club.

Norma Davis as Vice-President of the Junior class had charge of the Junior Girl's Vodvil which was given at the Metropolitan theatre on March 6 and 7. It was in the nature of a review with two big acts and an intermission between.

The Junior-Senior Round-up was held on February 14, with John Swan as chairman of the committee.

The next big Junior event was the Junior Prom held on February 20, at The Olympic Hotel. It was the decision of the committee that the Prom should not be designated by a special name and that the keynote of the dance be simplicity. Owing to the fact that the Prom was given in The Olympic Hotel only floral decorations were used. Carl Carlson was chairman of the Prom committee.

Plans were made for the Junior Day to surpass all others. Fortunately for the class of 1926, the Amateur Athletic Union is holding its meet in Seattle in August, which enables the class to benefit from the use of the accommodations erected for that meet. This means that bleachers with a capacity of 6,500 people will enable the spectators to watch the water sports in comfort. A new steel diving tower will be built which will be given to the University by the class. In former years most of the water events have taken place so that the contestants swam across the canal, but this year special barges are being provided so that they will take place along the length of the canal giving all an opportunity to see them. Arrangements are being made for the usual Mardi Gras on Saturday night.

Sophomore History

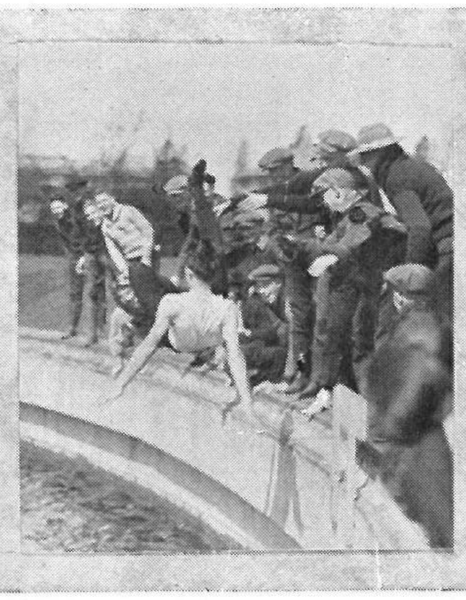

SUPREME in the eyes of the Freshmen; still ridiculous and unnecessary in the eyes of the upperclassmen—the higher-ups of the lower-downs, the class of 1927 entered upon its Sophomore year. Having lost very few of its members from the Freshman class, it proved its supremacy from the very beginning and set standards which should make the class strong and well able to carry on the tremendous amount of work which will be left to it.

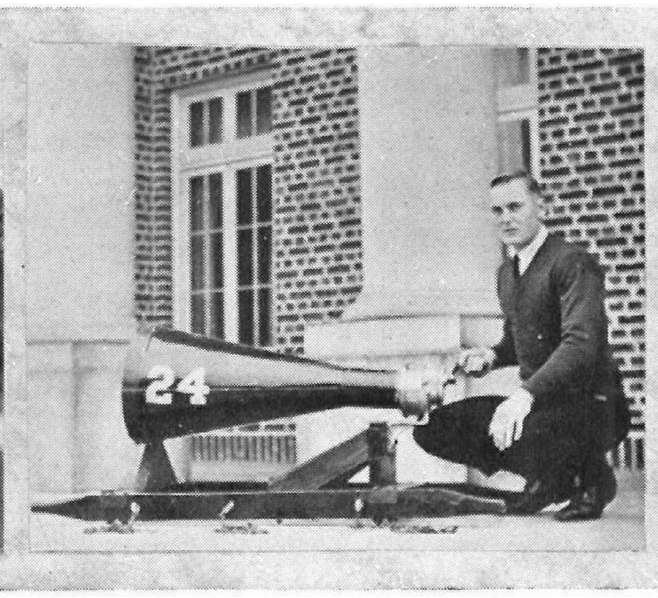

At the first meeting of the year, October 7, Ruben Carlson, the president, announced the class committees. The class garb was not selected until a conference composed of representatives of the four classes met and decided to have permanent class garb. It was decided that Seniors and Juniors were to wear cords, with Sophomores wearing them temporarily for this year.

The Sophomore class was given its golden opportunity to show its superiority on Stadium Day, when it defeated the Freshmen in all but one event.

On January 10, the class gave its first social function of the year, the Soff Sizzle at Little's Hall. The hall which assumed the atmosphere of a night in the nether world would have been an inspiration for Dante had he been seeking a locale for his "Inferno," Hades incarnate, with Satan supreme on a throne of sulphurous flames. Over three hundred enjoyed the unique affair.

In accordance with an old custom the class had a Hello Day on February 27. On this day each member of the class of 1927 made himself known by means of a badge worn on his coat or lapel and this badge was the signal for a cheery greeting from any similarly badged person whom he might pass on the campus. Hello Day stirred interest for a very successful Mixer which was held at the Armory, February 28.

Freshman History

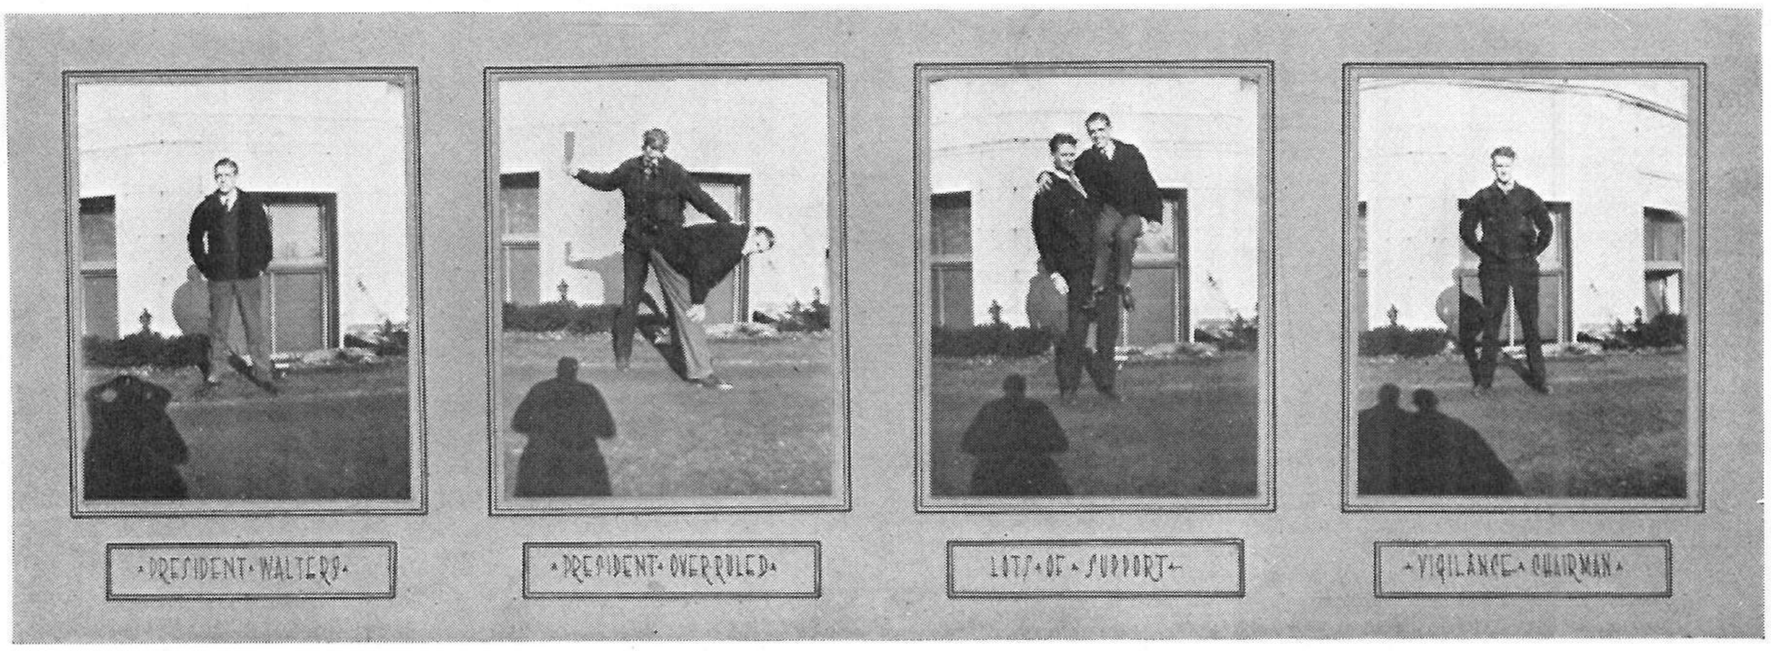

Impressive Discipline

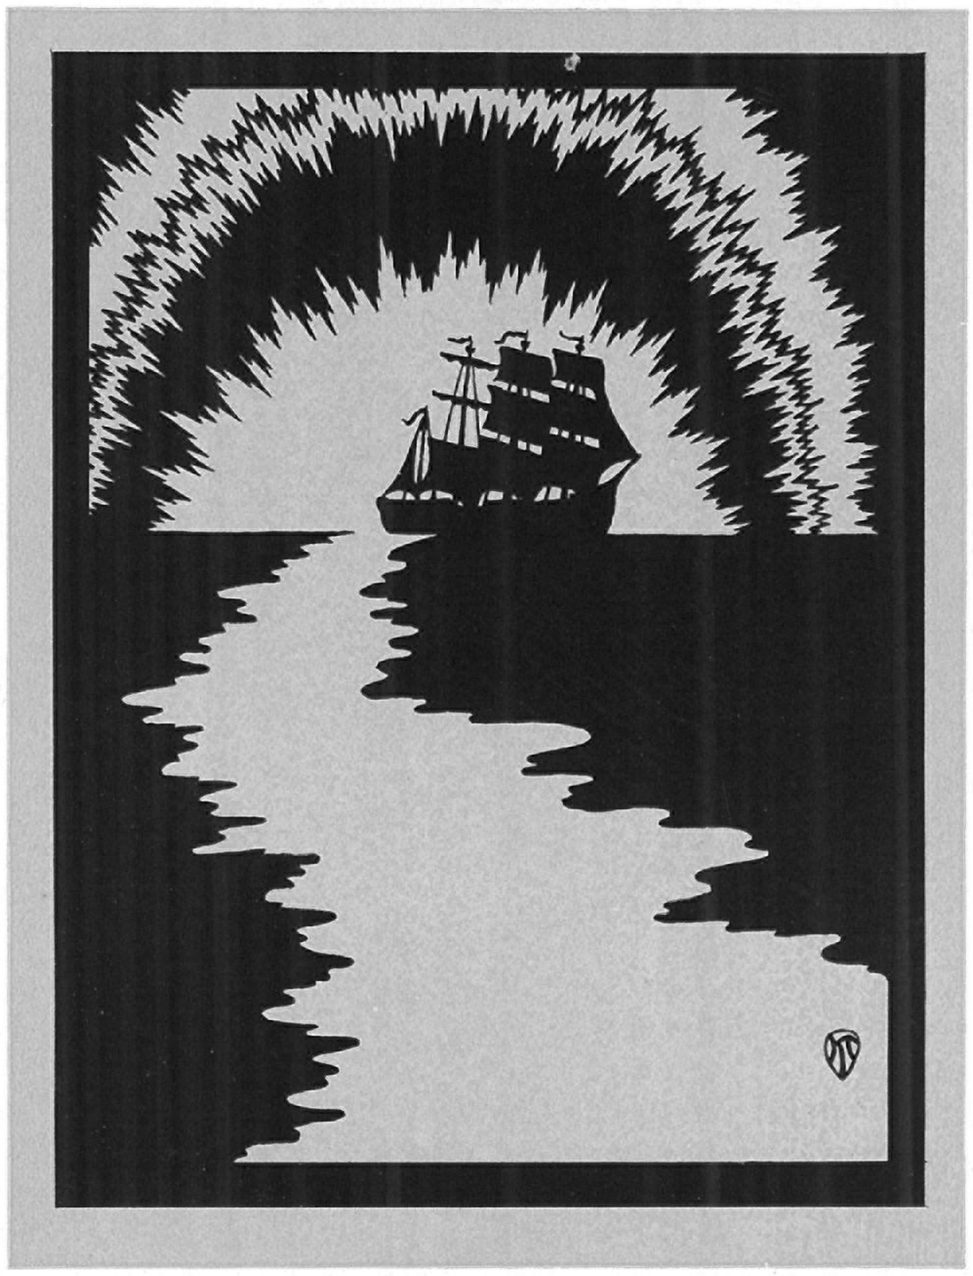

THE FRESHMAN class of 1928 held its first meeting on October 9, to nominate class officers. At this meeting the class promised fidelity and faithfulness to all of Washington's traditions.

In November the class gathered at historic Meany Hall and took the Ephebic Oath from Professor Meany. The watchword given them was "Industry." At this time the green caps and the vigilance committee came into evidence.

Freshman men were enthusiastic over athletics and were successful in capturing the football championship. The class had the greatest football, basketball, and crew turnouts in the history of Washington. It also had a member on the Varsity debate team.

The Frosh Frolic held in the Armory on December 8, on the same night as the Varsity Ball, according to tradition, was the class' first social event. A "Cupid's Cutup" on Valentine's Day, and an Informal in the spring were the only other Freshman dances.

Scholarship

Scholarship at Washington

Interfraternity Cup

Independent Cup

Pan-Hellenic Cup

ETTERING an already high scholastic standing Washington succeeded during the last year in raising the 1923 average by nearly four per cent. The All-U standing for 1923 was 5.80. In 1924 the average was raised to a new high peak of 6.03. Continued advancement in scholarship may be attributed to a number of factors. Increased student interest manifested individually and through organizations, cooperation of high schools in observing higher entrance standards, and home influence have combined to bring about a higher rating.

Three cups are offered annually to organizations having the best averages for the year. The interfraternity cup is awarded the fraternity with the best standing, the Pan-Hellenic cup goes to the sorority highest in scholarship, and the Independent cup is given to the men's independent organizations with the best rating. The Interfraternity cup is in the possession of Acacia, the Pan-Hellenic is held by Kappa Kappa Gamma, and the Tillicums have the Independent cup.

Each organization stresses the value of good grades to its membership. Initiation is, in most cases, subject to the maintainance of good standing for a definite period. Some organizations are offering special awards to members with the highest grades for the year and for scholarship betterment. This phase has not been developed to any extent but gives promise of keener grade competition among house members which will, in turn, better organization averages. At present these prizes range from individual medals to free board and room for a month.

That scholarship will eventually be recognized as an "activity" as much as are sports and other student affairs seems to be the opinion of some members of the faculty and student body. Recognition of merit would be made in much the same way that athletic prowess is rewarded.

In line with the desire to foster scholarship the men's organized houses have formed a Personnel Club. The Club is composed of a representative from each house. The members meet to discuss problems that cannot satisfactorily be settled by the executive staff of the house itself. No attempt is made to foist the advice of the whole group onto a representative. Advice may be taken or not as the delegate sees fit.

The Personnel Club has been in operation but little more than a year but in that time has succeeded in bringing about group action toward higher standings. Members of the Club seem agreed that personal aid to students through tutoring by the older members of the organization will succeed in bettering lower division averages.

The Freshmen classes have been chiefly benefitted by stringent scholarship regulations as has been shown by the fact that the standing for 1924 was the highest ever recorded for a Freshman class since the compiling of statistics was begun at Washington in 1911.

Although competitive conditions have increased steadily, year by year, six Freshmen students succeeded in maintaining an A average for the year. They were: Clothilde Wilson, Margaret Thompson, Clementine Evans, Agnes Hopkins, and Homer Garrison of Seattle; and Albert M. Ottenheimer of Tacoma.

Home newspapers have aided strongly in the pursuit of a high scholastic standing by giving publicity to exceptional scholastic records. Parents have displayed more interest in grades of their sons and daughters and have insisted on better grades.

Closer cooperation between home, student, and University, it is said, will enable still further raising of Washington scholarship. As quickly as plans are formulated that can in any way benefit student standing, means are found of putting them into effect so that there may be no standstill in University standards.

Student Government

A. S. U. W.

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS, UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, INC.

NINETY per cent of the student activities at Washington are operated by an incorporated body known as the Associated Students, University of Washington. All students become members of the Association through the purchase of a $10.00 membership card upon registering. The membership entitles them to free or reduced admission to all student activities.

Students at Washington receive the greatest value possible from their membership in the Association. The admissions covered by the $10.00 A. S. U. W. card would cost an outsider $25.00. Because of the increased interest in the activities of Washington, it is possible to offer this unusual value to the students. It is the policy to purchase only the best materials on the market, and the athletes of Washington are provided with the best equipment that can be purchased.

Darwin Meisnest

The powers of government are vested in a Board of Control composed of nine students, three faculty men, and three alumni members. Board meetings are held regularly twice a month and are presided over by the president, assisted by the vice-president and secretary of the Association. Student members hold office for one year and are elected at spring and fall elections.

The policies of the A. S. U. W. are directed by the Board of Control. The routine management and direction of activities are in the hands of the Graduate Manager and are governed by the Constitution and By-Laws of the organization. The budget system is used in the control of revenue and expenses of the organization and the amount of business transacted has steadily grown from $24,484 in 1914 to $250,000 for this year—a ten-fold increase.

Many non-profit activities have come into the A. S. U. W. in the past several years, and some of the other activities that are not self-supporting such as crew, baseball, intramural athletics, wrestling, women's athletics, Knights of the Hook, dramatics, and similar activities, have required more money because of their increased popularity. Great care must be taken in the management so that the budget is not exceeded and a deficit passed on to the coming generation of students.

The Graduate Manager's office sponsors and is responsible for the management of the activities. This office has grown with the prosperity of the A. S. U. W. from a single room used by the Graduate Manager to a suite of offices in Education Hall. Even this space is not sufficient to properly provide space for the activities managed from that office. All of the latest office systems, used by the most progressive companies, are installed, and the student assistants that are privileged to work in the office acquire a very thorough training in modern office practices.

Darwin Meisnest has been the Graduate Manager for the past six years, and it has been under his direction that expansions have been safely financed. He has coordinated the staffs of the publications, the athletic departments and the student managerial system, and has established a model system for keeping financial and athletic records, which is being followed by neighboring schools.

The Stadium was built in 1920 at a cost of $500,200.00, and it has increased the revenues of the A. S. U. W. nearly three times. The Stadium has proven an exceptional investment for the student body.

Forty per cent of the A. S. U. W. fee is placed in a building fund by the constitution. This fund has been used to retire the bonds on the Stadium, and as soon as this debt is wiped out, plans will be made to provide a students' union building, a basketball pavilion or other facilities which are greatly needed.

Rentals and profits from attractions staged in the Stadium, such as Fourth of July celebrations, Americanus and Wayfarer Pageants, and concerts, have been applied to the Stadium debt. This has resulted in a great saving in interest on the bonds and has reduced this charge from $20,000 a year in 1920 to $7,500 in 1925. This saving has been available for the promotion and expansion of the program of non-profit activities.

Roscoe Torrance

The active supervision and management of the various sports are carried on by a system of student managers. Each sport or activity is in charge of a Senior manager who is responsible to the Graduate Manager, and is assisted by a staff of Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen. The Senior manager is awarded the manager's "W" and he is chosen from among the Junior managers for his ability and fitness for the position. Last year over 250 men took part in the managerial work.

Service is the keynote of the A. S. U. W. staff. Everyone connected with it is working for Washington, and the success of Washington's publications, athletic teams and activities are the result of the efforts of the staff, which is made up of students, faculty and alumni.

The employed officials of the A. S. U. W. are:

Scholastic Government

WITH the continually increasing complexities of student life functions of student governmental bodies become correspondingly greater. As Washington grows greater year by year, the machinery to govern its activities becomes larger and more highly specialized. Besides the Senior Council, the Board of Control, and class offices handled by students, special councils in control of several colleges play an important part in undergraduate self-government.

The Business Administration council is the pioneer in the field. Organized in 1920, it is the oldest and probably most active council on the campus. It acts through its student members in a helpful and advisory manner in all problems pertaining to the B. A. School. A conspicuous feature of the council is a mentor system, which gives an upper-class adviser to each Freshman in the school. Special attention is given entering students by the council.

The Engineers' council is a vital factor in the work of the engineers. The council is composed of two representatives from the departments of Engineering and Science on the lower end of the campus—Electrical Engineering, Chemical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Mines, Fisheries, Mechanical Engineering, and Forestry. It exercises administrative and executive control over the school and its members. The council has been more active this year than ever before, and a definite effort has been made to interest the engineers in the affairs of the upper campus.

The newest departmental council is the Fine Arts council, organized in the spring of 1924. The council is composed of representatives from the six Fine Arts departments. The Fine Arts ball in April was managed by the council.

Men's Athletics

Washington in the World of Sport

By Mose Mesher
Sports Editor of Tyee

WASHINGTON in the World of Sport during 1924-25, that is the story which is told in the pages which follow. It is a permanent record of what the Huskies of this University did on the athletic field, and though it may sound a bit egotistical it is a fact that Tyee's account of the sport year will be the one referred to in years to come when the accomplishments of Washington's teams during the year will have become history.

Considering all, Washington had a successful season in all its phases of sport, and the scribes, "rising young," who scribbled the accounts of football, baseball, tennis and the rest of America's great pastimes, "dug in," picked out of the high lights, features and the necessary angles and handed in concentrated articles of what the Purple and Gold warrior did so that Mr., Miss and Mrs. Fan may know what was what and who was who.

In the athletic section of the 1925 Tyee the reader will see the account that Washington's crew is again Champion of the intercollegiate circuit. Once again the far-Western shell swept to an impressive victory at Poughkeepsie and the crew coached by the former Washington oarsman, Rusty Callow, was rated with the world's best.

And while it is being told of their past accomplishment, this may be in order: Although predicting is risky, a thankless task and an art which has yet to be developed, this much can be said. That from all indications Washington has a good chance, in fact a very good chance, to be again proclaimed intercollegiate champions.

Although not as great as crew in attracting attention to Washington, the feat of the Husky tennis players on the Eastern courts did stamp this school as the maker of raquet wielders who can gain national prominence.

The Purple Tornado, the term that sports writers chose to call Washington's football team, did not win the Pacific Coast football championship, but the men of Enoch Bagshaw did put up a mighty battle for the honors and kept their good record, established during the new regime. The Huskies attracted national attention, as they have done in the past. Walter Camp, considered as a foremost authority on football, picked a Washington man, George Wilson, on his second All-American eleven. He mentioned other Husky gridders as worthy of praise and the Purple team was a feared one up and down the coast.

Next year Washington will travel to the Middle West for a big intersectional game and the year after Nebraska will come to the Stadium. A new addition has been made to Washington's coaching personnel in Bart Spellman, former Oregon mentor, and the Huskies now have a complete experienced staff.

For a long time Washington has been noted for its baseball teams. The Huskies played in the East and across the Pacific. Wherever Washington's ball tossers played in 1924 they made a good impression. The Purple and Gold tossers just barely lost the Conference championship, but Coach Tubby Graves had a powerful nine, nevertheless, and according to the pre-season dope for the 1925 season the amiable Husky mentor will have an aggregation that will be hard to beat.

Coach Hec Edmundson who guides the destinies of both track and basketball always puts teams on the hardwood court and cinder path that give opponents lots of competition.

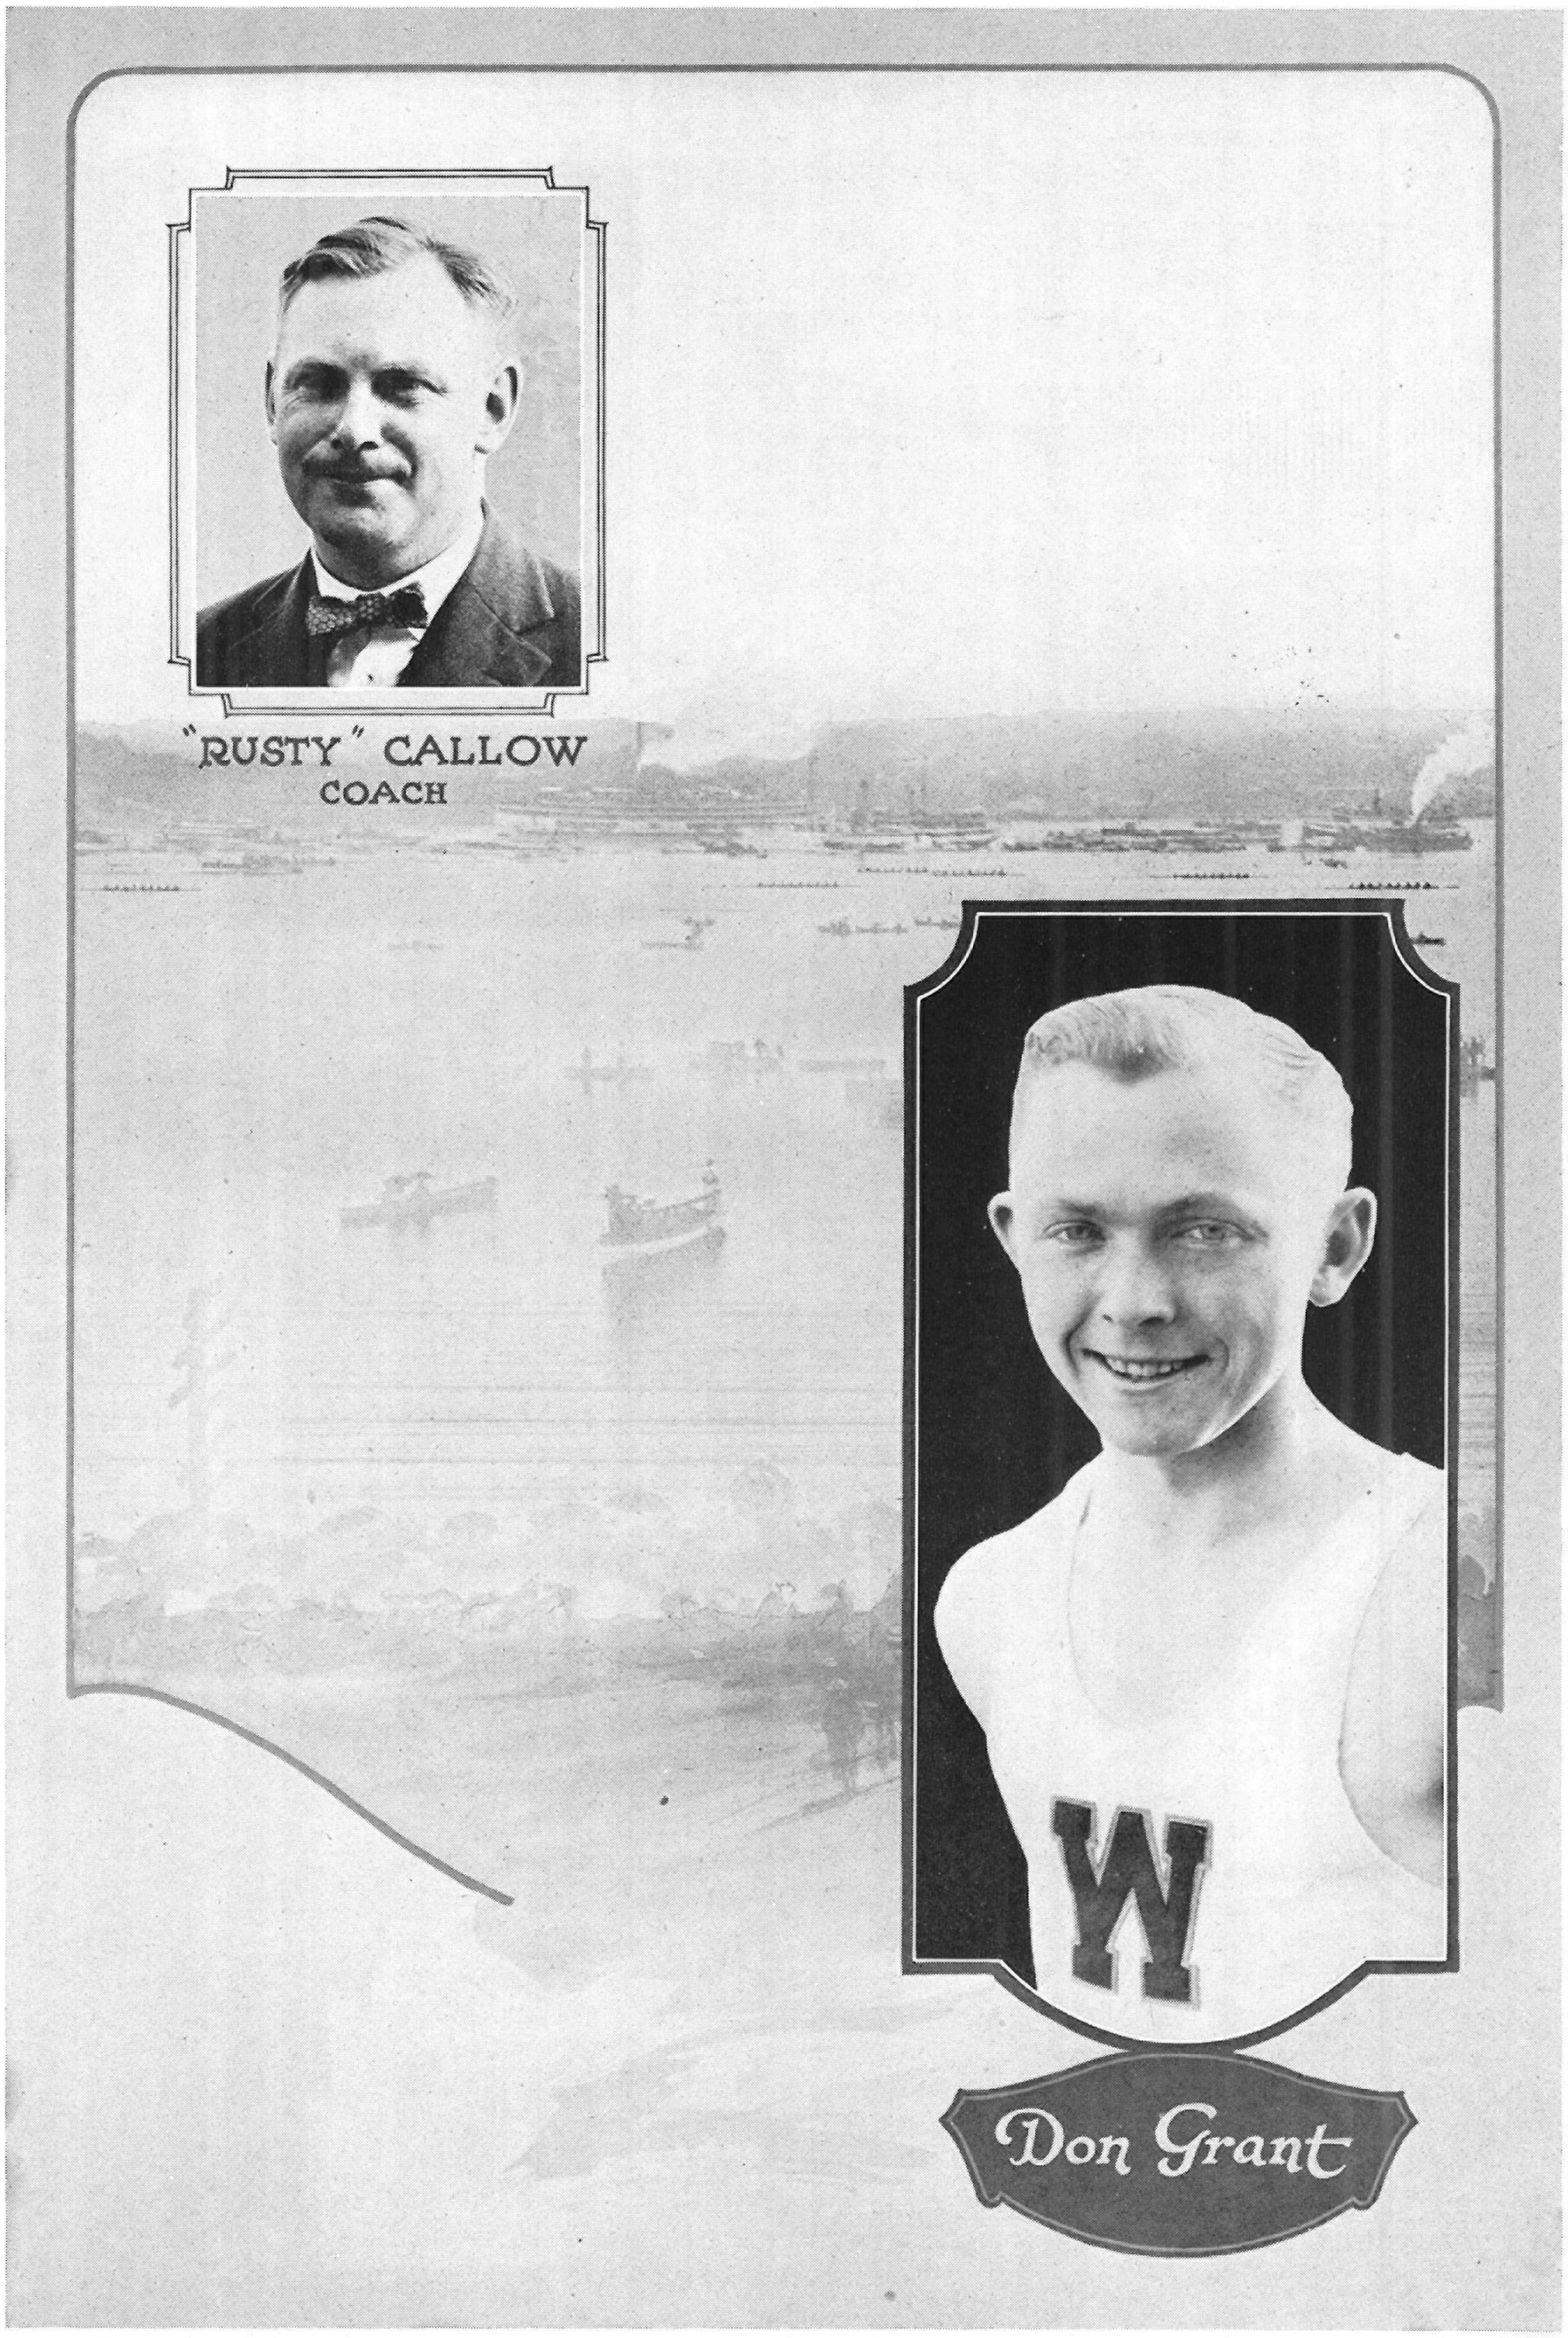

Washington's hoop team this year, was considered as the potential champion for a time, but the Huskies were edged out of the coveted place later in the season, on their road trips. However, the Purple quintet made a good showing and several of the Huskies were mentioned on all-star teams.

In track the local men were nosed out of the Conference meet, but once again the Washington men displayed power and finished close to the top. The 1925 season promises to be an important one for the popular spring sport here. Plans were made for a large program, including the annual Relay Carnival and the Northwest and Pacific Coast Conference championships, which are to be held in the Stadium.

While the athletes are placing Washington in a prominent position University officials are aiding with a big program which is being carried out.

Washington will have a new baseball field soon, as part of the plan for Washington Field, which will have football, track and baseball fields, tennis courts and all the facilities to care for college sports. The shells that college crews fight for honors in are being built at Washington, the football team is taking on opponents from other conferences, the baseball team will play in the Orient again, the State basketball tournament is growing in popularity and a baseball tourney, similar to the hoop play-off, is being worked on.

That in short is what has been done or is being done in the athletic field at the home of the Husky.

Don Grant

Crew in 1924

By Fred Hampson

THE MARCH of Washington in the crew world continued more or less unmolested during the season of 1924. The same powerful sweep that carried Rusty Callow's great 1923 shell to the first Poughkeepsie victory for Washington in 1923, again swept the Husky shell of '24 to the title on the Hudson.

While the Washington crew was probably the best in the school's history it probably received less competition than any champion has had for many seasons.

California, handicapped by a shake-up in the coaching staff, was robbed of a long period of effective training and the shell that Ky Ebright brought north last April could very likely have been defeated by the third Washington boat.

Max Luft

The Varsity race was nothing more or less than a walk-away for our Mr. Callow's cohorts, both Varsity and Frosh-Varsity. The Husky first boat took the race on that rough, windy, April day, by a distance conservatively estimated at somewhere above ten lengths. The time was 16:35.

The personnel of the Washington crew that so handily won this race and the Pacific Coast championship was: Alvin Ulbrickson, stroke; Fred Spuhn, No. 7; Dow Walling, No. 6; Harold Condon, No. 5; Max Luft, No. 4; Harrison Sanford, No. 3; Roland France, No. 2; Harry John Dutton, bow; and Captain Donald Grant, coxswain.

While the Varsity victory was expected, the Husky babes were not doped to have an easy time of it. Coach Ebright pinned all his hopes on his Freshman boat. California was resigned to a Varsity defeat but they hoped for and wanted a Freshman win.

The Washington boat took the water for the two-mile spin conceded at best only a 50-50 chance. The starter's "go" sent the two crews into action—and for at least 50 yards there was promise of a close race.

However as soon as the Husky pups settled down to work there was no more question of who would win than there had been in the Varsity race. At the mile point the Washingtonians had already won the race and they crossed the finish line nearly ten lengths in the lead.

The personnel of the Freshman boat was: stroke, McGuinness; No. 7, Horsfall; No. 6, Quast; No. 5, Keith; No. 4, Thompson; No. 3, Sparling; No. 2, Barnett; bow, Captain Powers; coxswain, Blethen.

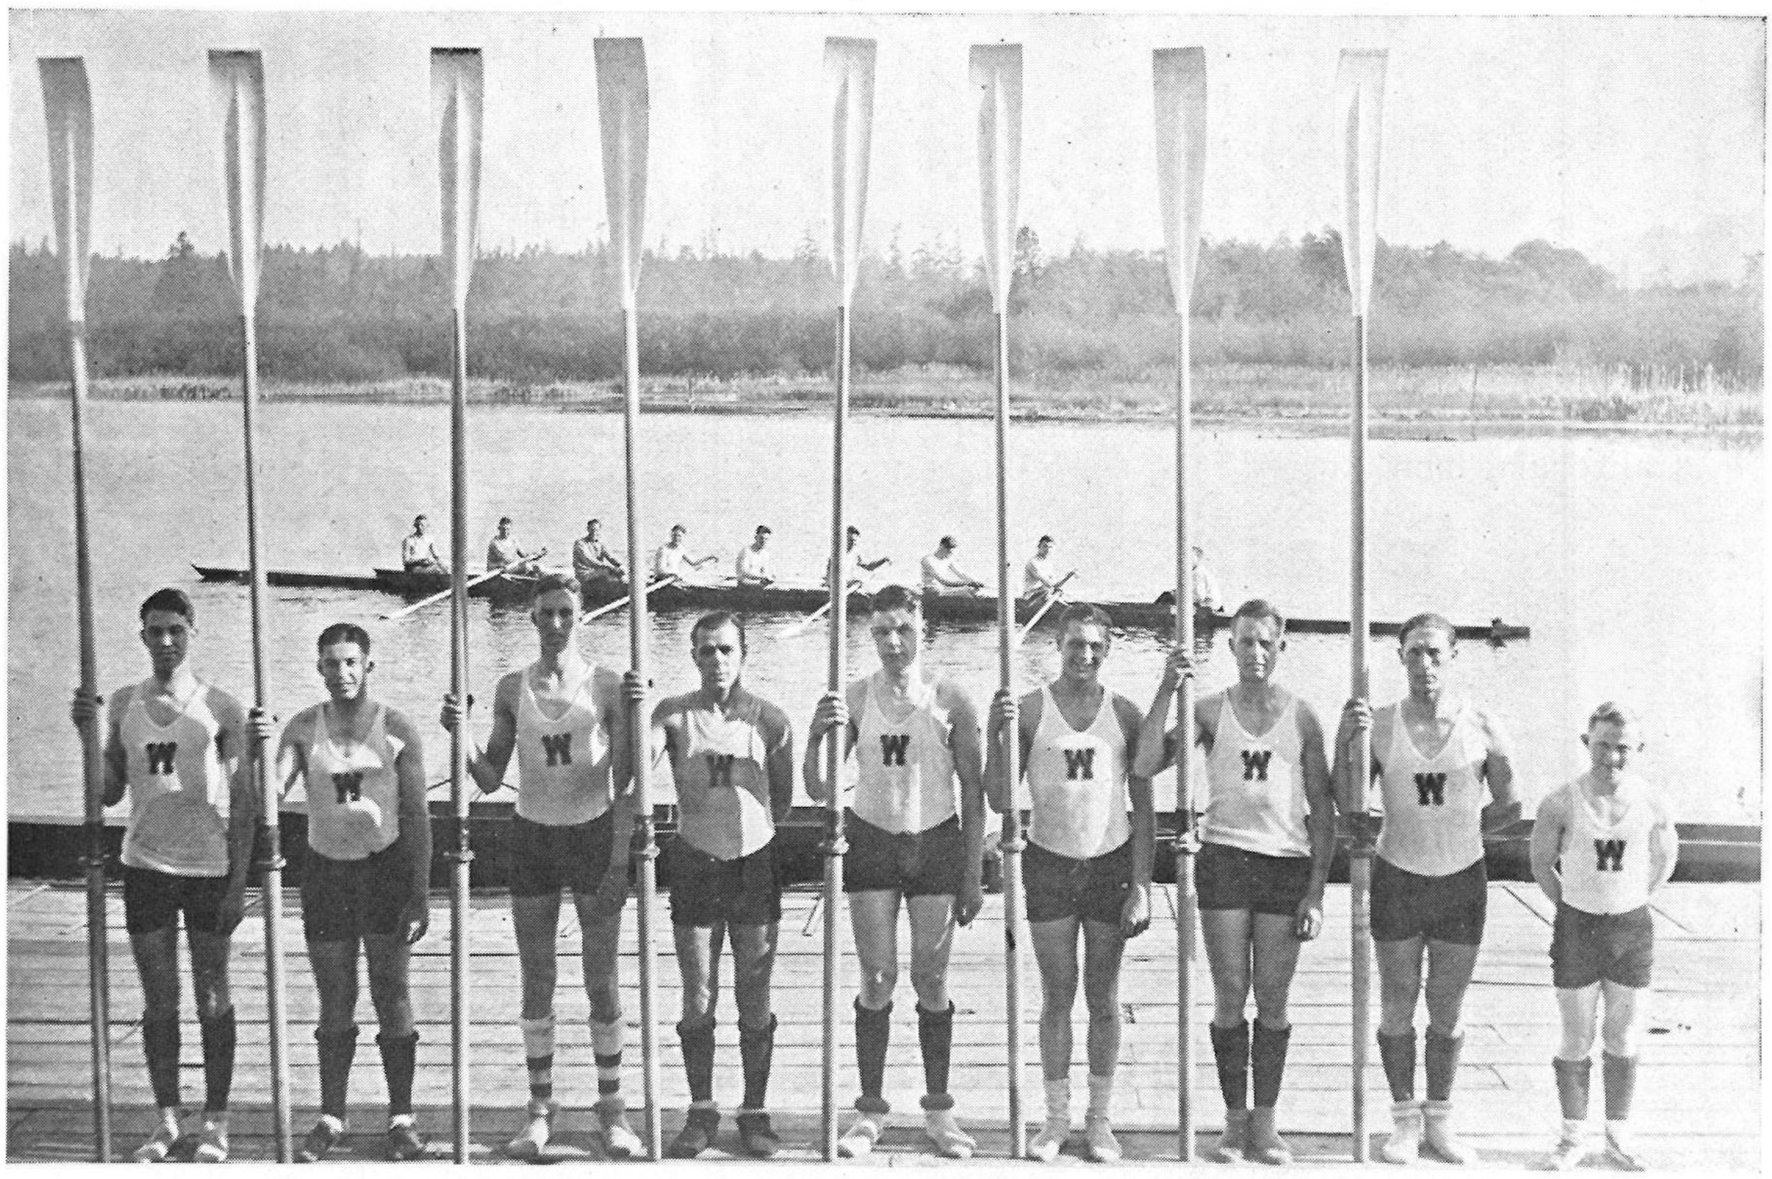

With this brilliant record added to his string of sensational accomplishments in his year of coaching Rusty Callow began preparing for the Poughkeepsie regatta. Promise of expense money assured the sending of two Purple and Gold shells to the Hudson regatta and the coach began drilling a Junior-Varsity.

A final Freshman race with Reed College of Portland enabled three more boat loads of first year men to earn their numerals during May.

The East's strongest Poughkeepsie crew, the Navy, having entered the American Hanley for the right to represent the United States at the Olympic games, Callow's chances at the Hudson race were raised considerably. On the other hand, a wave of resentment against this crew conquest by the far West appeared in the East.

The cry "Beat Washington," sounded through crew headquarters of Syracuse, Columbia, Cornell and Pennsylvania. The favor for the under dog that Washington had enjoyed in 1923 was gone, the East wanted their championship back.

Washington's appearance on the Hudson early in June was a source of interest to Poughkeepsie fans generally, but it accentuated the desire of competing crews to take the great Western shell into camp. They were determined to spend their last ounce of energy in the attempt.

Then came the blow. Max Luft, star No. 4 oarsman and one of the powers of the boat, contracted some sort of a cold and wasn't able to practice. The following day he was worse and when the day for the race came he was in the hospital with typhoid fever.

In those few days Rusty Callow did a little adroit shifting. Several trials showed that Homer Kerns, No. 6 on the Junior Varsity, could sit at Luft's position without slowing the Varsity up perceptibly. But the change weakened the Husky Juniors. A last-minute shake-up in that boat put Al Thompson at No. 6 in Kerns' place, and James Mathews at No. 2, in place of George Gill.

When the day of the national race dawned the Washington Varsity crew was back to its old mark at speed and was consequently the favorite. Determination among the Eastern crews was marked by the slogan that was literally shouted at them when they lined up for the regatta—"Beat Washington."

The Junior-Varsity race brought the first burst of enthusiasm from those who backed the East, Washington, weakened by the late shift, rowed a brilliant race. For the first mile the Husky Juniors raced neck and neck with the Pennsylvania shell.

At that point the Easterners began to pull away while Columbia closed up the gap between themselves and the Huskies. The Penn eight crossed the line two-length victors, Washington making second place, one-fourth of a length ahead of the Columbians. The Pennsylvania time was 10:36 2-5.

Once again the cry of "Beat Washington" sounded when the Varsity shells lined up. A stiff wind and rough water gave promise of a hard pull and a hazardous race.

Bolles, Burnett, Horsfall, Thompson, Keith, Quast, Sonju, McGuinnes
Blethen

The starter's signal sent the six crews off. The Huskies, getting a good racing start, jumped into an early lead. Neither the frantic work of the Eastern shells, nor the pleading wail to "Beat Washington" availed. The Huskies increased their lead steadily until the two-mile length.

The bitter pill for the East was dished up at this two-mile mark. Pennsylvania, hanging onto second place, began to weaken and, though it seemed incredible, lowly Wisconsin, the West's second representative, began to creep up. The Badgers had made no impressive time records in trials. They were anything but favorites, but Dad Vail's eight began to show power when power counted. Wisconsin went into second place.

The sprint began with the two Western shells leading. Not satisfied with their position the Badgers began pressing Washington. They went down the final stretch at a high stroke and when the Huskies swept across the finish line, Wisconsin trailed by only two lengths. It was a brilliant victory for the West.

"Washington Beat" and Wisconsin got second place, and the West stood for Washington, Wisconsin and Win.

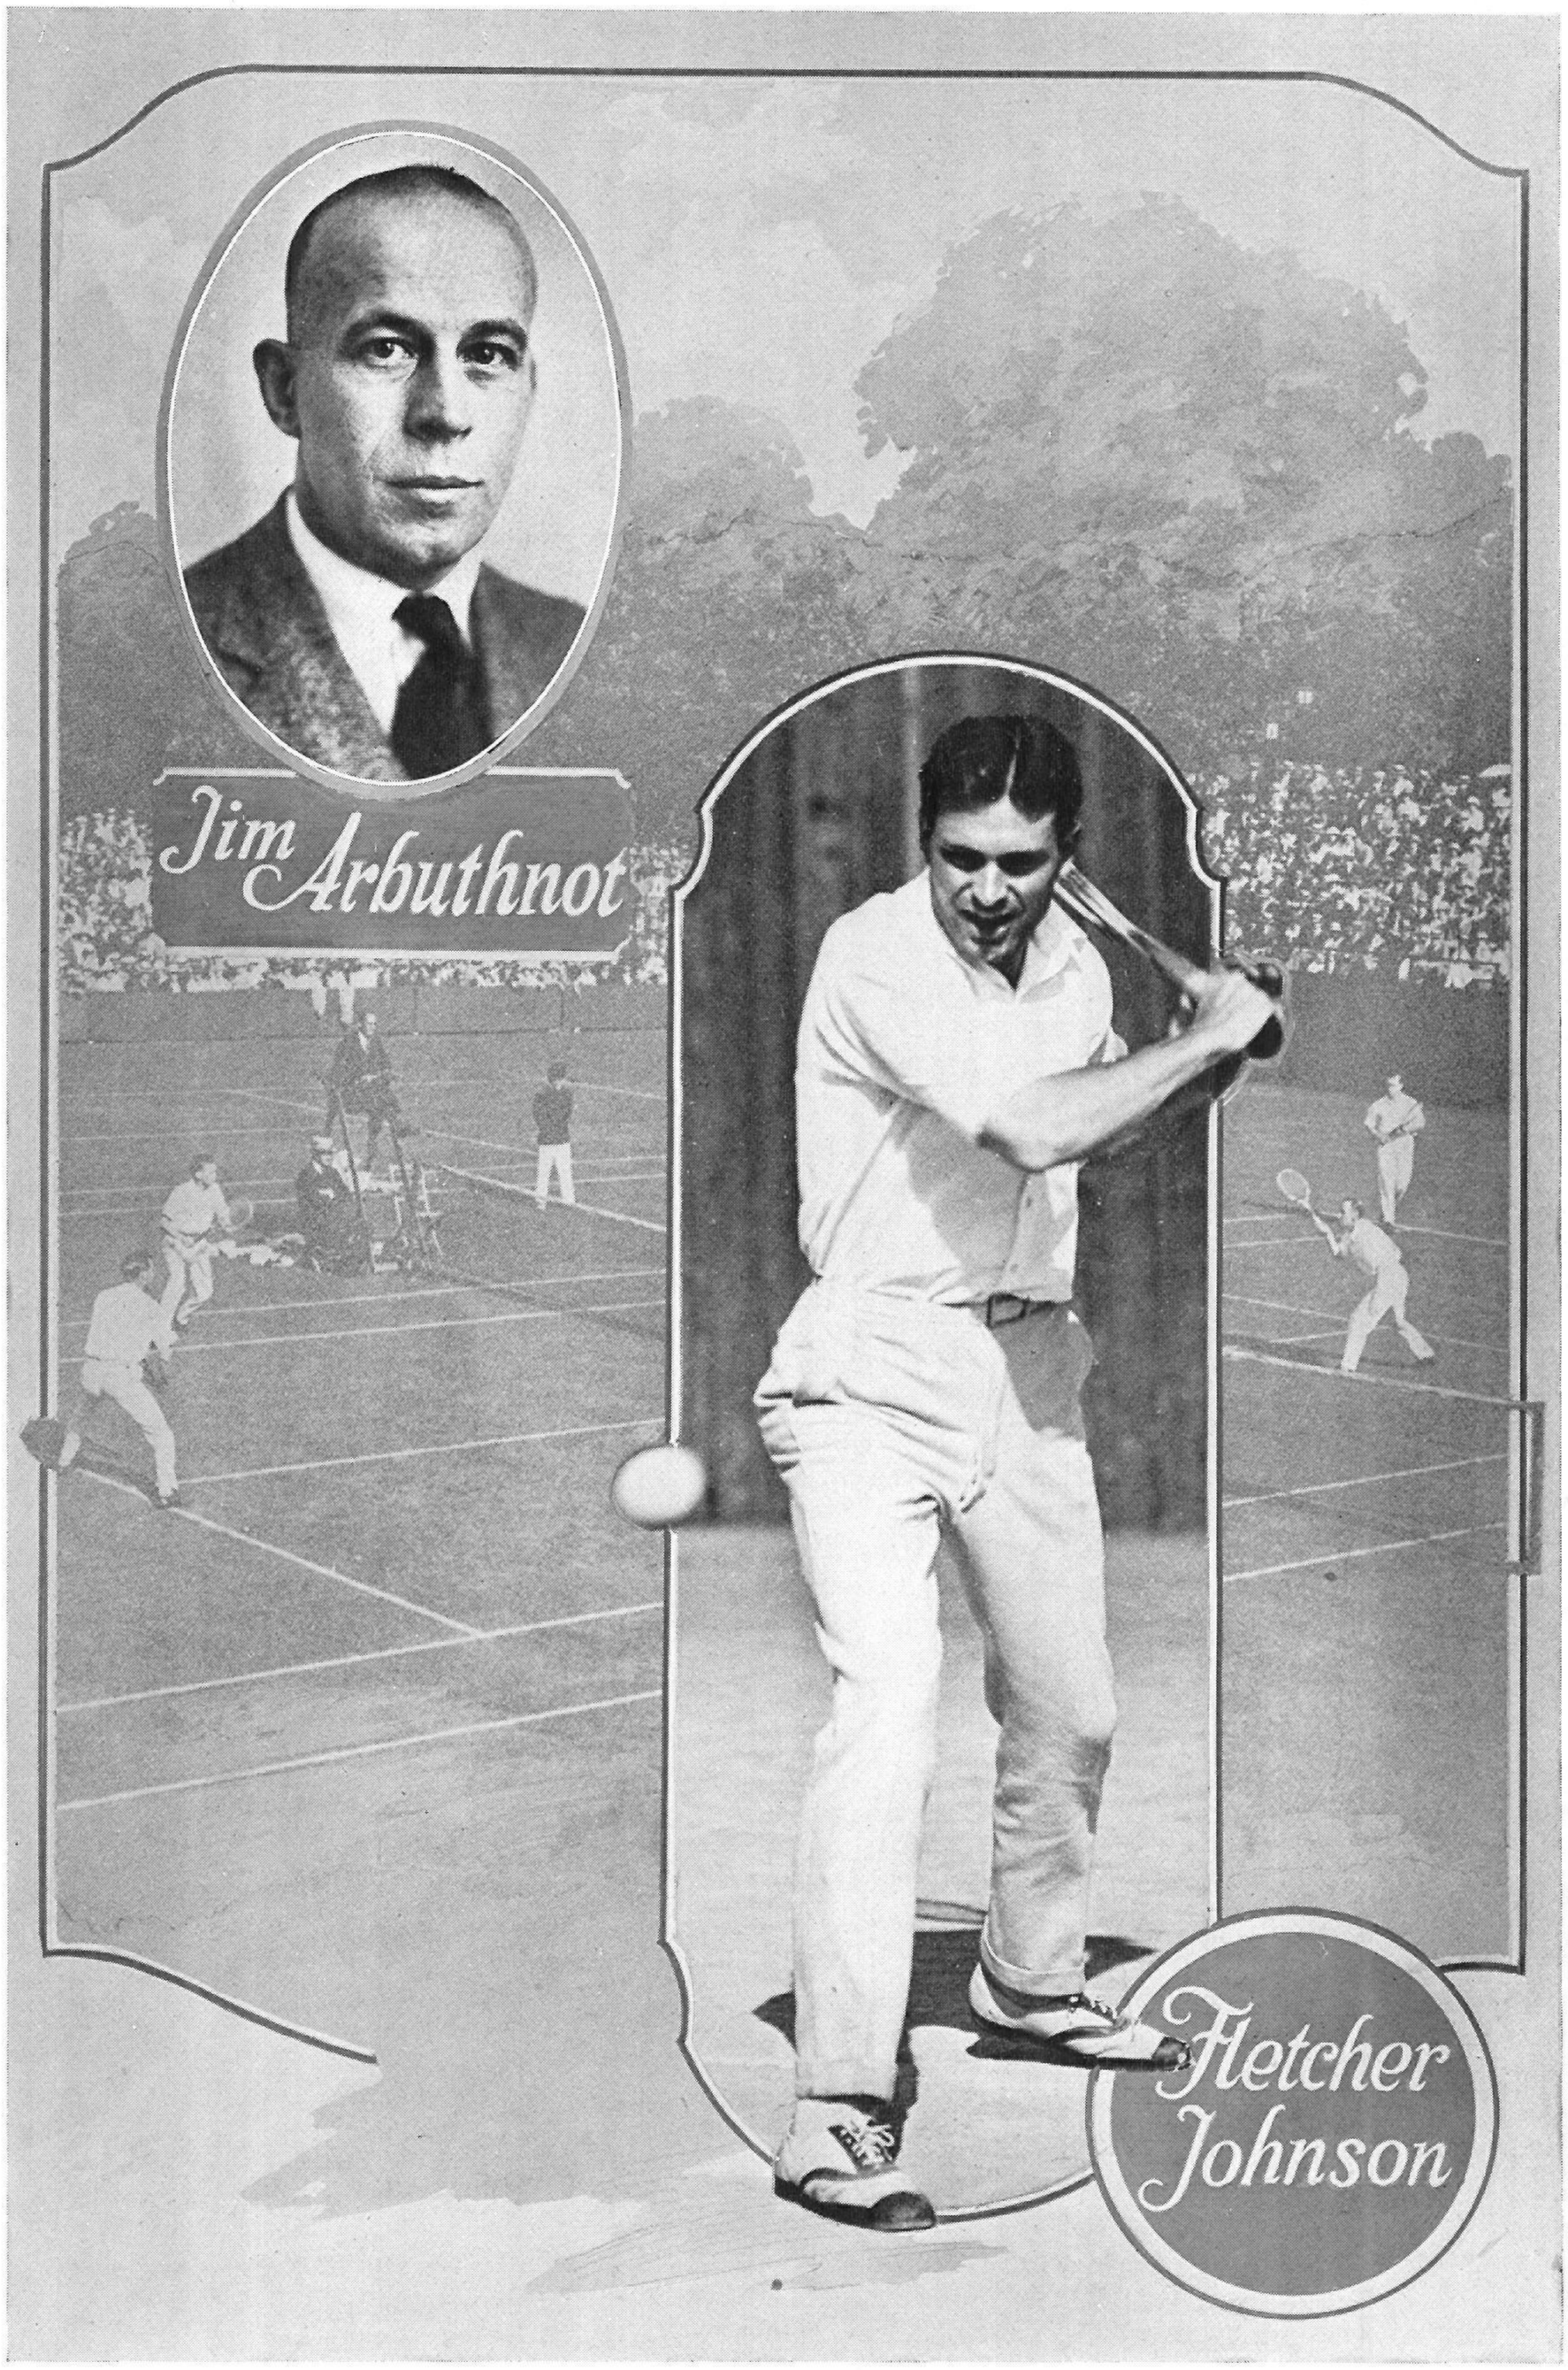

The Washington time, due to rough water, was 15:02; Wisconsin's 15:09 3-5, while Cornell coming in third made it in 15:16 3-5. Pennsylvania ran fourth in 15:28 3-5, Syracuse fifth, 15:25; Columbia, sixth, 15:34.

The Washington Varsity was composed of Alvin Ulbrickson, stroke; Fred Spuhn, 7; Dow Walling, 6; Hal Condon, 5; Homer Kerns, 4; Harrison Sanford, 3; Rowland France, 2; Harry John Dutton, bow; and Captain Donald Grant, coxswain.

The Husky Junior-Varsity was composed of Kenneth Meserve, stroke; Walter Malone, 7; Al Thompson, 6; Denny Abel, 5; Wesley Verd, 4; Thomas Bolles, 3; Jim Mathews, 2; Bill Walker, bow; and Art Wuthernow, coxswain.

The 1925 crew season on the Pacific Coast, at this writing, promises to be a much closer one than has been the case during the last two seasons. Coach Ky Ebright of California has a boat-load of veterans and appears to be confident of winning from Washington when the two shells meet on the Oakland Estuary.

Coach Callow has lost only three of his 1924 veterans, Fred Spuhn, Roland France and Captain Grant. He has Al Ulbrickson, Dow Walling, Hal Condon, Harrison Sanford, Harry John Dutton, Captain Max Luft, Homer Kerns, Walter Malone, Thomas Bolles, George Gill, Mathews, Bob Keefe, turning out for the shell, now, as well as many other super-varsity men and former Freshman rowers. There is certainly promise of another great Washington crew and if California is able to stop the Huskies before they have a chance to defend their Poughkeepsie title this year, Ebright will surely have earned the victory.

Tennis

By DAVID FALK

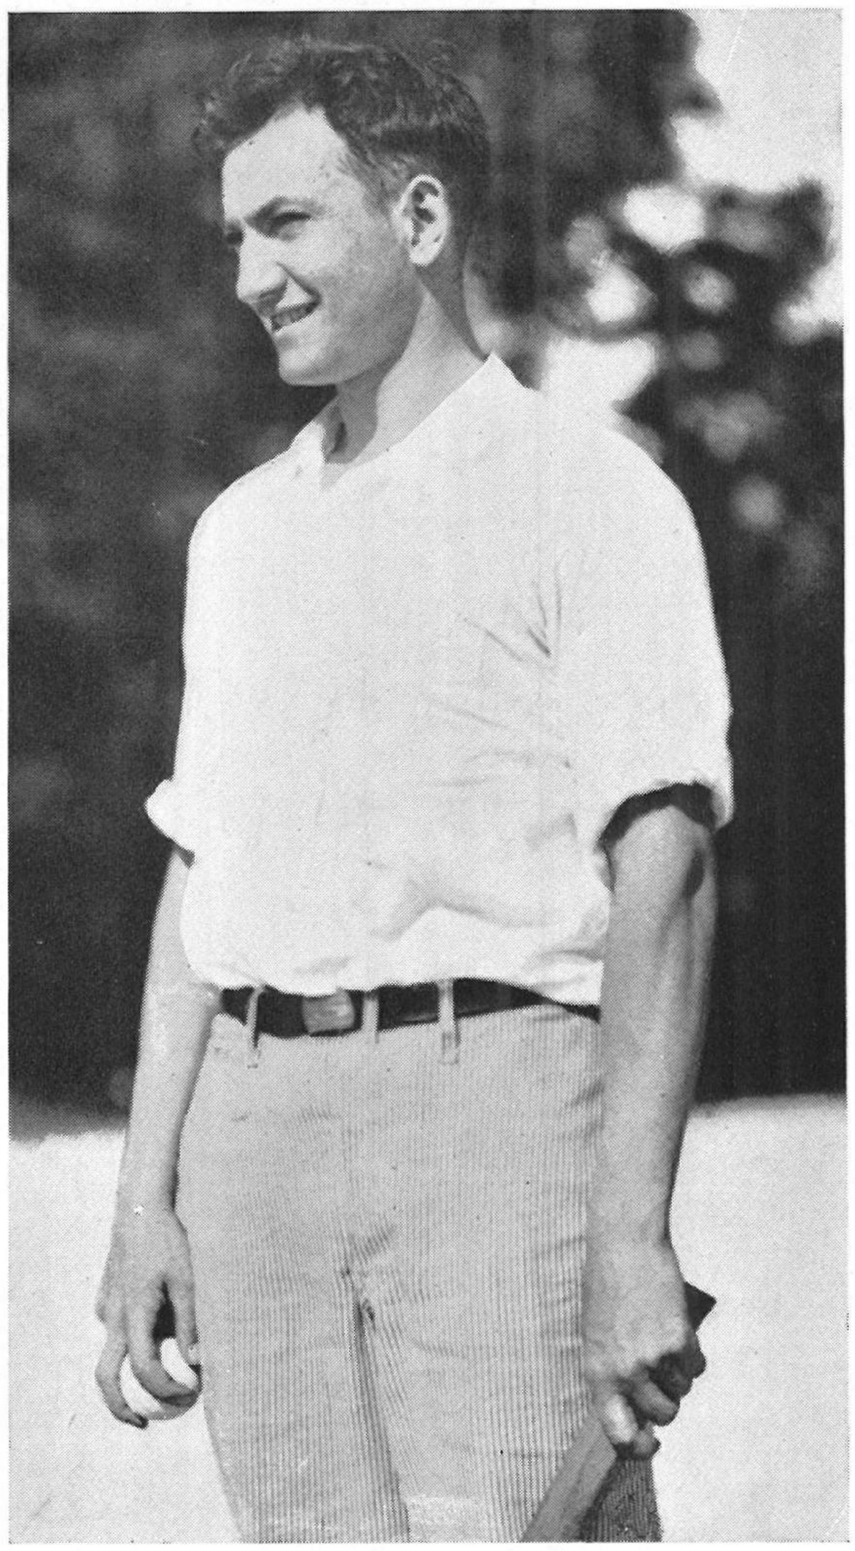

THE PASSING of the 1924 season left the tennis map of the United States Intercollegiate World colored Purple and Gold when Wallace Scott tucked away the national singles championship in competition at Philadelphia. Tennis has now earned a place along with crew, football, and baseball by its bringing national fame and recognition to the Huskies. After winning Pacific Coast honors with little difficulty, the Washington aces, Wallace Scott and Bob Hesketh, jaunted into Eastern circles and cut out a considerable niche from tennis successes in the form of the intercollegiate singles championship of the United States, won by our Scottie.

Towards the middle of March when Coach Jimmy Arbuthnot began to look over his material and to review his chances for a successful team, he found in the ranks three lettermen from the 1923 varsity squad: Captain Fletcher Johnson, Bruce Hesketh, holder of the Pacific Coast collegiate singles championship, and Joe Livengood. These three and still another, Wallace Scott who held the interfraternity singles championship, pointed to a season with possibilities.

The elimination matches were begun early in April, thirty-seven men signing up for the play. Poor weather interfered with the varsity net sessions and handicapped the men from rounding into good form early in the season. It was not until the end of April that the contests began to disclose those who were to represent Washington in the Conference meets not far off. In the semi-finals Joe Livengood, letter winner from the 1923 racquet team, took an interesting game from Harold Williams while Wallace Scott eliminated Harry Shaw, a 1923 Frosh player. George Clarke, the sensation of the meet, cinched a place in the finals by eliminating Sam Skidmore and Fletcher Johnson. Scott advanced to the final round by a defeat of Joe Livengood, proving in this match his marked superiority over other varsity players. Hesketh also reached the finals by a win from Ken Kelso and a victory in hard-fought sets with George Clarke. The final match between Scottie and Bob enabled Coach Arbuthnot to rate his varsity tennis squad.

At the top of the list stood the most capable, consistent court general, Wallace Scott. Next in line came the Pacific Coast singles champ, Bob Hesketh. The third rank was filled by Captain Fletcher Johnson who, after a poor start in the early days of the season, staged a brilliant come-back and won from Joe Livengood in a challenge match, thereby gaining third place. Fourth place found Harry Shaw, fifth, George Clarke, sixth, Joe Livengood and on down the line to complete the ten-man team were Williams, Vincent, DuBois, and Kelso. This ranking was kept throughout the season in spite of the new ladder system which made it necessary for the men to be in good condition throughout the entire year to remain on the playing squad. Any man could challenge either of the two men ranking higher than he and if successful in the resulting match he advanced to the loser's position where he in turn was subject to challenge by the man below him. By this method the best and most consistent players reached the highest rankings and took part in the meets.

The Huskies' first outside competition came on the third of May, when they tangled with the Seattle Tennis Club on the Lake Washington courts. This meet gave the varsity net men the first real workout of the year and was of no little importance in putting the Huskies in readiness for the opening Conference contest of the following week. Although Washington lost the meet by a score of six matches to three, the showing was much better than in the previous year when the annual mixup with S. T. C. resulted in a clean sweep for the club players. Wallace Scott led his teammates by brilliant play in competition with Leon DeTurenne, captain of the Seattle Tennis Club squad. Scott won after three sets of smashing tennis by scores of 6-2, 6-8, and 6-3. The Washington star's service and placement in the first and third sets were unbeatable. Harry Shaw beat Crawford Anderson, while George Clarke and Fletcher Johnson took the only other Husky win in a doubles match.

The Conference meet then loomed up as the first real obstacle to overcome in the race for Pacific Coast honors. On May the tenth the Huskies rode rough-shod over the O. A. C. winning every match in the meet without difficulty. Outclassing their opponents in every angle of the game, the Varsity net men won all contests in both singles and doubles by straight sets and generally by one-sided scores. Scottie took an easy victory from Andy Ekern, O. A. C. star, by scores of 6-0 and 6-3. Other matches were won by somewhat similar counts. Five singles and two doubles matches rested in the fold of the Purple and Gold racquet wielders.

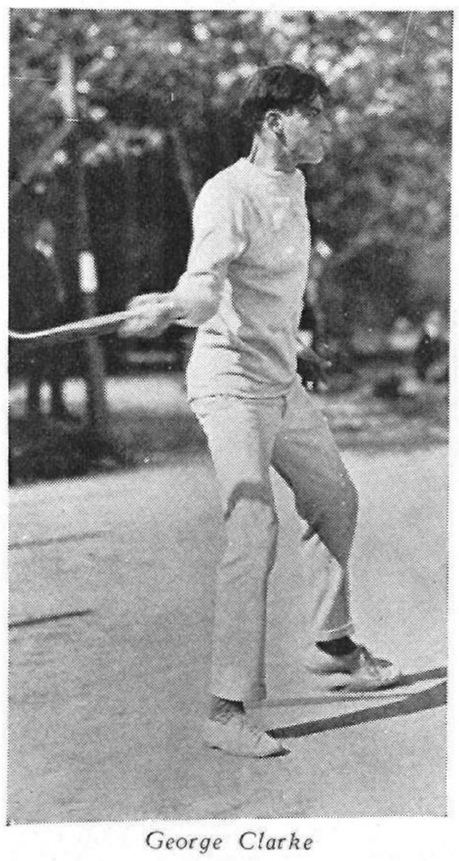

Bob Hesketh

The next tussle found the Purple players emerging from every match with the Wildcats in brilliant form and with decided success. The varsity squad took three singles matches and one doubles. The most sensational match of the day was the singles match with Bob Hesketh and Art Douglas on the opposite side of the net, Hesketh, though a more flashy player than his opponent, had a hard time overcoming the persistent returns of Douglas, finally winning 10-8, 4-6, 7-5. Scott's brilliant performance in play with Bratton of Whitman was another feature of the meet.

The Huskies having disposed of all Conference games, started on the last lap of the race for Coast tennis honors by sending to the Pacific Coast meet at Eugene, Scott and Hesketh, one of the strongest net combinations which has ever competed for Washington on the courts. In competition there on May thirtieth and thirty-first the pair brought another Coast Championship to Washington in both doubles and singles. Scott won the singles championship from his teammate, Hesketh, in straight sets, 6-2 and 6-4. Scott and Hesketh won their preliminary matches easily. The pair captured the doubles title from Harry Myer and Frank Rice, of Oregon, by scores of 6-4, 6-2, and 6-2. Scott was the individual star at the meet in both doubles and singles and Hesketh ably seconding him in the doubles.

Ten days after scalping the Westerners, the champs, Hesketh and Scott, left to prove their ability in the National Intercollegiate tournament held on the Merion Cricket Club courts at Haverford, Pennsylvania. In order to become accustomed to the Eastern environment, the boys first played in the Middle States Open Championship at Philadelphia. Hesketh reached the semi-finals, while Scott fought his way into the finals. An unfortunate "break" forced Scott to lose his final match by default after he had overpowered in two sets his opponent who ranked fifth in the United States. Overcome by heat, the fighting Wallie collapsed on the court and was taken to a hospital. Reaching the finals in doubles was of no avail as Hesketh and Scott were forced to default with Scott out.

Weakened by the unlucky turn of affairs during the week of competition, the varsity aces experienced their first national intercollegiate Conference play on the twenty-third of June. Hesketh reached the third round after successfully defeating representatives from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Chicago, finally succumbing to the onslaught of a member of the strong Columbia team after a terrific battle. Scott made up for the defeat of his teammate by going through first round, second round, third round and on and on to the finals. In the final match the superior University of Washington net men defeated Arnold Jones of Yale, in an exhibition of unyielding determination and tricky playing. Wallace Scott had won the Intercollegiate singles championship of the United States. Scott and Hesketh lost their doubles match to the Harvard team by another bit of misfortune. Their match came directly after Scott's singles in which he had expended every ounce of his energy. Scott had gone through the season without a defeat and Washington's tennis efforts had reached heights never before known.

Letters awarded this year were six—Wallace Scott, Bob Hesketh, Captain Fletcher Johnson, Harry Shaw, George Clarke and a manager's award to Lee Ketchum.

With such a successful season in the past it is a very precarious matter to look forward to the 1925 possibilities. Coach Arbuthnot and captain-elect Bob Hesketh feel confident of another such year. The loss of Scott and Johnson is very difficult to bear, but in part is offset by the return of Armand Marion to tennis circles. Promising material for varsity competition is found in the 1924 Frosh tennis squad. The net men have much to gain and much to lose in 1925. For two years Washington has won the Pacific Coast title. One more win will mean that the cup comes permanently into our possession. The opportunity to go East again to defend the title won by Scott is another point to be considered.

James Arbuthnot, Coach

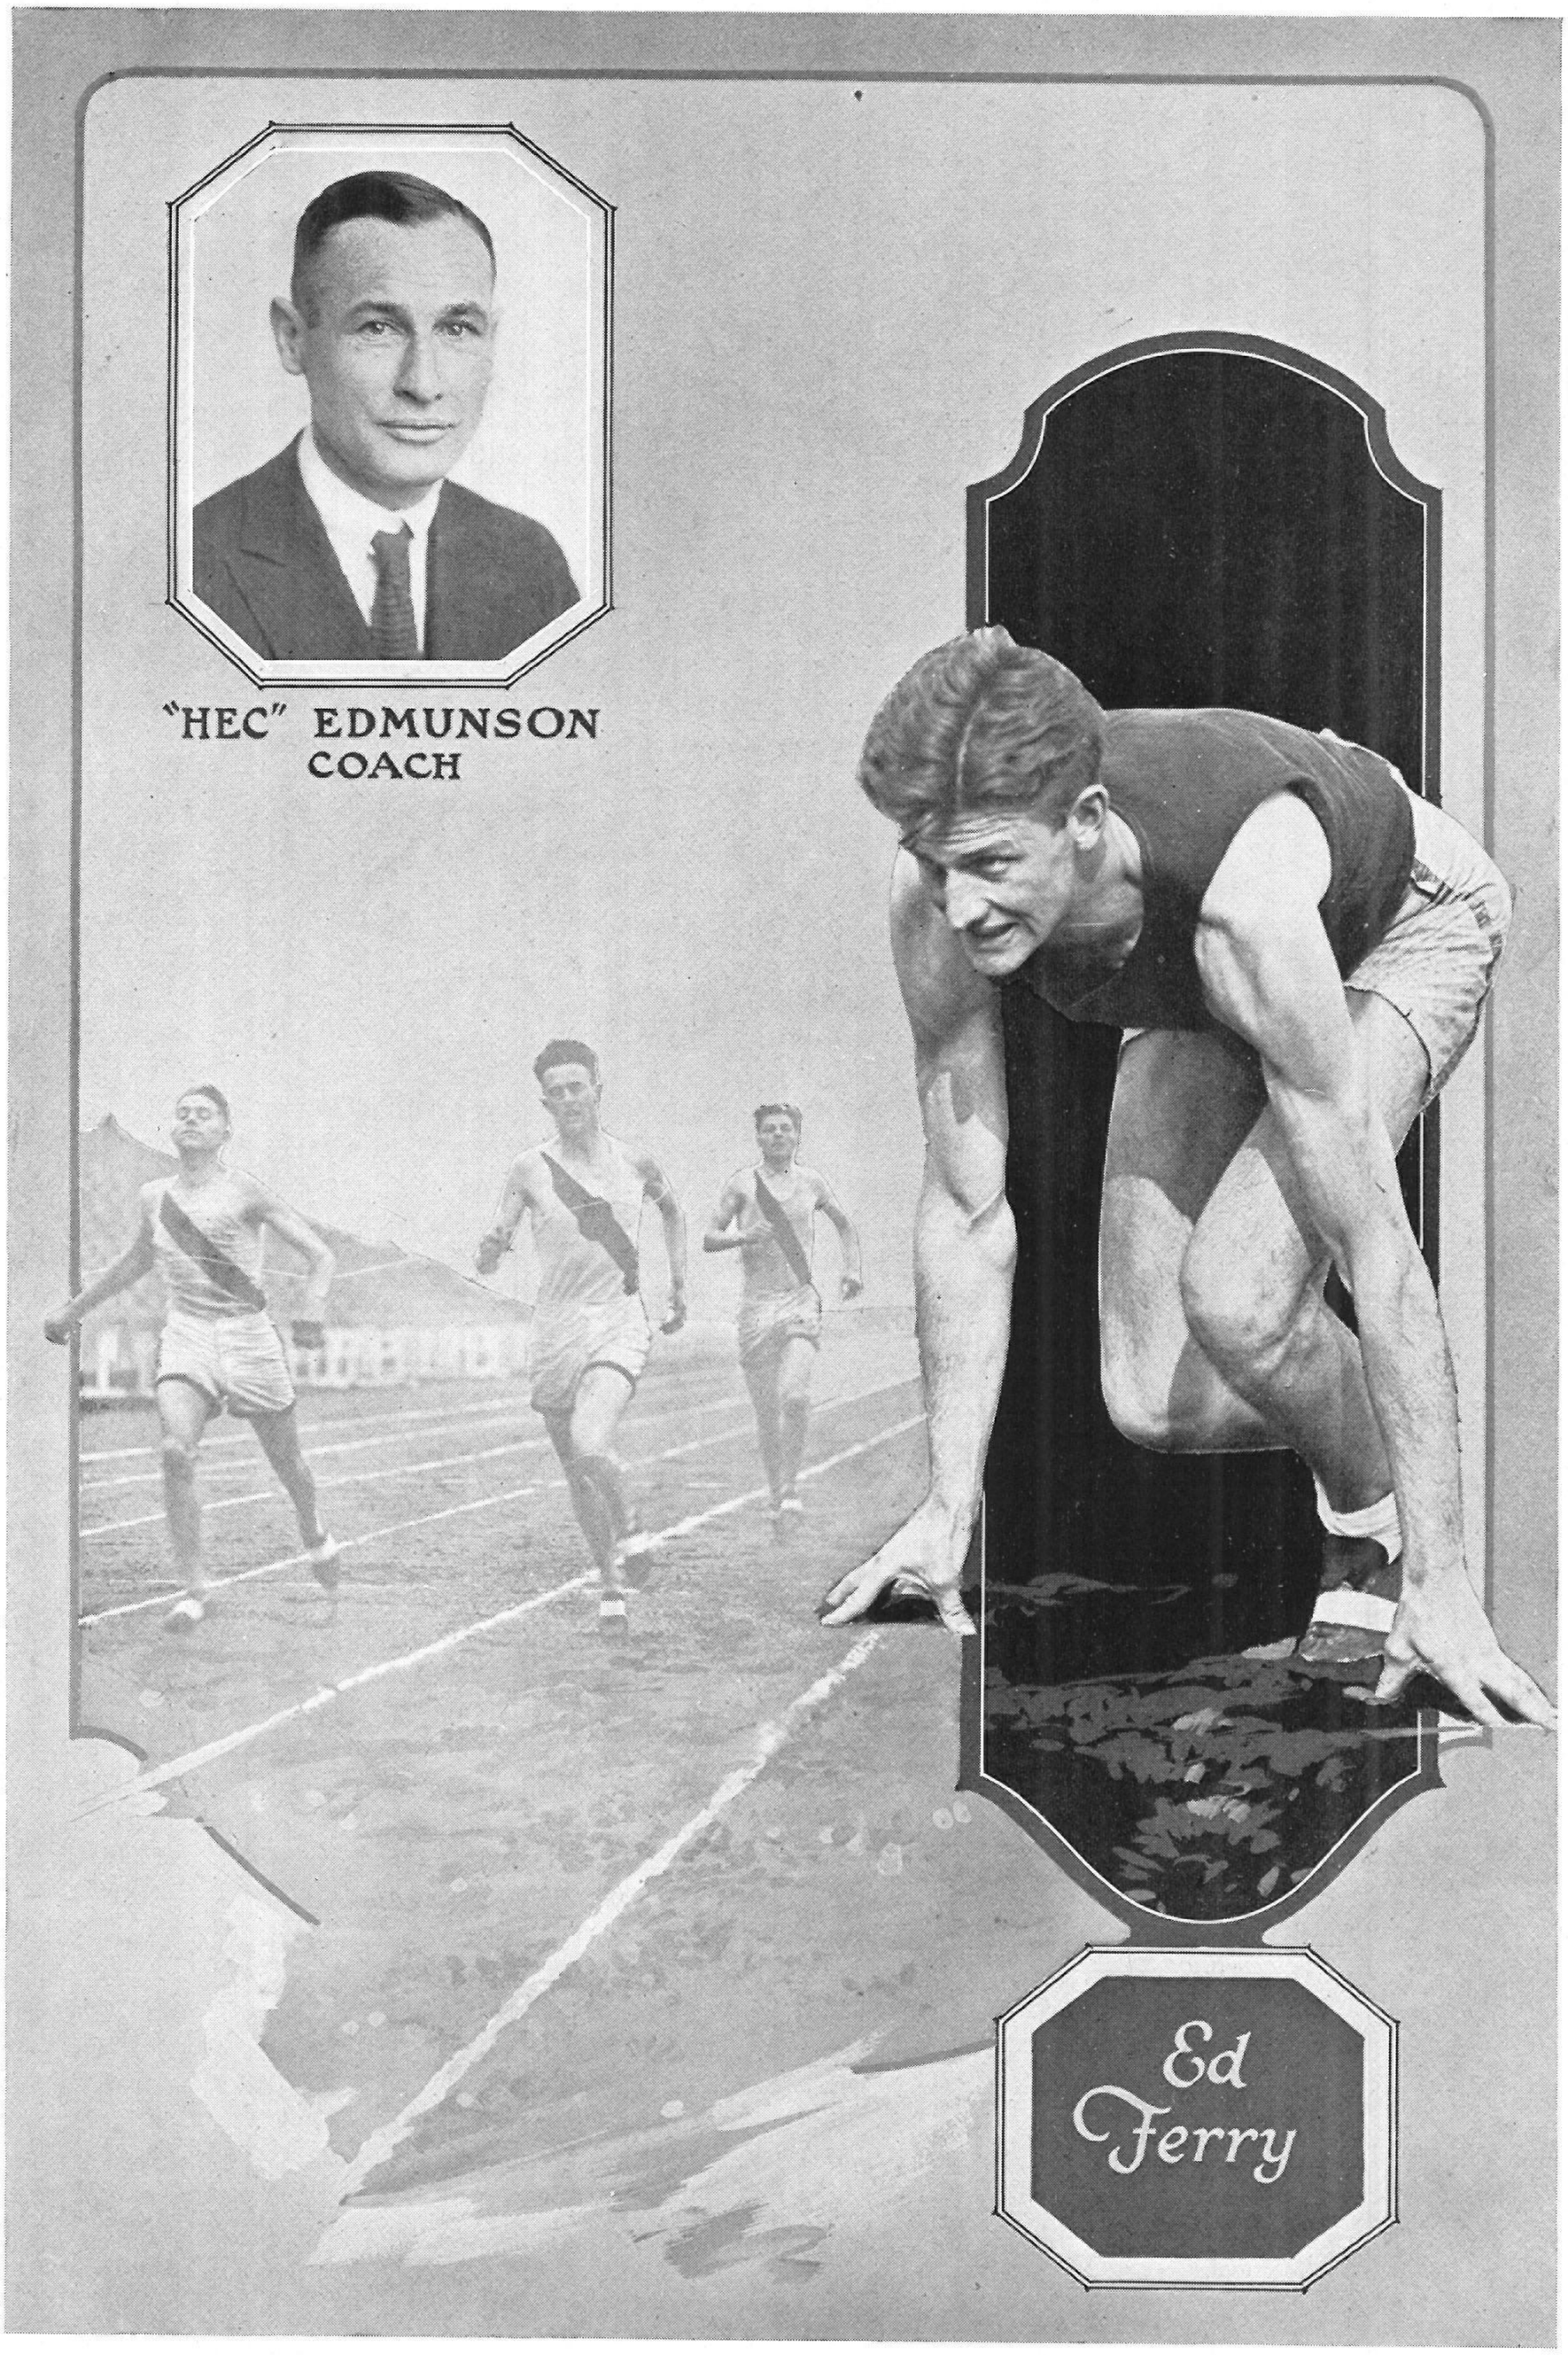

Harry Shaw

FROSH TENNIS

The Frosh tennis men met with success closely akin to that of the Varsity. Although few men responded to the call for the elimination contest, very able men were found in the ranks. Among the luminaries were Mel Dranga, former Seattle High School star and Percy Lee, raquet wielder from Tacoma, who reached the finals in the elimination contest. The Seattle player won the Freshman tennis title by defeating Percy Lee by scores of 6-4, 6-3, and 6-3. Dranga earned the reputation of being an expert performer on the courts and attracted considerable attention.

A very capable four-man team was formed of Mel Dranga, Percy Lee, Bud Marion and Earl Requa. The squad broke even in its first match playing a local high school. The Seattle Tennis Club Juniors met defeat at the hands of the Frosh, and like disaster fell upon the other oncomers. Those earning the Freshman numerals were Mel Dranga, Percy Lee, Bud Marion and Earl Requa. Walt Swanson was manager for the Frosh. Much is expected from these four in the 1925 season.

Track

A VICTORY IN THE RELAY CARNIVAL, overwhelming wins in dual meets with Oregon and Oregon Agricultural College, and a close second place in the All-Coast Conference meet, were the accomplishments of Coach Clarence "Hec" Edmundson's 1924 track team. To Edmundson, veteran builder of championship contending teams, goes the big share of the credit. The capable mentor started the season with notable weaknesses in some departments and handled his men so skilfully that these weaknesses were overcome. Edmundson produced new stars who bid fair to make Coast track history before the end of their careers. The 1924 track outfit was a worthy representative of Washington.

Cross-country work and a long conditioning grind put the Huskies in trim for the Relay Carnival, which ushered in the 1924 season at the Stadium on May 3. Early training gave Washington the jump on some other schools, several of which did not send entries to the Carnival. However, there were plenty of entries to make things interesting for the Washingtonians. The Oregon Aggies, in fact, came north with a full team to win the meet; and only a thrilling victory in the final event of the day gave the Purple and Gold runners a 33 to 29 triumph.

The big feature of the day was the sprinting duel between Charlie Paddock of Southern California, the "world's fastest human," and Vic Hurley, short distance star and skipper of the 1923 Washington team. Paddock won easily from the former Husky star, but did not approach any records. His time for the special century dash was 10 1-10 seconds.

The Aggies proved to be Washington's toughest opponents. The Corvallis lads captured first places in the hundred yard dash, the two-mile relay, the medley relay, the four-mile relay and the pentathlon. These constituted more first places than Washington won, but consistent work in all events gave the Huskies the edge. Gearhardt of O. A. C. won the hundred yard dash in 10 4-10 seconds. George Clarke of Washington grabbed second honors. The shot put was won by big Percy Egtvet, with a heave of 44 feet. Egbert Brix, in his first intercollegiate toss, took third place. Cram of O. A. C. won the pentathlon, with Ken DuBois of Washington, second, and Brix of Washington, third.

Percy Egtvet

The two-mile relay was an easy Aggie victory. The Aggies have put out strong middle distance men for years, and 1924 was no exception. Led by little Ray Dodge, the classiest middle-distance man on the Coast, the Beavers walked away from their opposition with no trouble at all. Time for the event was 8 minutes 5 5-10 seconds. Washington took second place.

The medley relay was another O. A. C. win. Dodge was again a factor in the victory in the time of 6 minutes, 31 4-10 seconds. Idaho took second, and Washington third.

The four-mile relay also went to the Corvallis entry. Graves, Walker, Mason and Butts traversed the distance in 18 minutes 22 8-10 seconds.

In the shorter distances, Washington led the field. In the half-mile relay, Clarke, Tupper, Applegate, and Augustine galloped to a win in 1 minute 31 9-10 seconds.

The mile relay, the final event of the program, was the decisive race, and the Husky speedsters came through with a splendid win. Capt. Ed Ferry gave his team-mates a good lead which they maintained to the end, Tupper, Wyers, and Applegate were the other Washington runners. The time was 3 minutes, 26 4-10 seconds.

In class B, the Husky Frosh cleaned up in every event. Marv Schroeder won the hundred, with Clary Edwards a close second. Edwards, Amy, Charteris, and Wilde won the medley; and Douglas, Torney, Hedreen, and Lake won the mile relay.

Olympia, Vancouver, and Puyallup high schools showed best in Class C events. Broadway made the best showing in the Seattle high school races. Delta Chi won the final intramural relay.

On May 9, at Eugene, the Huskies won from the Oregon team by a score of 73 to 57. Washington was doped to win the meet and came through as figured.

Percy Egtvet, weight and jump star, was high point man with 14 1-3 points. Egtvet won the discus and the broad jump, took second and third, and tied for third in the high jump.

Web Augustine

The biggest thrill in the meet, according to Coach Edmundson, was the finish of the mile relay. Oregon's quarter milers are fast men, and led at the end of the third lap. With a wonderful sprint at the finish, Ken Applegate, running last for Washington, came home in front by a scant yard.

Frank Carter won the mile, with Ralph Finke second. Brix won the shot, and Egtvet took second. Lucas of Oregon won the hundred yard dash, Clarke and Augustine of Washington taking second and third.

Applegate won the quarter in 51 5-10 seconds. DuBois took a third in the high hurdles. Wyers and Snyder took first and second in the half mile. The pole vault went to Capt. Ralph Spearow of the Webfooters. Chet Froude, Washington, placed second. Brix and Egtvedt tied with an Oregon man for second in the high jump. Tupper and Clarke got second and third in the 220 yard dash.

In the two-mile, King and Maginnis, Husky stars, took first and second. Augustine's third was the only Washington place in the 220 yard low hurdles. Egtvet won the broad jump, and DuBois placed second in the javelin.

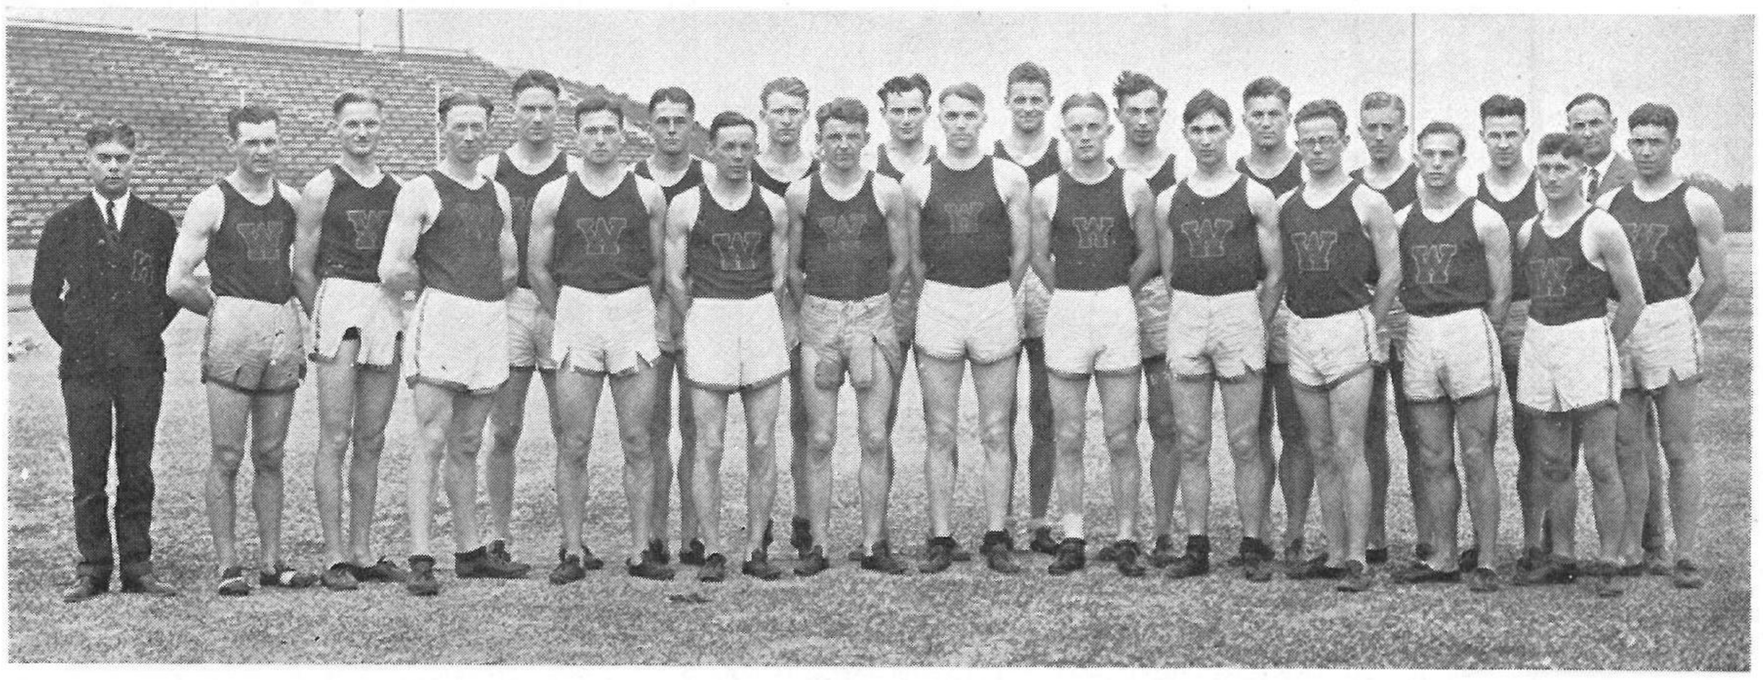

Tupper, Wyers, Snyder, and Applegate ran on the winning mile relay team.

When the Oregon Aggies came to Seattle to compete with the Huskies in the Stadium on May 23, a very close meet and possibly an Aggie victory was predicted by followers of the sport. Edmundson figured out the points and records to a nicety, placed his men where they would get points in the weak Aggie events, almost conceded some events to the Beavers, and the Husky team came through with a surprising 81 to 50 victory.

Washington took all the places in the pole vault, high jump, broad jump and quarter mile. The Aggies made a clean sweep in the mile and took an easy first and second in the half. The Huskies got the majority of places in the other events.

Percy Egtvet was again high point man with 16 points. The big fellow won the broad jump and the shot put, tied for first in the high jump, and took second in the discus.

Ray Dodge, Aggie speed artist, provided one of the thrills in the meet when he ran the half mile in 1 minute 57 seconds. Winchester King broke the Washington record for the two-mile when he traversed the distance in 9 minutes 48 3-10 seconds. Bill Maginnis was a close second and doubtless ran in better time than the old Washington mark.

The Track Squad

Augustine won the hundred yard dash in 10 3-10 seconds. Clarke placed third. The quarter was won by Applegate in 50 5-10 seconds. Hathaway and Ferry placed second and third. DuBois of Washington, placed third in the high hurdles. Wyers got a third in the half mile.

Clarke broke the tape in the 220 yard dash, with Tupper a good second. Time was 22 1-10 seconds. The mile relay, with Hathaway, Wyers, Ferry, and Applegate running, was a Washington victory in 3 minutes 2-10 seconds.

Egtvet, DuBois, and Brix placed one, two, three in the shot put. Cram of O. A. C. won the discus, with Egtvet and Brix placing second and third.

Egtvet won the broad jump with a leap of 21 feet. DuBois placed second and Clarke third. Froude, Hinman, and DuBois placed in the order named in the pole vault. 11 feet 6 inches was the winning vault. Egtvedt and Clarke tied for first in the high jump at 5 feet 8 inches. Brix took third in the javelin for the only Washington point in that event.

Washington lost the Pacific Coast Conference track meet at Eugene on May 31 by the margin of one point. The Oregon squad won.

A third place in the mile relay gave the Eugene runners the points needed to win. If the Webfooters had failed to place in the final relay event, Washington would have grabbed the decision. Capt. Ralph Spearow, Oregon captain, gave the Oregonians ten points to work with. The blonde jumper won both the pole vault and the high jump for the Lemon-Yellow. Places in other events put the Oregonians in the lead.

Performances of Edmundson's Sophomore stars, Web Augustine, Ken Applegate, and George Clarke, were the Washington features of the meet. Augustine won the 220 yard low hurdles, Applegate won the quarter mile, and Clarke broke the tape in both the hundred yard dash and the 220 yard dash.

The all-star mile relay team won its event, as usual. Applegate, Hathaway, Wyers, and Ferry were the Washington runners.

In the mile, Frank Carter placed fourth for the Huskies. Winchester King took fourth in the two-mile. Tupper was fourth in the 220 yard dash.

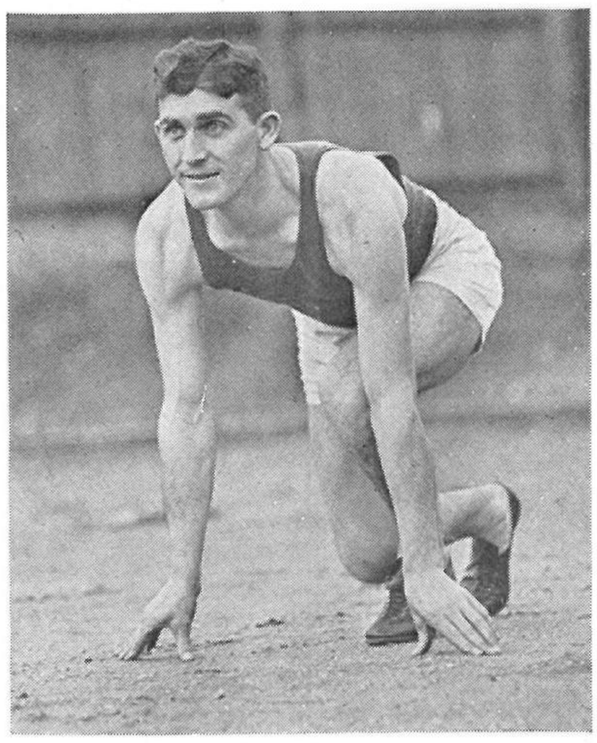

Washington did not fare as well as usual in the field events. Egtvedt was forced to give up his customary first in the shot put, his favorite event. Percy took second place. He also tied with two others for second in the high jump, and placed fourth in the broad jump. Brix was fourth in the discus throw.

Washington did not place in the high hurdles, the javelin, the half mile or the pole vault.

Cross-country work and early training have put the Huskies in shape for another successful season. Most of last year's consistent point winners are returning for another year, and with the addition of several stars from the Freshman team, 1925 ought to eclipse 1924 as a track year.

The schedule includes the Relay Carnival on May 2, the O. A. C. dual meet on May 9, at Corvallis, the Oregon dual meet on May 16, at Seattle, the W. S. C. dual meet on May 23, at Seattle, and the Conference meet at Corvallis on May 30.

The Freshman track season of 1924 was a short one, but from the standpoint of developing good performers, a highly successful one. Participation in the Relay Carnival and in one dual track meet with Bellingham Normal School comprised the complete Frosh schedule. Another meet with several Seattle high schools was planned, but did not take place.

The relay carnival Class B events against small colleges was a walk-away for the Freshmen. The green-jerseyed runners won every event in which they participated. Marv Schroeder won the hundred yard dash with Clary Edwards second. Edwards, Amy, Charteris, and Wilde won the medley relay. Torney, Douglas, Hedreen and Lake won the mile relay.

The Bellingham meet was little more than a work-out. Edmundson's yearlings had a big edge on the normal school men in condition and form, and won in a walk-away.

Among the men who showed especially well and who are likely to be seen on the Varsity soon are Wilde in the mile; Charteris and Douglas in the half; Lake in the quarter; Edwards and Schroeder in the sprints; and Torney in the low hurdles. Al Nardin was not eligible for competition with the team, but worked out regularly, and is a good Varsity prospect in the pole vault.

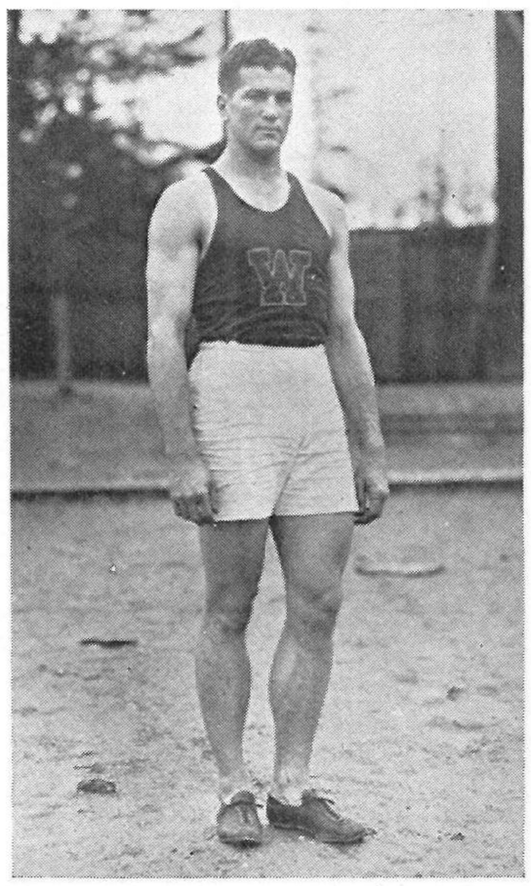

Ken Applegate

One of the biggest track seasons ever known at Washington is in prospect for the Huskies for 1925. A program which includes the Relay Carnival, the Pacific Coast Conference meet, and dual meets with Oregon, Oregon Agricultural College and Washington State College will give the tracksters, Coach Hec Edmundson, and the track fans plenty to think about.

First on the program and more important than any billed attraction is the annual Relay Carnival which will be held in the Stadium on May 2. Preparations for the meet have been going on for some time, the track will be in fine shape, the list of entries is bigger than ever before, and everything is ready for an interesting track and field day.

The list of entries for the day includes all the Pacific Coast Conference schools except California and Stanford, and all members of the Northwest body. Besides all the entries in the Class A body, Northwest secondary colleges, Washington Frosh, State high schools, and Seattle high schools will compete. Events include a special hundred yard dash, shot put, pentathlon, half-mile relay, mile relay, two-mile relay, and four-mile relay.

The Pacific Coast Conference meet, the biggest track event of the coast, was awarded to Seattle and the University of Washington by a special vote of the members of the Conference. The meet was originally scheduled for Oregon Agricultural College at Corvallis, but the Oregon authorities asked that it be staged at another school as the new track and stands at Oregon Agricultural College would not be finished in time for the event. Paul Davis of Stanford, head of the Graduate Manager's Association, asked for a vote of the Conference and Washington was given charge of the affair.

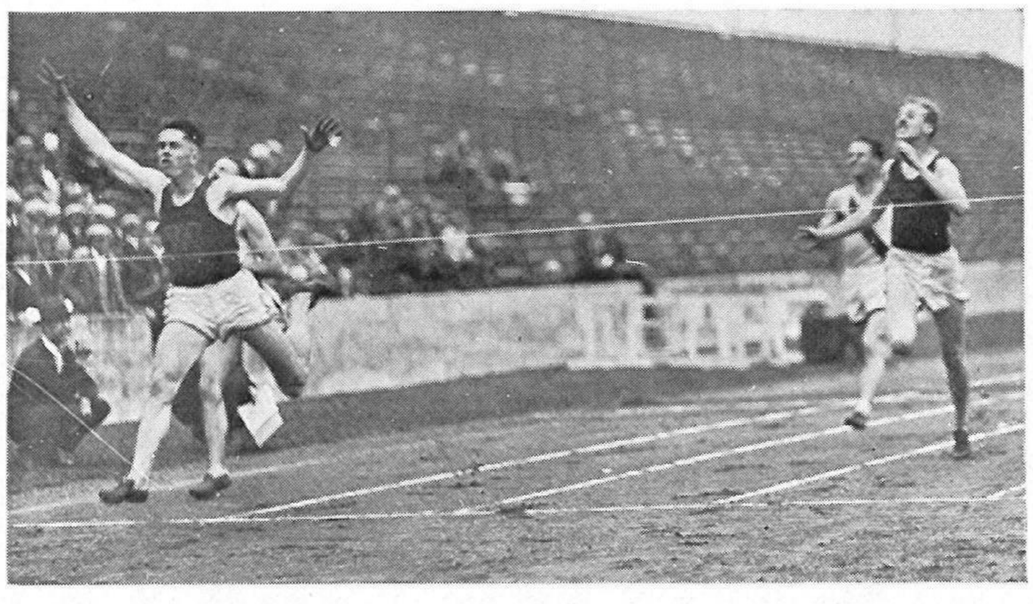

Egbert Brix

With these two athletic plums on the program, local fans are assured of seeing the best men of the slope in action.

Prospects for a winning aggregation are unusually bright. Husky teams are always very much in the running, but the 1925 model seems headed for a title, unless other teams show considerable improvements over last year. Washington is a very much improved team over the one which last year lost a coast title to Oregon by one lone marker. Edmundson has a well-balanced team, only one or two possible weaknesses being apparent. Even these places may be handled nicely if certain men come through. Weak points of last year have been ironed out in some cases, and last season's heavy point winners are still in school.

The pole vault, one hole last year, will be managed by Al Nardin, now eligible for varsity competition. Nardin is a capable man with the long pole. The high hurdles will probably be run by Ken DuBois, who is showing improvement over his work of previous seasons. At the beginning of the training season the mile was considered a questionable race but Drummond Wilds, Don McCallum, and Red Ramsay have been coming through nicely in trials.

Capt. Percy Egtvet, weight and jump star, will cavort again in the field for the Huskies. The big captain is generally good for fifteen points in any company, and should repeat this year. Egbert Brix, another big weight event man, will be an able assistant. Brix has shown some remarkable improvement, especially in the high jump, where he will probably outshine his skipper this season. The two ought to account for their share of points in any meet.

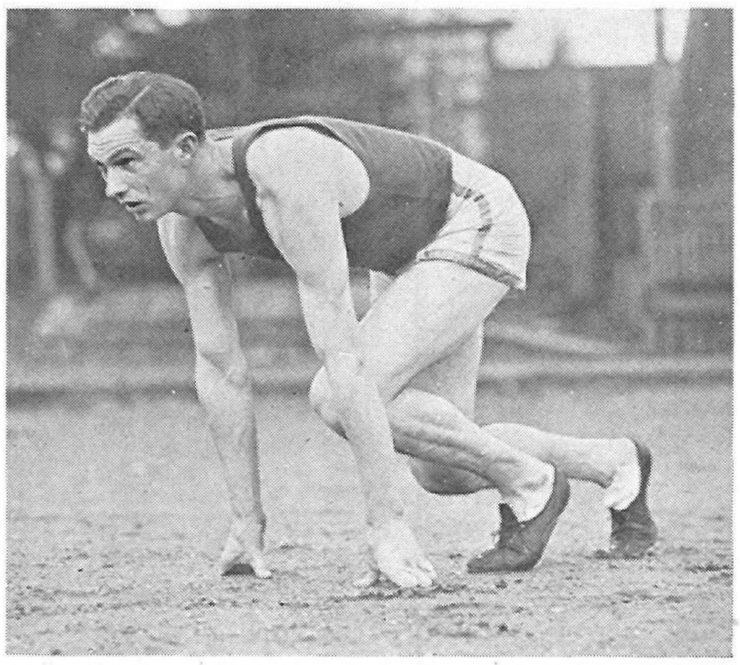

George Clarke, spring champion of the Conference last year, is going as strong as ever. He has led the field in trials consistently. Web Augustine, Ed Peltret, and Marv Schroeder are good men in the short distances. Sprinting competition this year is likely to be keener, however.

Ken Applegate, quarter-mile champ, should come through with some more sterling races as he did last year. Torney and Amey are also good quarter-milers. Tupper is a tough opponent in both the 220 and 440 yard races.

Three letter men out for the half mile. Van Voris, Snyder, and Wyers all wear letters earned in the two lap event. Wyers is also adept at the quarter-mile. Jim Charteris from the Frosh has shown his heels to the varsity men in practice, and may be a star this year. He should get below two minutes flat before the end of the season.

Bill Maginnis and Winchester King are two-milers who generally romp in with first and second places.

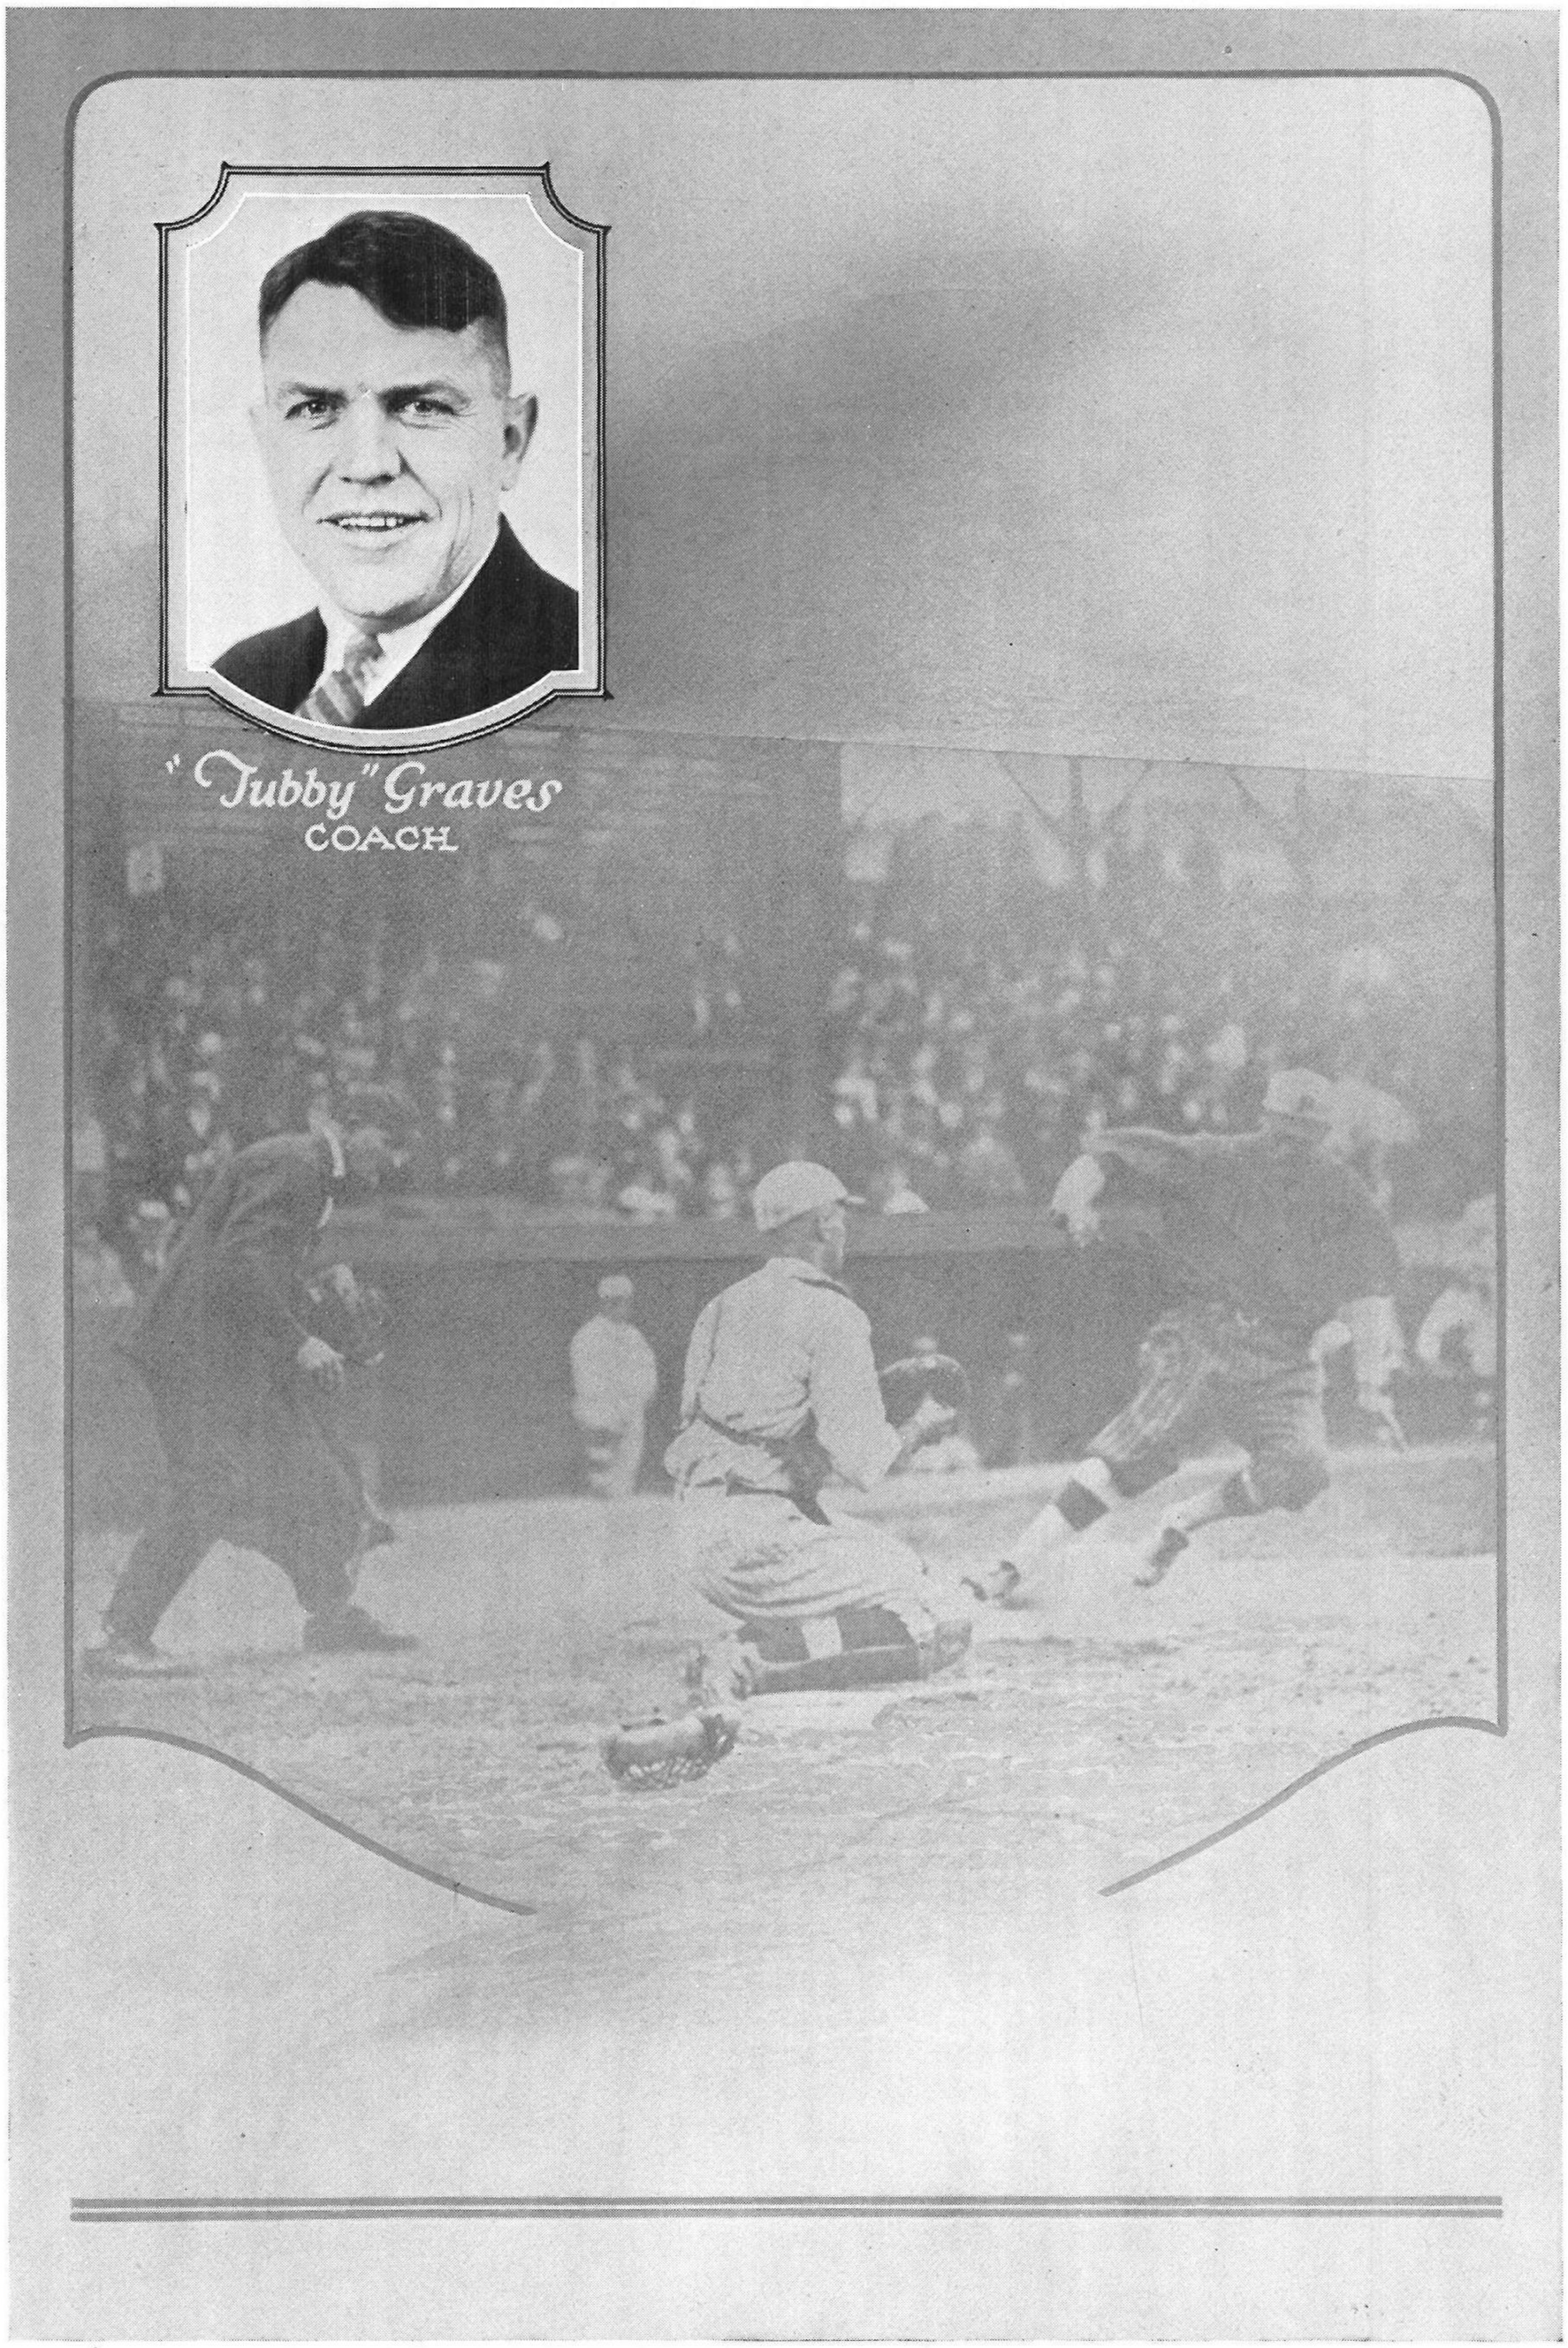

With a big season looming for the Huskies Edmundson was working hard with a large squad of lettermen, former Freshmen and newcomers who were trying to win berths on the Varsity team.

"Tubby" Graves
COACH

Baseball in 1924

By Dick Rickard

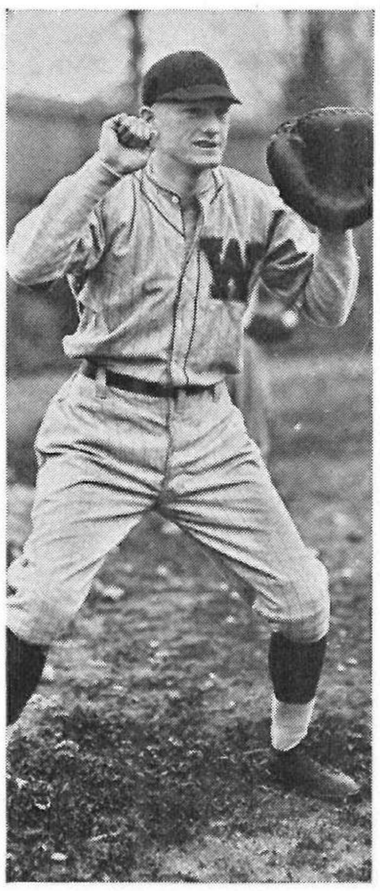

The Varsity Squad

PLAYING fast, consistent ball, the University of Washington 1924 baseball team had a very successful season. With the championship within their grasp they were forced to take second place, forfeiting one game to Whitman on the ineligibility of one player. However, the Huskies took the wrong end of the breaks cheerfully and met all competition with a wallop.

Early in March the first turnouts were called and a number of aspiring "Christys," "Tys" and "Babes" flocked on Denny Field to catch the beaming gaze of Coach Dorsett V. "Tubby" Graves. Numerous city teams furnished practice games during the perod of training.

The first game of the year was played on Denny Field on April 15 with Meijii University of Japan. With Liston in the box, the Husky nine defeated the Orientals 5 to 1, but in the contest held the day following they were on the short end of a 4 to 2 score. The Japanese lads produced plenty of speedy plays and some nice hitting.

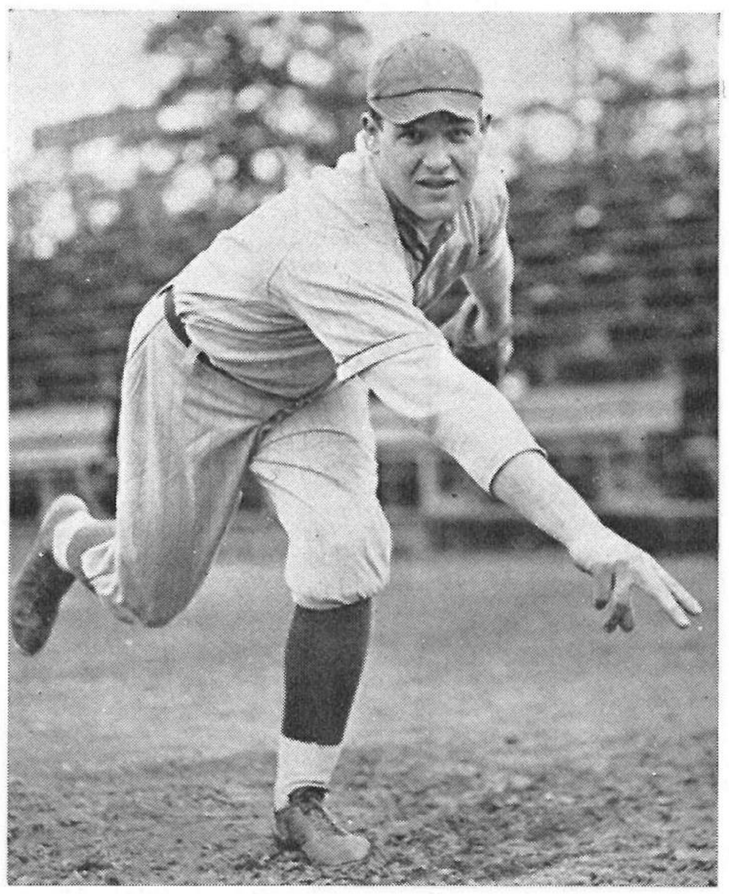

Gene Walby

On April 18, "Tubby" led his boys against Whitman and defeated them in an eleven-inning thriller, 4 to 3. The Missionaries were again defeated the next day, 6 to 4. In the "Lucky" seventh inning the Huskies took all six runs.

April 25 the Washingtonians made a trip to Corvallis and split the two game series with the Aggies. Running on down to Eugene they met the University of Oregon and won one and tied one.

Idaho invaded the campus on May 2, but they were defeated in short order, 12 to 8. On May 3, the Vandals came back letting down the Huskies 9 to 6. The Washington

Elmer Tesreau

State Cougars visited next for a two-game series breaking even with the Huskies. On May 9 and 10, Montana dropped two to the Huskies on Denny field, 7 to 3, and 14 to 0.

At Walla Walla the Whitman College team took one on the chin from Washington, 10 to 3, but between rounds the Missionaries braced and returned an uppercut to the Seattle boys, 6 to 1.

The Cougar again gnashed his teeth and at Pullman the visitors were defeated 4 to 3. Baring his fangs the Husky snarled a win the next day at the long end of the same score. The Vandals were baffled at Moscow by "Tubby" Graves' Purple herd, 11 to 8, and 6 to 4.

The final series of the season was played on Denny field, May 23 and 24, with the Oregon Aggies. After a closely fought contest the Beavers triumphed, 9 to 6. The last day of baseball for the Huskies in 1924 dawned gloomy. On account of the drizzle so uncommon to Washington weather the final game was called at the end of the sixth inning, the game being Washington's, 9 to 1.

Thus a very successful season was completed. "Tubby" Graves' pitching staff was composed of Elmer Tesreau, Ed Liston, Willard McDonald, Alvin "Pierp" Morgan and Harold Shidler. With such a staff he was able to alternate and pick his pitchers so that they were in good shape all season. The staff, being well balanced, gave "Tubby" the chance to "mix 'em up," changing around his right hand twirlers with his south-siders.

Freddy Lewis

It was quite a problem for Graves to find a receiver to take the place of Gene "Beaner" Walby. "Beaner" had shown some wondrous stuff in 1923 but he was declared ineligible on a Conference ruling for last year. After looking in all the dark alleys around the campus the coach happened to discover "Big Bob" Boyd, and with a confident grin "Tubby" found the solution to his problem. "Big Bob" proved to be a real backstopper.

Dick Frayn, Freddy Lewis, and Orin "Matty" Matlock made up Washington's outfield and they showed their stuff in proper style. Their fielding was close to perfect and they all hit over .335.

Hughie Beckett, Art "40 Love" Langlie, Harold Jackson, "Shanty" Malone, and Hienie Hyllengren constituted the Husky infield in the majority of games. Plenty of pep and plenty of real baseball made these men stand out prominently in the Conference.

"Shanty" Malone led the hitting of the season with an average of .352. He was closely followed by "Deerfoot" Langlie, Freddy Lewis and Hughie Beckett.

Harold Jackson

Shager, Dobson, and Dawson were always on hand to fill the bill when "Tubby" called.

No captain was elected during the season but a different field captain was appointed for each game. No leader has yet been selected for the 1925 team. Bill Easterbrook handled the managerial reins for the squad in a very satisfactory manner. "Burr" Williams was appointed his successor for 1925.

The 1925 season will see a new plan toward greater athletics unfold itself. While some of the early games of the season will find the Huskies fighting on old Denny Field, the majority of the diamond contests will be held on the new baseball field, now under construction, just north of the stadium. This is but a step toward the goal of a great athletic plant which will rival that of any other modern college.

With such facilities for better games and better practice, a really experienced squad, all of the 1924 squad being eligible to return but Freddy Lewis and Ed Liston, and some fine material coming up from the Frosh, Coach "Tubby" Graves is assured of a colorful and sparkling ball club.

FRESHMAN BASEBALL

The University Freshman nine has proved in the past an excellent maker of future Varsity stars and last year's Yearling team was no exception to the general rule.

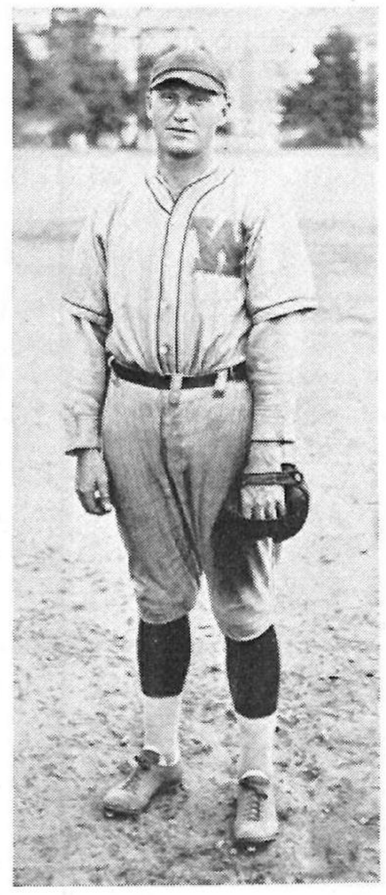

Al Morgan

Several first year men played on Coach Torchy Torrance's aggregation that showed promise of developing into fine material for the team of Coach Tubby Graves and several of the 1924 Freshman ball tossers are expected to play on the first Washington team.

The Freshman tossers finished the 1924 season with a good record, winning the majority of its games against some formidable opponents. The Yearlings play a regular routine of games every year, meeting all of the strong local high school teams, St. Martin's College, the Normal school teams and some of the State prep schools, when it is possible to arrange tilts.

In Torchy Torrance, the assistant graduate manager, who leads the destinies of the Frosh on the ball field during the spring months, the Freshmen have a high class mentor who knows all the angles of the game he teaches. Torrance held forth at shortstop during his college days and incidentally was one of the best tossers on the Purple and Gold nine, during his time.

Orin Matlock

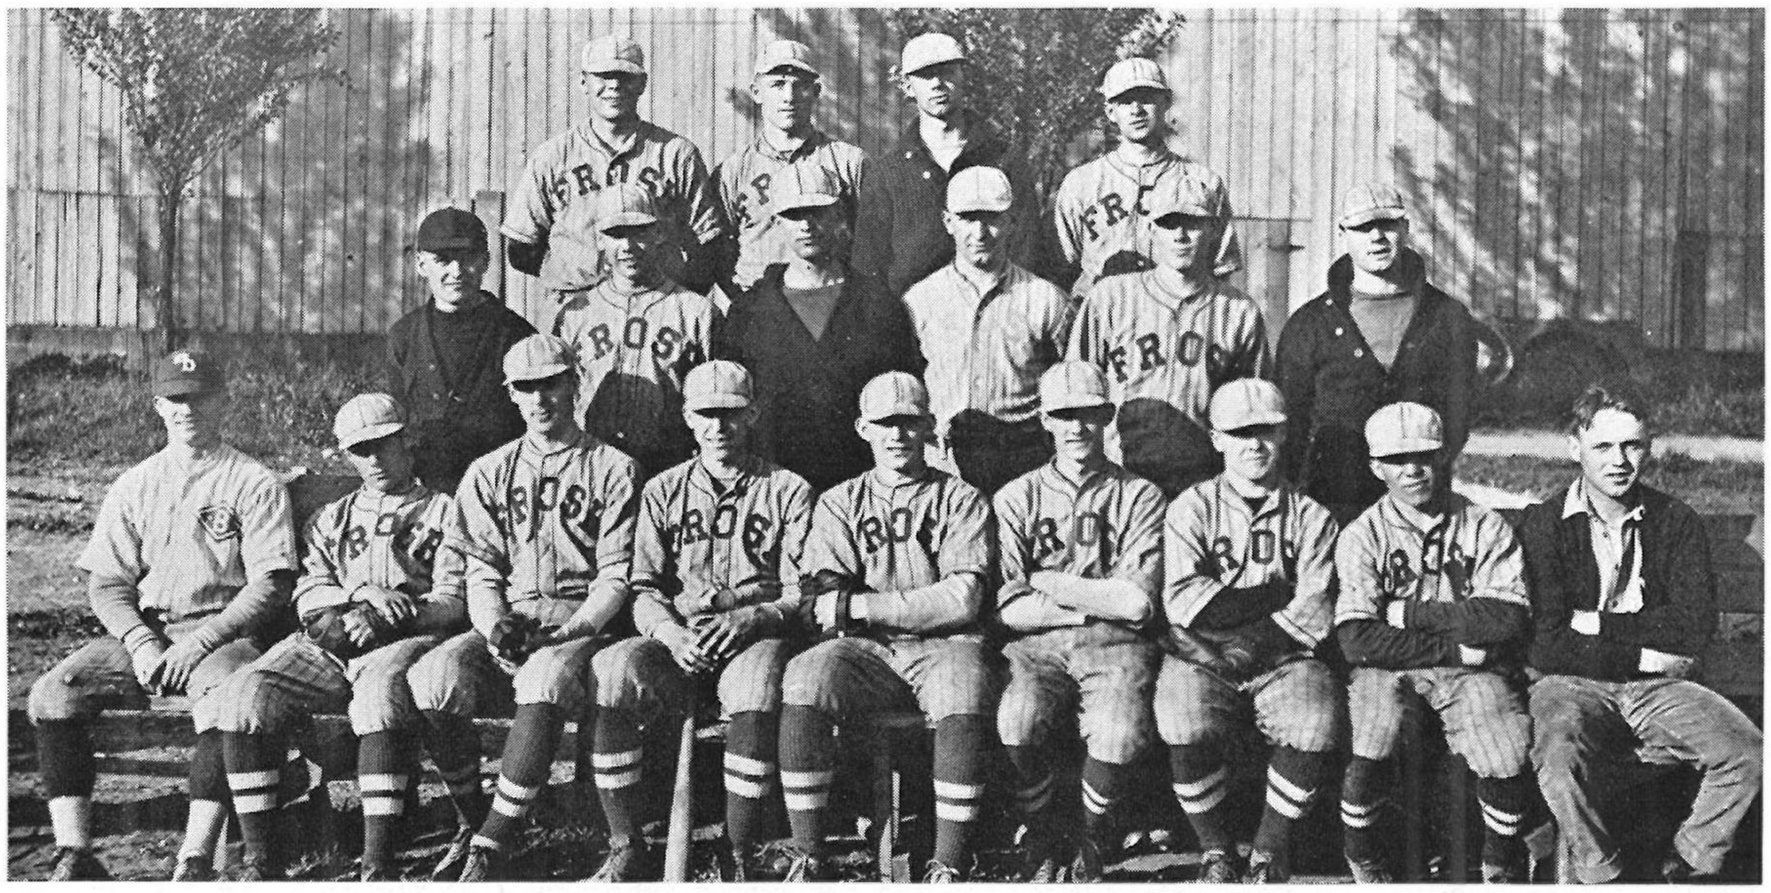

One of the best prospects that Torrance turns over to Graves for the Varsity team of 1925 is Louie Tesreau. Tesreau is a hard hitter and good fielder and is practically a cinch to fill a vacant berth on the Varsity nine.

Several other men of promise will undoubtedly make a strong fight for places on the Varsity, and although most of the berths should be filled by lettermen the ex-Frosh may fill in as substitutes one season and then land places as regulars later.

The Yearlings have a full schedule of games that will keep them on the go all the time.

A large turnout greeted Coach Torrance and from first glances it appears that the Yearlings may be weak in the pitching department. Contrasting to the lack of a large turnout of hurlers is the fact that five good catchers are trying for the place behind home plate.

When the Varsity moves down to its new field by the Stadium the Freshmen will take over Denny Field and with a better diamond to practice on and to hold its games the Yearlings should have a big season in 1925.

COACH BAGSHAW

ED KUHN

T T MATSUMOTO

Football

By Wilbur McGuire

WASHINGTON'S fondest hopes—a Championship—the coast conference title, which the student body desired and which Coach Enoch Bagshaw had hoped for, after four years of waiting, did not materialize this past season.

That championship went glimmering with the fleeting shadows of a late afternoon on an Oregon gridiron when the Lemon-Yellow eleven of Eugene put the skids under the Huskies to the tune of 6 to 0. Previous to that game Oregon was not considered as a possible contender and was looked upon as the weak sister of the conference. Many have tried to explain the why and wherefore of the Oregon game, but this remains, the Purple Tornado fought and played hard, Oregon fought and played hand, and Oregon won.

Although the Huskies did lose a little prestige, for the time being, as the result of their loss at Oregon's hands, Washington did finish the season with a good record, winning six, tieing one and losing one.

And here is a little more to ponder over—lost three games in three years! That is the record at which Bagshaw points with pride and that few coaches, if any, have equalled.

Baggy has instilled into his men a fighting spirit and a certain dogged do or die determination that bodes ill for all opposition. He has brought about a satisfactory graduate coaching system. But one man on the coaching staff, Tubby Graves, is not a former Washington player. Wayne Sutton, Bill Grimm, Wally Dailey and Ray Eckman are all former Huskies.

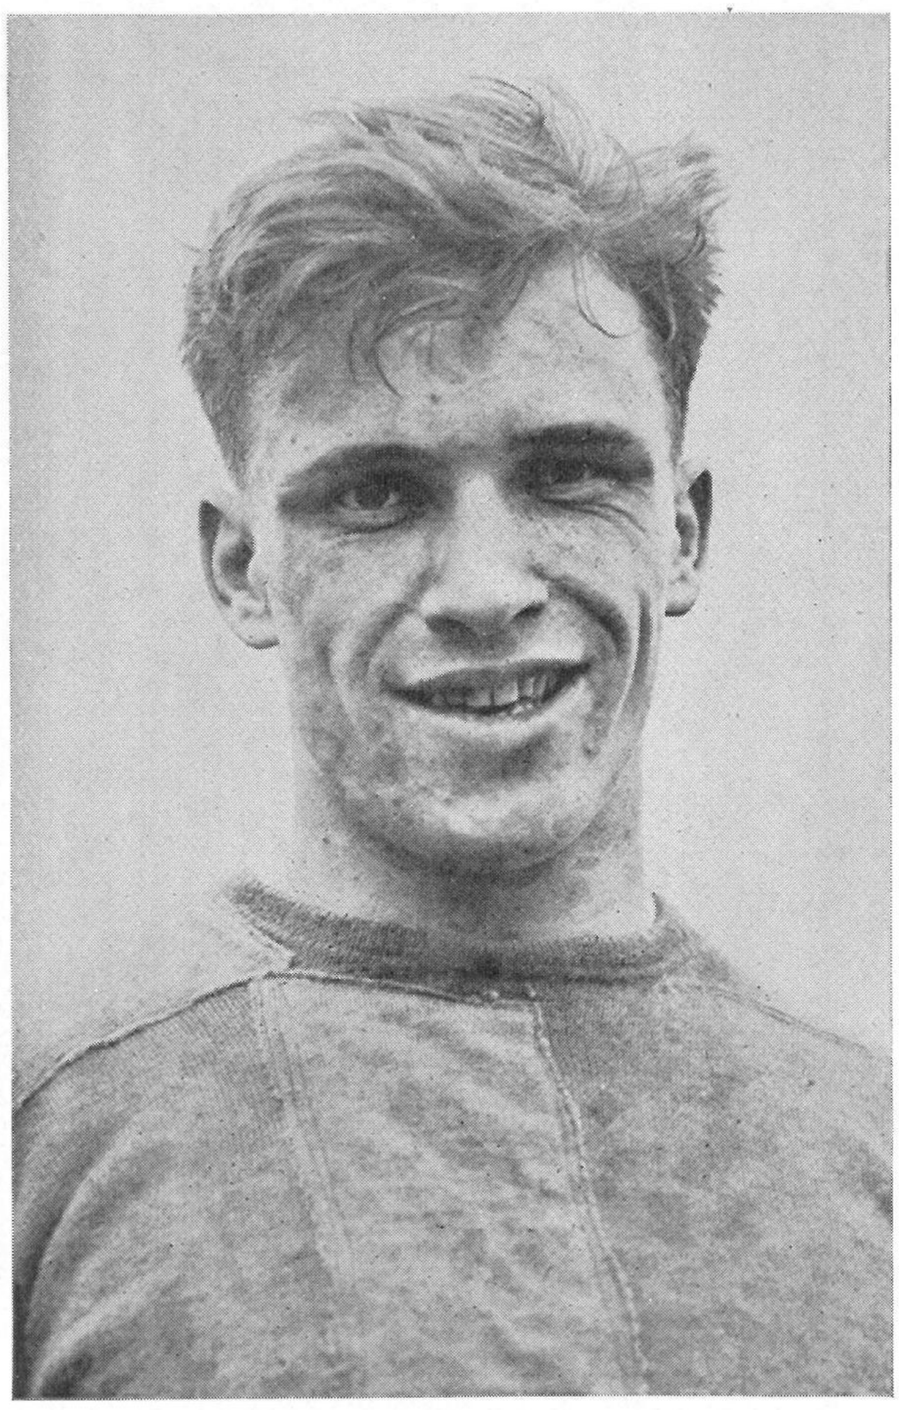

Lead U. S. in Scoring

Washington led the United States in scoring during the 1924 season, piling up 355 points to their opponents' 24. Montana, Oregon, and California each scored 7 points while O. A. C. grabbed one field goal.

The Huskies defeated the following collegiate rivals: Willamette, Whitman, Montana, O. A. C., College of Puget Sound, and Washington State College. They lost to Oregon and were held to a tie by California.

Two weeks after the first call for a turnout, Washington played its first games. On September 28, defeating West Seattle Athletic Club and the U. S. S. Maryland by scores of 33 to 0 and 32 to 0.

Baggy used his first stringers in the initial game against W. S. A. C. and all the reserves in the second tilt. George Guttormsen's excellent open field work and all around work featured the play.

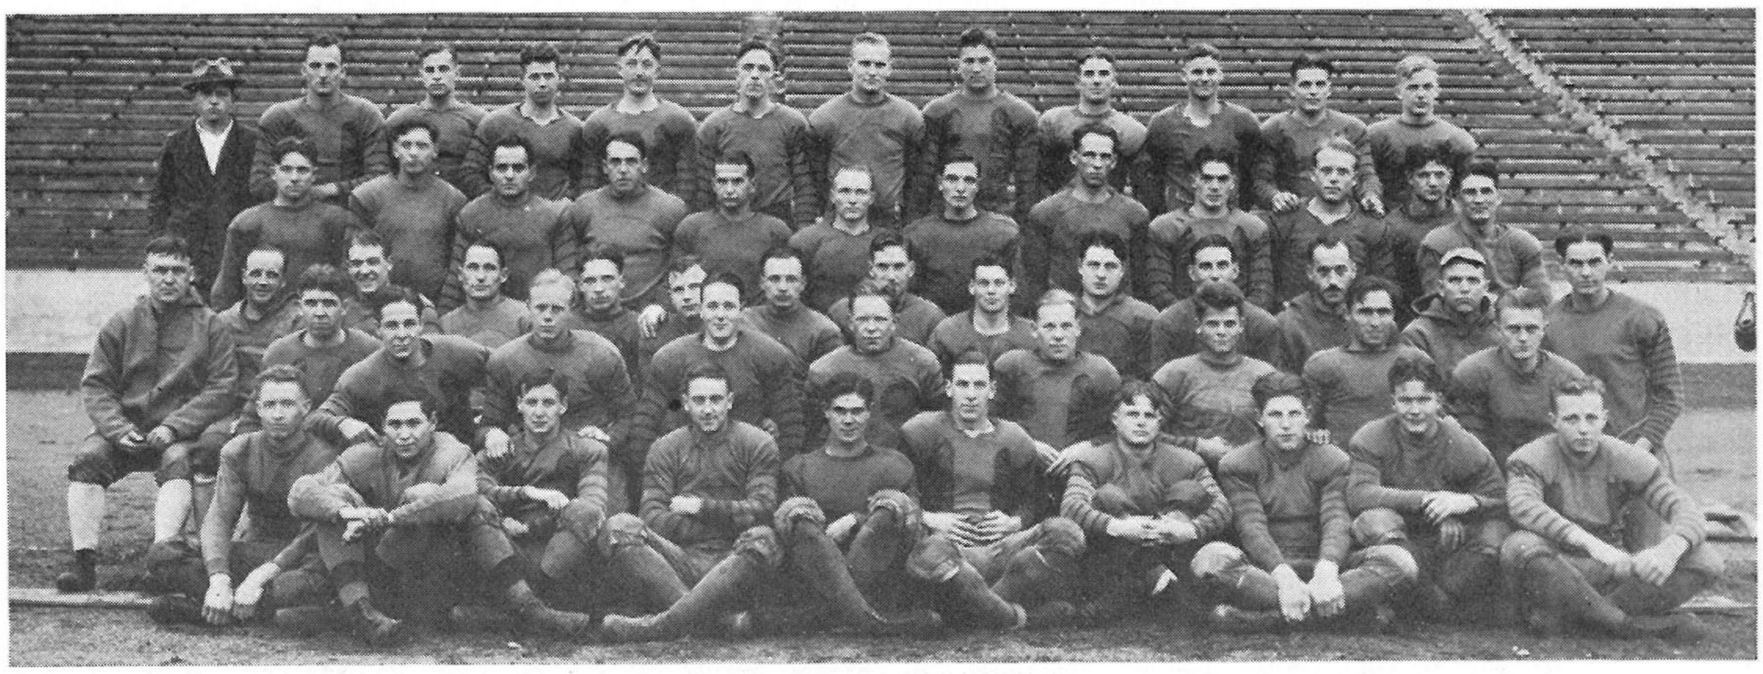

George Wilson

Willamette Game a Walkaway

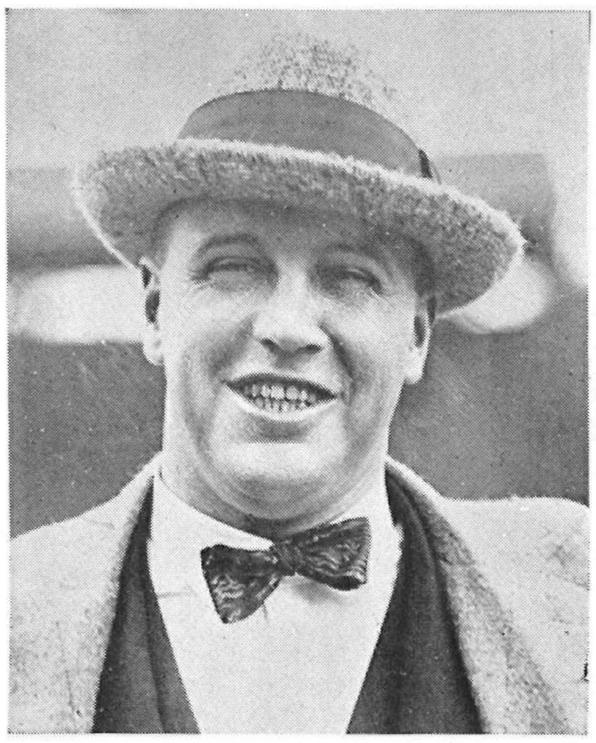

Displaying the power and machine-like precision that has been lacking in many a Husky team, Washington sent the Willamette Bearcats home on the short end of a 57 to 0 score on the following Saturday.

Mike Hanley scintillated in the game, dazzling the boys with his ball toting tactics. He passed and carried the ball brilliantly and finished up a perfect afternoon with a 35-yard drop kick.

The Bearcats' vaunted defense

The Squad

which had held Oregon to a scoreless tie on the previous Saturday failed to function, Washington making yardage almost at will.

Whitman A Cinch

On October 11, Nig Borleske brought his Whitman Wildcats to the Husky lair and saw them soundly trounced, 55 to 0.

Borleske put a light, fast, fighting team of veterans on the field but they were no match for the Husky juggernauts, Tesreau and Wilson.

Washington, 52; Montana, 7

Washington completely overwhelmed the Montana Grizzlies on the following Saturday, winning 52 to 7, but a stocky little fellow by the good old Irish name of Kelly completely stole the show.

The sensational Bill Kelly made the Grizzlies lone touchdown on an 85-yard run through the entire Washington team, yodelled signals, did most of the tackling, carried the ball, ran back the punts and hurled passes.

The Husky backfield, despite the absence of Wilson, looked good. Guttormsen, Shidler, Hanley, Beckett, Tesreau and Parmeter carried the brunt of the attack.

O. A. C. Surprises

Washington's first surprise came when the fighting Aggies from Corvallis displayed remarkable defensive strength under their own goal posts and were only beaten 6 to 3 on a muddy field.

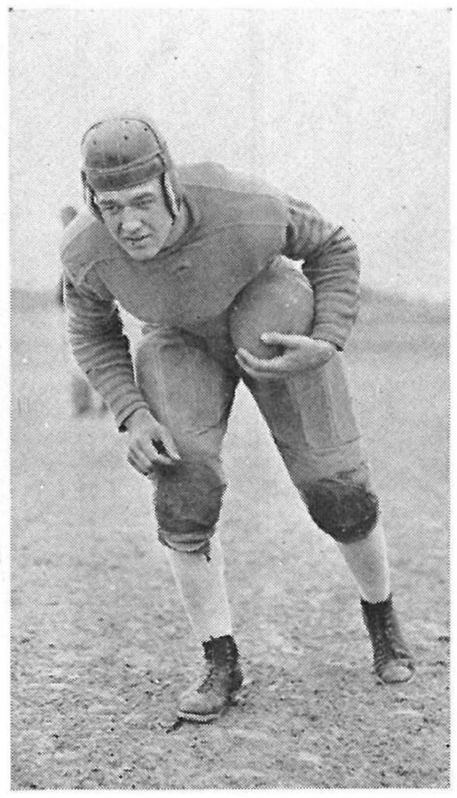

O. A. C. scored first on a place kick by Schulmerich in the first quarter. Wilson made the only touchdown of the game early in the second frame when he broke through the center of the Aggie's line and twisted and side-stepped his way 67 yards to the goal line.

The Huskies gained at will in midfield, but fumbles and penalties usually proved costly when near the goal line.

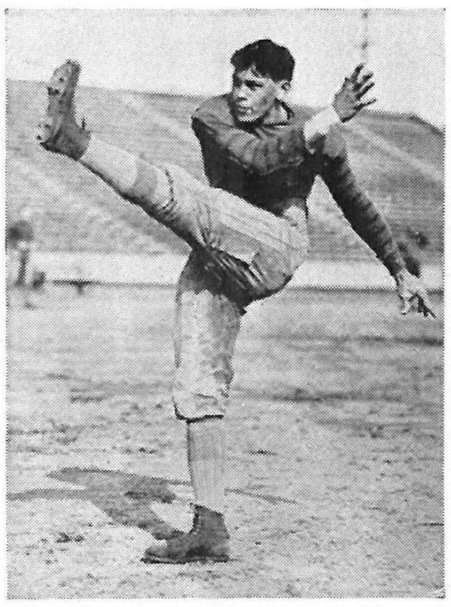

Washington fans were given their only view of the huddle system in this game.

Oregon Disaster

Confident of humbling the weak Oregon team Bagshaw assembled his men for their only road trip. But —crash, down went the Huskies to a heart-breaking defeat and with it their chances for the championship.

More than one thousand students watched a play-by-play account of the game, telegraphed to the Armory from Eugene. On the automatic scoreboard they saw how Jones, Oregon fullback, tore large gaps in the Husky line, saw the great Husky backs gain at will in mid-field only to run up against a stone wall when close to the goal line.

At Eugene the field was a virtual quagmire. Bad breaks, poor headwork and penalties cost Washington the tilt.

Mike Hanley

Wilson's punt from behind his own goal line struck the cross bar and rebounded over the line. Mautz, lanky Webfooter end, fell on the ball for what proved to be the winning score.

Injuries to Kuhn, McRae and Guttormsen, handicapped the team a great deal.

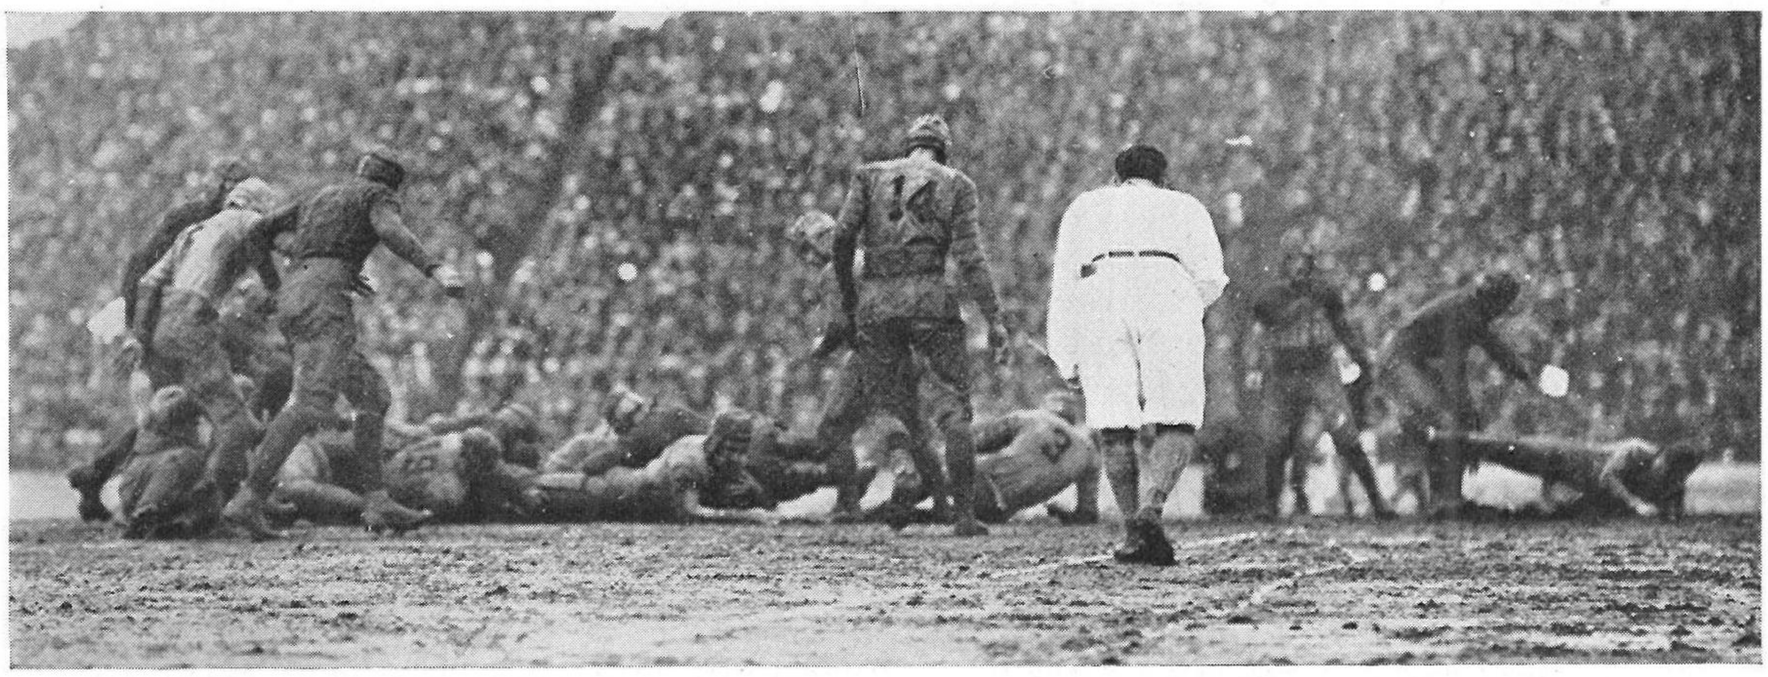

The California Game

Despite the setback at Oregon's hands, the Purple Tornado came back with a zest the next Saturday and fought its way to tie, with the great Golden Bear team from Berkeley. Washington gained a 7 to 7 tie.

But only by looking at the score board could the fans see Washington's even showing against the Berkeley team. Using the same deceptive spin play which featured their attack on their last showing in the Stadium in 1922, the Bruins forced Washington throughout the entire game on November 8.

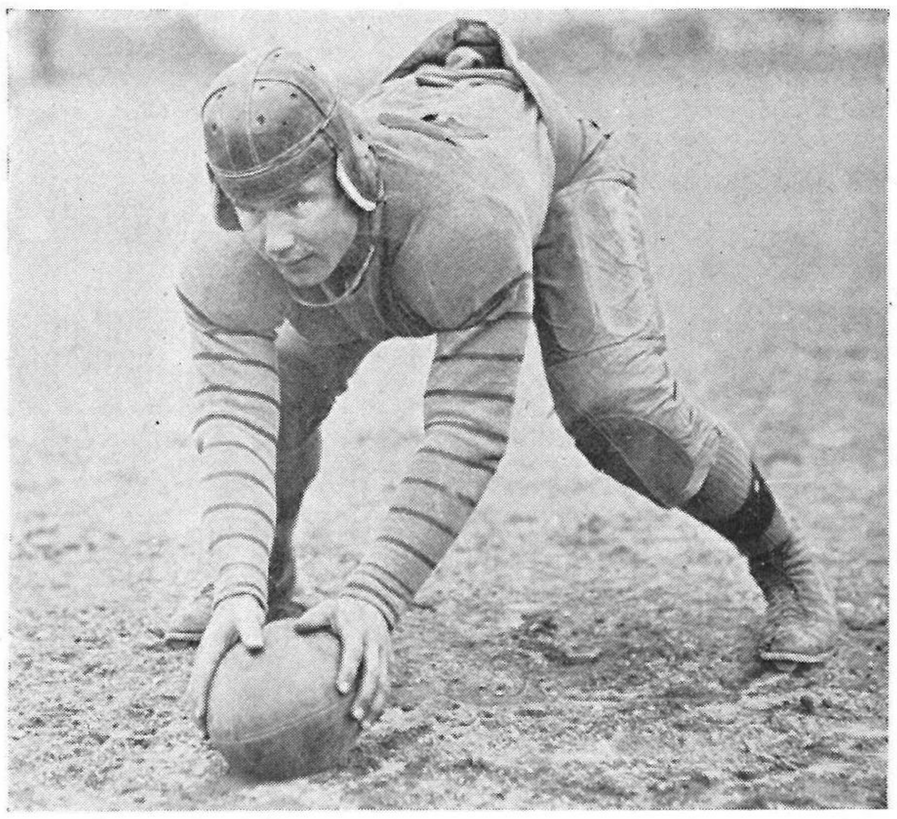

A Washington blunder gave California its score when a partly blocked punt was recovered by California on the 30-yard line while the Huskies stood watching the ball roll. Had it not been for this lapse of memory Washington might have won that game. Jabs, Bear fullback, bucked the ball over on line plays, and Carlson converted the try-for-point.

Out-played but not out-fought and with but five minutes to go, California holding the ball, McRae recovered a Bruin fumble on the 30-yard line. Lillis was sent in for McRae and received a pass on the first play for a substantial gain. The same play which netted a touchdown in the famous Navy game. A short pass, Wilson to Guttormsen, netted more yardage.

Starting for the Golden Bear Goal Line

Here is a good action picture of how the Huskies started the drive that tied the California game. Washington has the ball in mid-field with Wilson being tackled after a gain through the line. Bobby Morris, the popular official is shown bearing down on the play.

Chalmers Walters

Tommy Youell

George Wilson then got away to a 27-yard run on a crisscross around right end to the 12-yard line. Here the Bears held and on the fourth down with seven yards to go, Wilson tossed a well masked pass to the fleet footed Guttormsen who carried the ball over for a touchdown.

With one minute to go, and a chance to tie the score, Harold Shidler went in to convert the try-for-point. He did so to the satisfaction of thirty thousand howling fans.

Tut Imlay's splendid open field running and Captain Horrell's line playing stood out for California.

Harold Patton, Wilson and Tesreau played great ball throughout the game.

California showed a superior set of wingmen, Guttormsen being downed in his tracks repeatedly.

Huge Score for Camp

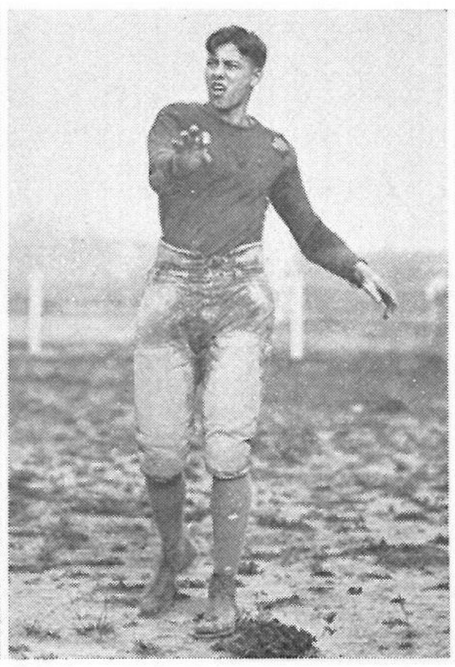

The next week, before the eyes of Walter Camp, football sage of New Haven, George Wilson led his team in a scoring orgy against the College of Puget Sound. The final score was 96 to 0, incidentally the largest score of the western grid season.

Coach Bagshaw used every man who had made the trip.

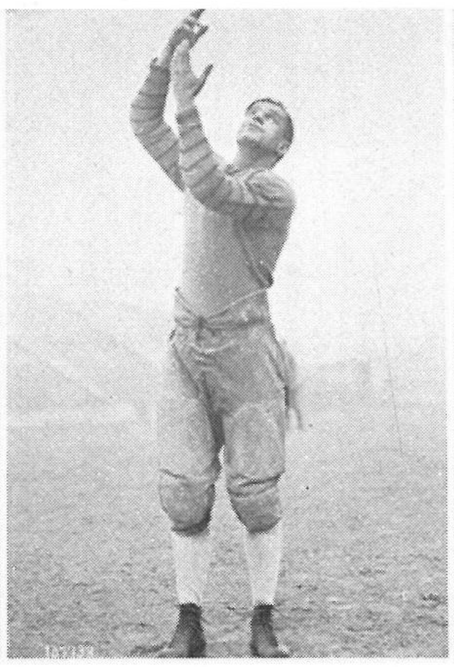

Camp liked the way Harold Shidler, Tesreau and Patton performed. Tesreau's defensive work stood out.

Win Over Traditional Rivals

George Wilson, Bagshaw's great All-American back was the spark plug of a driving attack that carried the Huskies to a 14 to 0 victory over their traditional rivals from Pullman in the final game of the season on November 22.

The highly touted Cougar offensive failed to materialize against the Huskies. Koenig, Exendine's brilliant Eskimo halfback, gave the fans a thrill several times by his passing and ball running, putting his teammates into a position to score twice.

Wilson contributed largely toward Washington's first score when he crashed off right tackle 49 yards to the one yard mark. Tesreau carried it over and Guttormsen converted. Wilson, Tesreau and Patton bucked the ball for the length of the field for the final score.

Captain Kuhn, Bellman, Dubois, Westrom, Seivers, and Walters, played remarkable ball in their final college game.

All Stars

George Wilson, All-American halfback! Washington's greatest back was picked for All-American honors by Walter Camp, noted grid authority, after watching Wilson in action, on his tour of the West.

Wilson won the reputation this year of being the greatest ball runner in the far-West. He can run, kick, pass, in fact, he can do everything required of a football player and do it perfectly. The great Husky back was also picked by George Varnell, noted football official, on the All-Coast team. He was the unanimous choice of other coast critics.

Five men on the All-Coast team. For the first time since the inauguration of Pacific Coast Conference football, Washington has a record number of men who have landed berths on the mythical All-Star teams.

Tackled in Mid-field
George Guttormsen stopped after a long gain against Whitman

Chalmers Walters, playing his third year on the varsity, was picked as center for the second time on the second All-Coast team, rating next only to Babe Horrell, California's great center and guard on Walter Camp's All-American team for 1924.

Walters also won the Flaherty medal for being the greatest inspiration to his teammates throughout the year.

Vern Bellman was placed at guard on George Varnell's second team for the second time. He has played three years on the varsity.

Captain Ed Kuhn and Elmer Tesreau were picked as tackle and fullback respectively on the second team. Many coast critics gave Tesreau a place on their first teams. Both men showed brilliantly, being exceptionally strong on the defense.

Tesreau and Wilson will return in 1925 to form a nucleus for a great backfield.

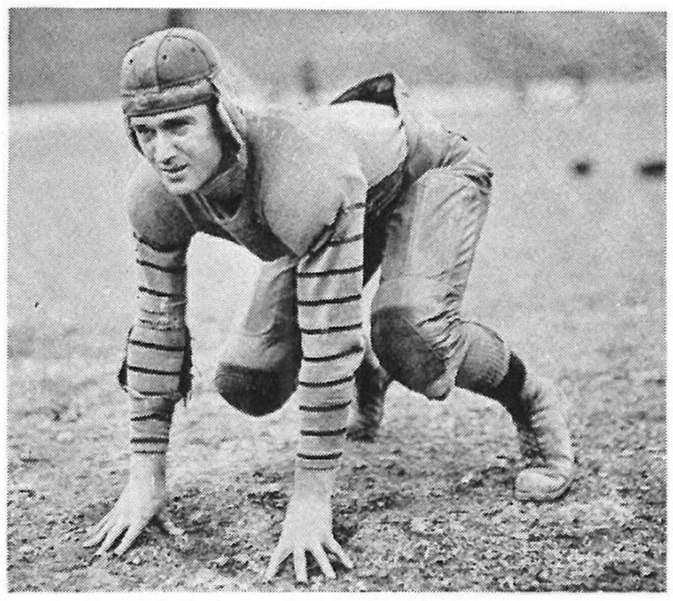

Tesreau 1925 Captain

At a meeting of the players after the Cougar game Elmer Tesreau was elected to pilot the squad in 1925, succeeding Ed Kuhn. Chalmers Walters was voted the Flaherty medal for being the greatest inspiration to his teammates.

Varsity "W" sweaters were voted to the following players by the Board of Control: Walters, Bellman, Lillis, McRae, Captain Kuhn, G. Wilson, Petrie, Cole, Etherington, Erickson, Brix, Seivers, Hanley, Westrom, Dubois, Charleston, Parmeter, Patton, Shidler, Beckett, Cutting, Captain-elect Tesreau, Guttormsen, A. Wilson. Tom Youell was awarded the manager's "W" sweater.

Dick Stockwell was appointed student manager in football for 1925.

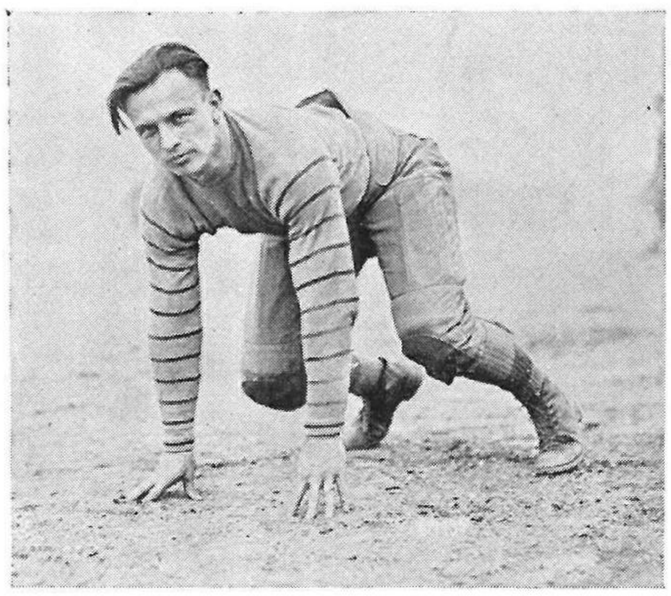

Coast football followers were given a complete surprise to learn that Bart Spellman, head line coach at Oregon for the past five years had resigned because of the heavy business interests falling upon him after the death of his father and were much more surprised to learn that Darwin Meisnest, Graduate Manager of the University of Washington had signed him to assist Coach Bagshaw and "Tubby" Graves in handling the Purple and Gold football prospects. Spellman lives in Seattle and feared that his business here would keep him away from his football duties at the Lemon-Yellow institution in Eugene. As it is he can spend a great deal of his time in business in Seattle as well as materially assist Bagshaw in turning out a championship Husky football team.

Ken DuBois

The signing of Spellman puts the Washington coaching staff on a par with the large California institutions in coaching ability. The three California schools, Stanford, U. S. C., and California carry a large coaching personnel.

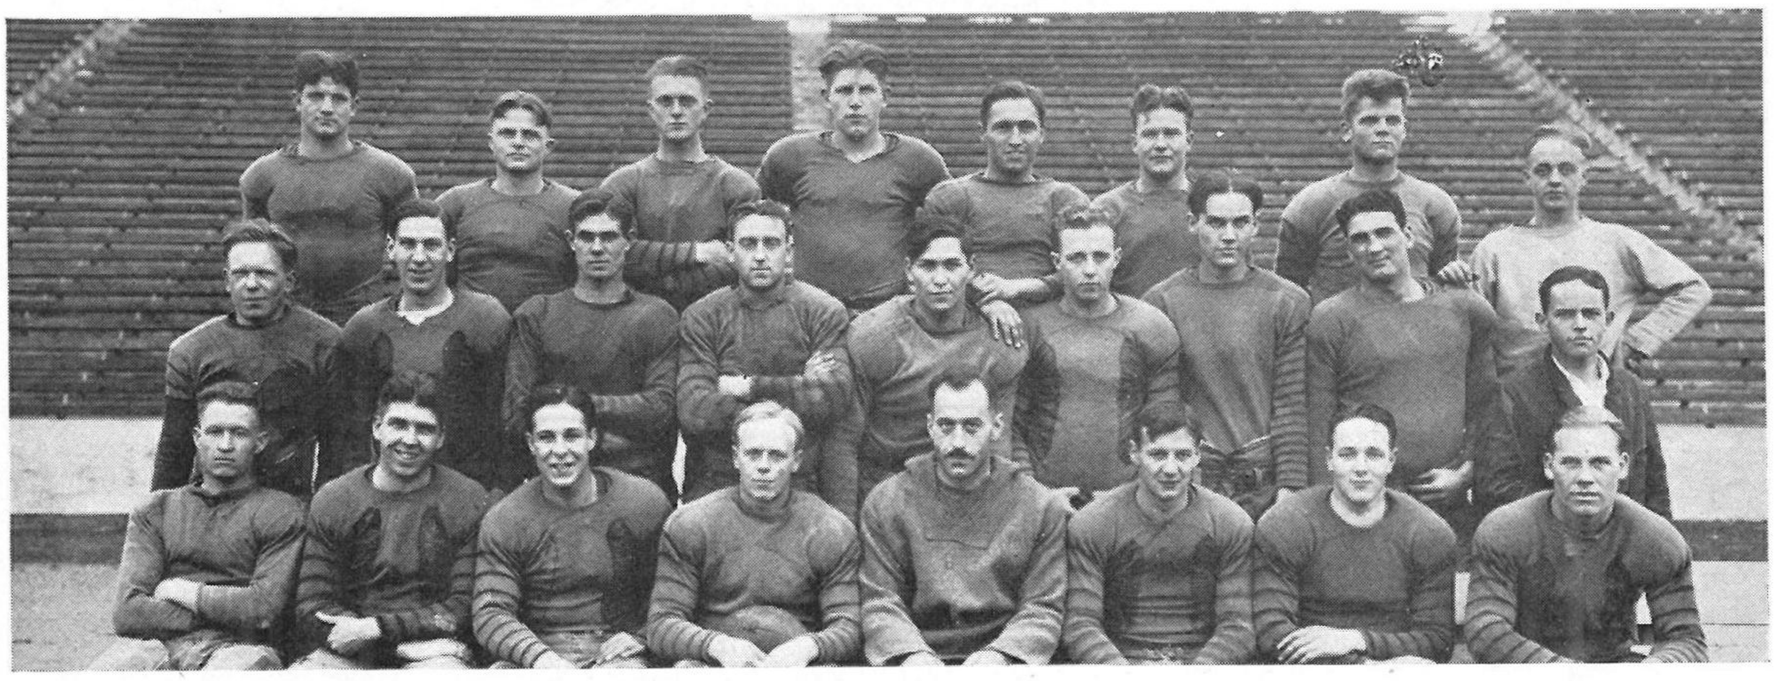

Oregon football will be greatly weakened as a result of Spellman's loss. It was the great Oregon line last fall that beat the Huskies out of at least a tie with Stanford and California for the Coast Conference championship and much of the credit went to Spellman for the way in which he had drilled his linemen. Oregon had one of the two lines on the coast last year that outplayed the great Washington line. California had the other, due mostly to the great offensive and defensive strength of "Babe" Horrell, Walter Camp's choice for All-American lineman.

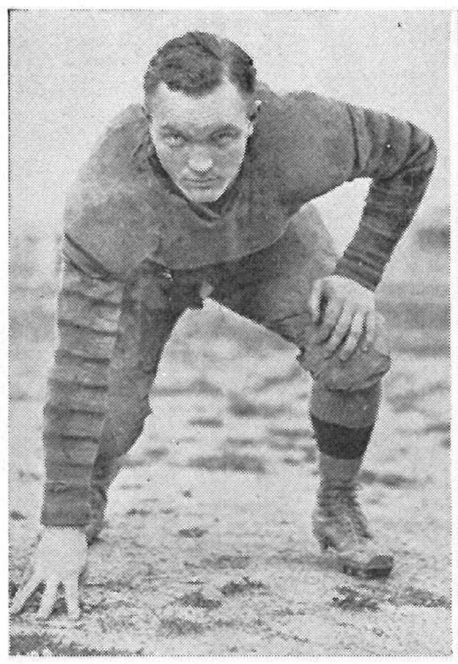

Abe Wilson

Spellman teaches his linemen to play high and use the hands a great deal while "Tubby" Graves coaches his men to play low and charge hard. With these two men in charge next fall Washington need not fear any line on the coast.

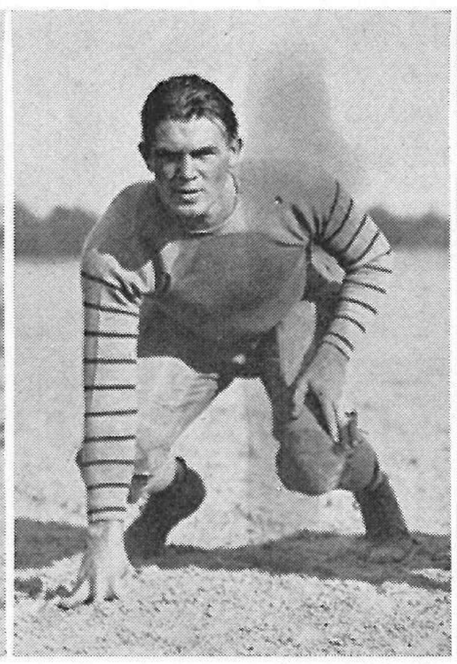

The Seattle boy learned his tricks under Hugo Bezdeck, famous Penn State mentor and former Oregon head coach. He was one of Bezdeck's stars back in '14, '15 and '16 when Oregon had great teams and was a lineman on the great Lemon-Yellow team of 1916 that held the incomparable Dobie machine to a tie in the last game between the two famous coaches.

Egbert Brix

Just what the outcome of the battle in the Stadium next fall between Baggy's Huskies and Oregon will be is a matter of conjecture. The Oregonians are noted for their fight and when two Spellman coached lines tangle a real battle should ensue. Add on to that the fact that Oregon would rather beat Washington than any other school on the coast, with the possible exception of their traditional rivals, O. A. C.

The addition of a new coach to the staff will also give Wayne Sutton a chance to devote his entire time to his yearling team instead of spending a large part of his time in midseason scouting the opposing teams.

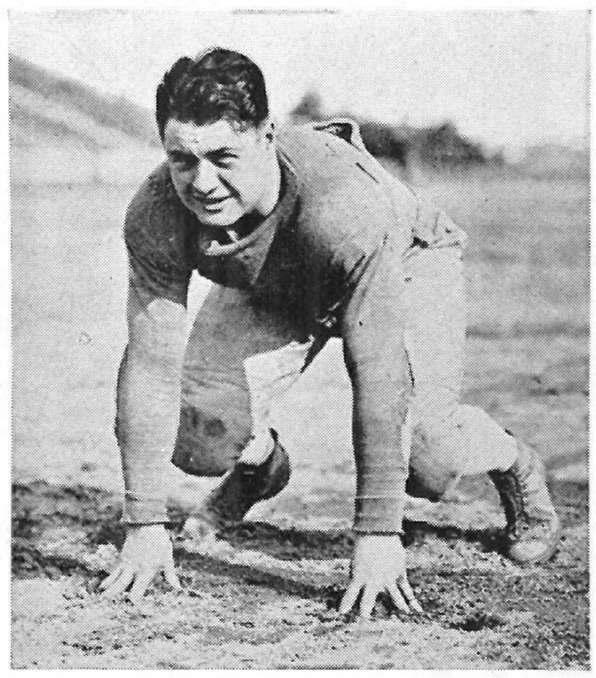

No school on the coast can boast of as jovial a set of coaches as the football staff at the University of Washington. They seem to realize that the men are human and mix work with pleasure in such a way that it is a real pleasure to work for any one of them. They have the esteem of the entire student body.

OUTLOOK FOR 1925

Washington's schedule for 1925 calls for games with several impressive opponents, and football fans are awaiting the start with keen anticipation.

The "Purple Tornado" will play Pop Warner's Stanford eleven in the Stadium and will travel south for the big game against the Golden Bears of California.

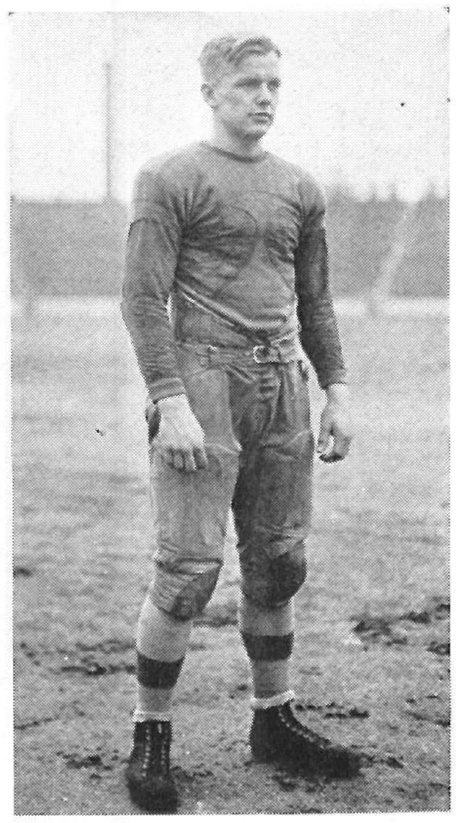

One of the biggest games of the season will be played in Nebraska when the Purple and Gold will hop the rattler for a jaunt into the mid-west to meet the Cornhuskers. Besides the three feature tilts Washington will meet Oregon, Washington State, and the other regular rivals of years gone by.

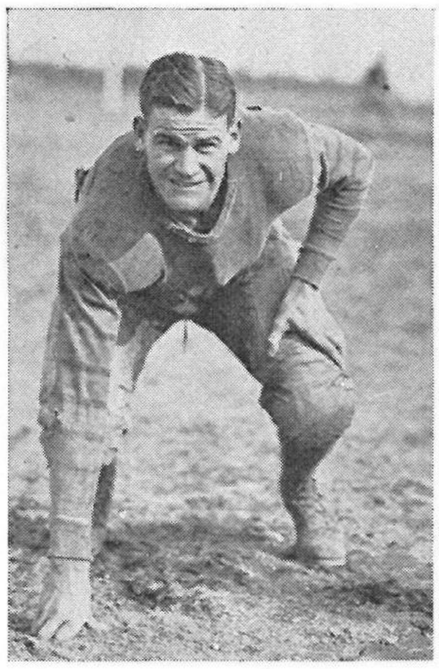

Vern Bellman

Although thirteen men will be lost to the squad next season, prospects are not gloomy for the coming season. Eleven lettermen will return including probably one of the greatest back fields ever congregated at Washington.

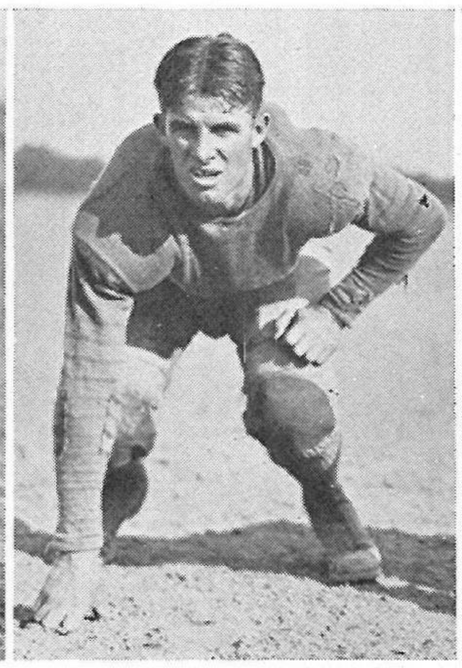

George Wilson and Captain-elect Tesreau will be out for their last year and should show a world of class. Harold Patton, Baggy's late season Sophomore find, and George Guttormsen with a year's experience under their belts will be tougher than ever to deal with. Other backs who will return are: Hanley, Charleston, Parmeter, Shidler, Beckett and Les Sherman, 1923 quarterback.

The Frosh squad will contribute some valuable material. Pat Wilson, Johnny Geehan, Johnny Stombough and Louis Tesreau are the most promising backs coming up from the Yearling squad.

Schuh, Dirkes, Cook, Lauzon, Lev, Brix, Spillers, Olson, Sahli, and Anderson look to be the best Frosh linemen who will graduate to the Varsity.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

Boasting the best Frosh football team since the days of the Wonder teams of 1921, Coach Wayne Sutton's yearling eleven wound up a perfect season by handing the Oregon rooks a 6 to 0 trimming on November 15, in the Stadium.

The Frosh played six games, defeating Ellensburg Normal, Bellingham Normal, St. Martin's College, W. S. C. Frosh and the Oregon Rooks. The reserves defeated Centralia High on Armistice Day.

The following men were voted numerals by the Board of Control: Schuh, Dirkes, Cook, Lev, Lauzon, Brix, Geehan, L. Tesreau, Stombaugh, Wilson, Spillers, Purcell, Turnacliffe, Olson, Anderson, Flanagan, Bishop, Smith, Wilson, Drysdale, Sparkman, Bowen, Dahlquest, Mitchell, and Sahli.

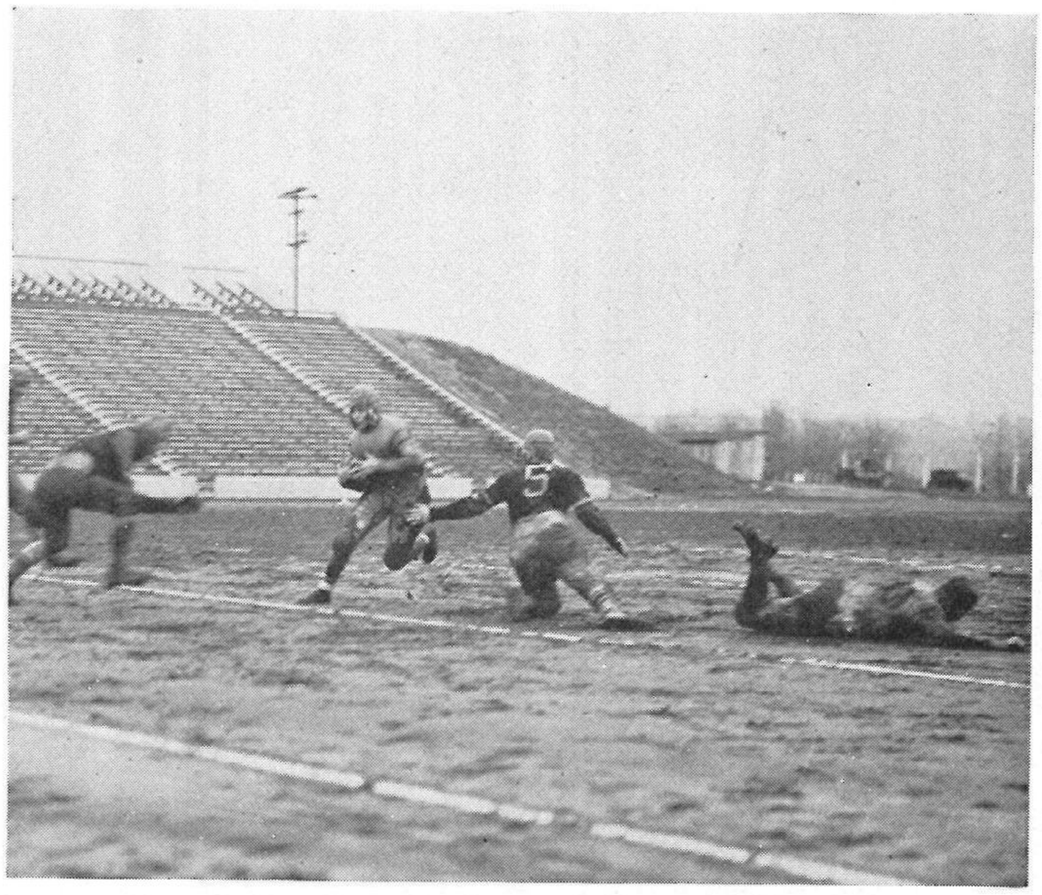

George Mills was student manager. Wally Dailey and Ray Eckmann were assistant Frosh football coaches.

George Guttormsen is making a brilliant return of a long punt made by Russ Sweet, the coast's best punter, at the start of the fourth quarter of the Montana tussle. Roy Petrie, the giant Husky tackle, is stretched out on the ground after sweeping the path clear of Grizzly tacklers for the speedy Washington quarterback. Washington defeated the Grizzlies from Montana by a comfortable margin and the ball toting tactics of Enoch Bagshaw's new find, Guttormsen, was largely responsible for the scores made by the Varsity eleven.

Here is a photo taken early in the season. It is the Willamette game which was one of the tussles that served to prepare the Huskies for the stiffer opponents which followed. The visitors are attempting a forward pass in the fourth quarter. On the extreme right Tesreau has started to intercept the pass after detecting the play.

The photographer snapped this picture just before the Washington quarterback started a play near the sidelines at the start of the second half of the Montana game. Bill Kelly, the sensational halfback is to the right of Umpire Dixie Fleager. The Husky backfield from left to right is Tesreau, Hanley, Shidler, and Parmeter.

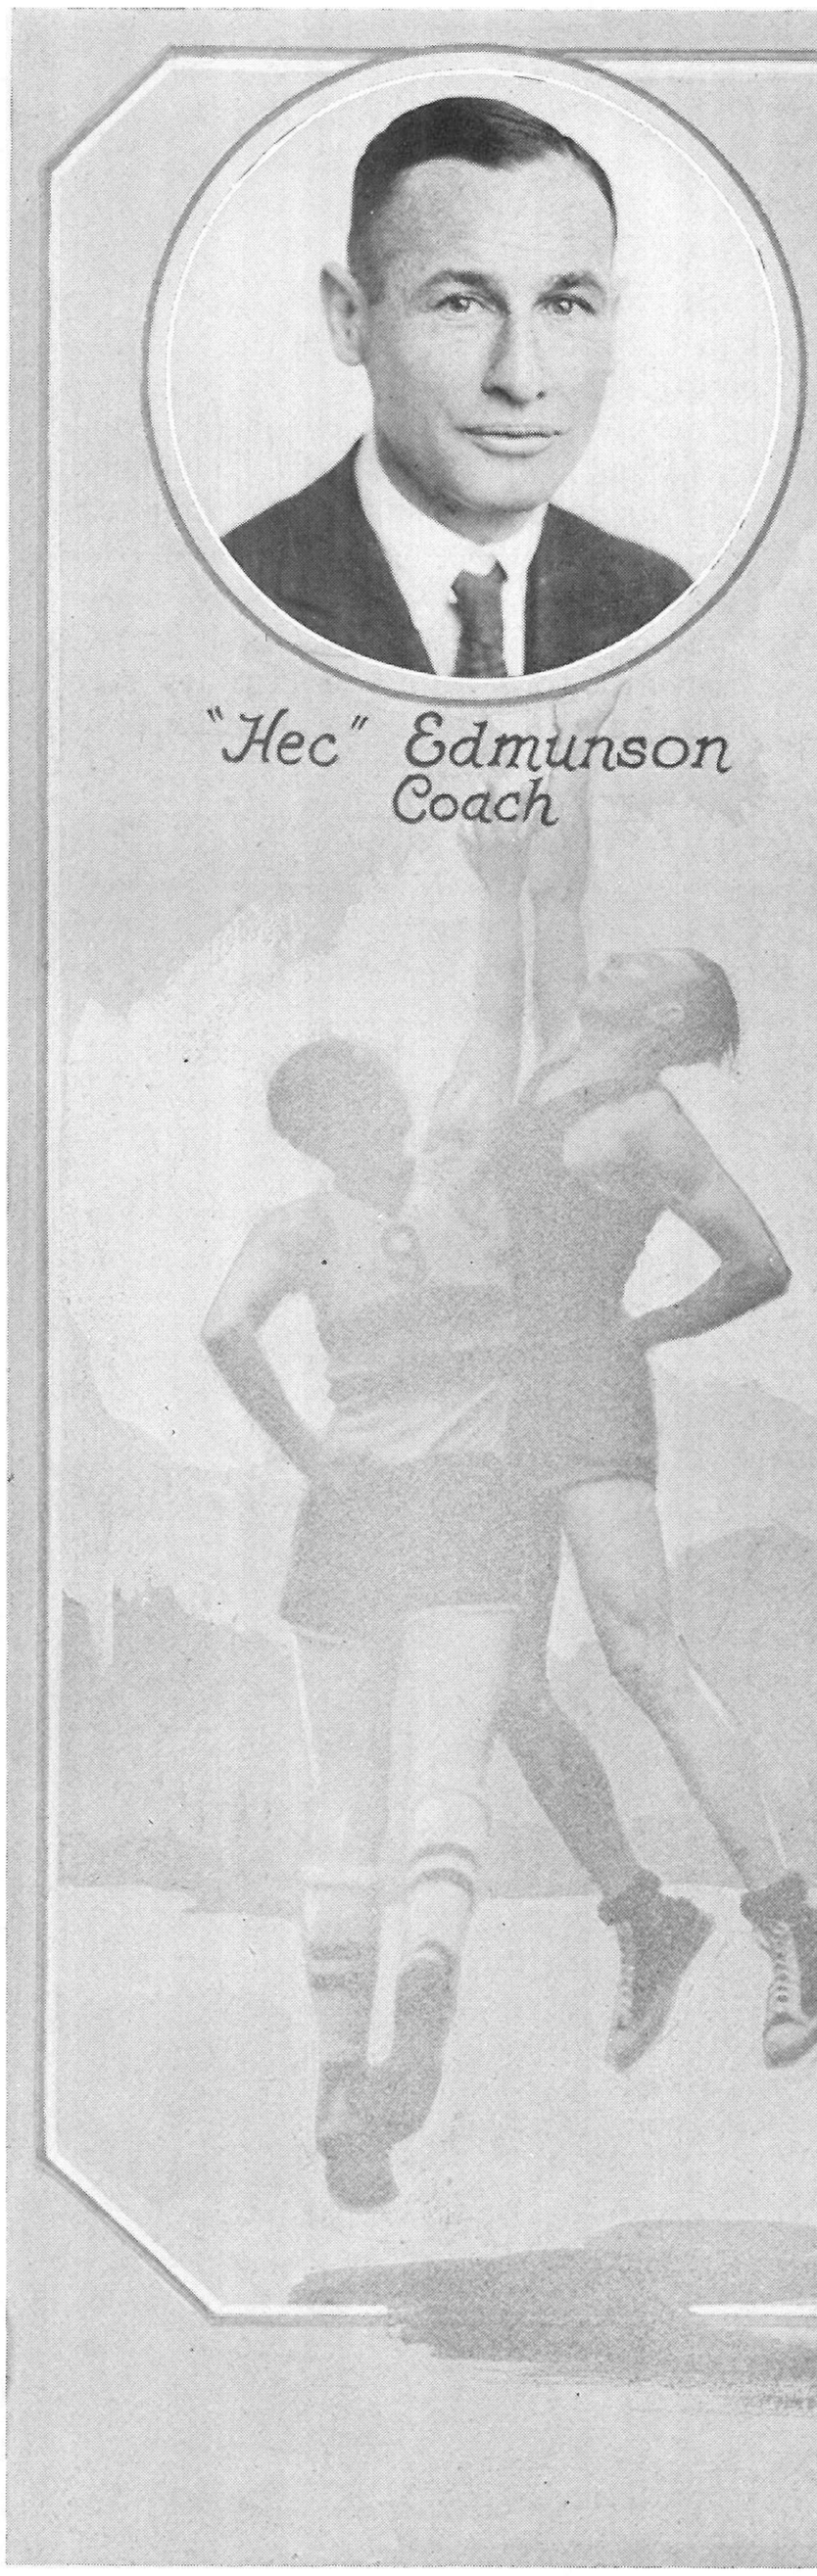

Bill Charleston is getting off to a long run in the Whitman game with a would-be tackler coming in fast from the side to stop the speeding Washington man from gaining valuable ground.

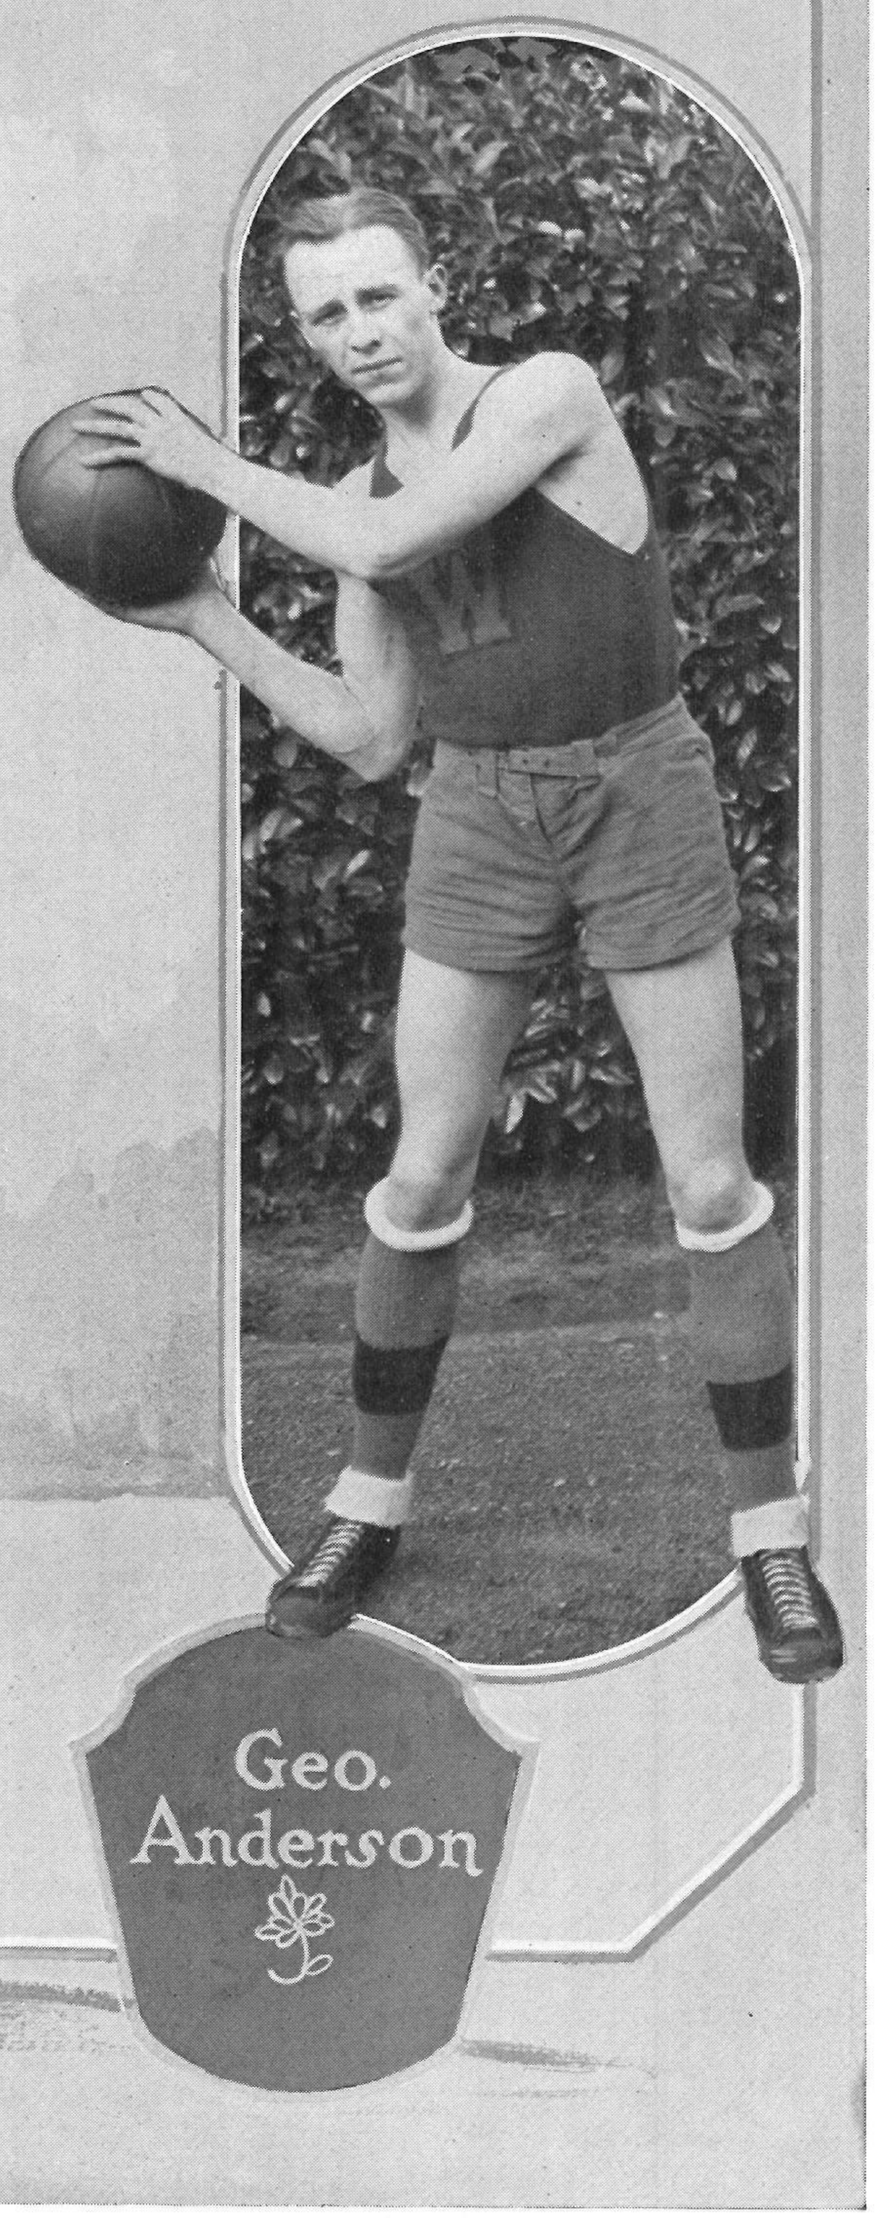

At the top is a scene from the Oregon Aggie-Washington game. It is Washington's ball and Mike Hanley is getting away for a long gain. A Husky linesman has just taken one of the Beaver tackles out of the play and George Wilson can be seen in front of Hanley ready to keep off any other men. Ken Bartlett is watching the play closely.

Basketball

By Clark Turner

SO NEAR, BUT YET SO FAR! Such was the experience of the University of Washington's basketball team when they were involved in the annual race for the Pacific Coast hoop title. Starting the season with a rush, the Huskies promised to be a strong team that would give trouble to Conference quintets, but when the last whistle was blown ending the 1925 season, the Washington men were forced to accept third place in the Pacific Coast Conference. Washington led the Conference scoring teams during a large part of the season, but were toppled from the lead towards the end of the race.

Washington's official basketball season opened with a Northwest Conference game with Gonzaga University at Spokane. The Huskies stepped into the front, holding a 20-11 lead at half time, and winning by a 40-23 score.

Whitman proved to be a difficult opponent to the Huskies during the first half of the game with the Washington men. The Missionaries fought hard during the first half of the game, but wilted before a hot attack and lost 48-22.

Willamette University afforded the next opposition for the Washington squad but were completely outclassed during the entire game, Washington winning by the lop-sided score of 70 to 10. Willamette was blanked during the first period, the score being 40 to 0.

The powerful Oregon Agricultural College squad came to Seattle for one of the crucial games in the season. The Aggies had a highly touted quintet that later stepped into the Conference lead, but were humbled by the Huskies in the first meeting of the two teams by a 32 to 17 score. The game remained in doubt during the first half, Washington holding a 11-10 lead. It was not until late in the game that the Huskies found their stride.

Montana followed the Oregon Aggies and came to Seattle to meet the Huskies. Led by Ted Illman, a flashy center, the Montana team furnished an exciting game, Washington barely holding a 19-16 score at the half-time. Montana weakened in the second canto, however, and Washington emerged victorious by a 39-27 score.

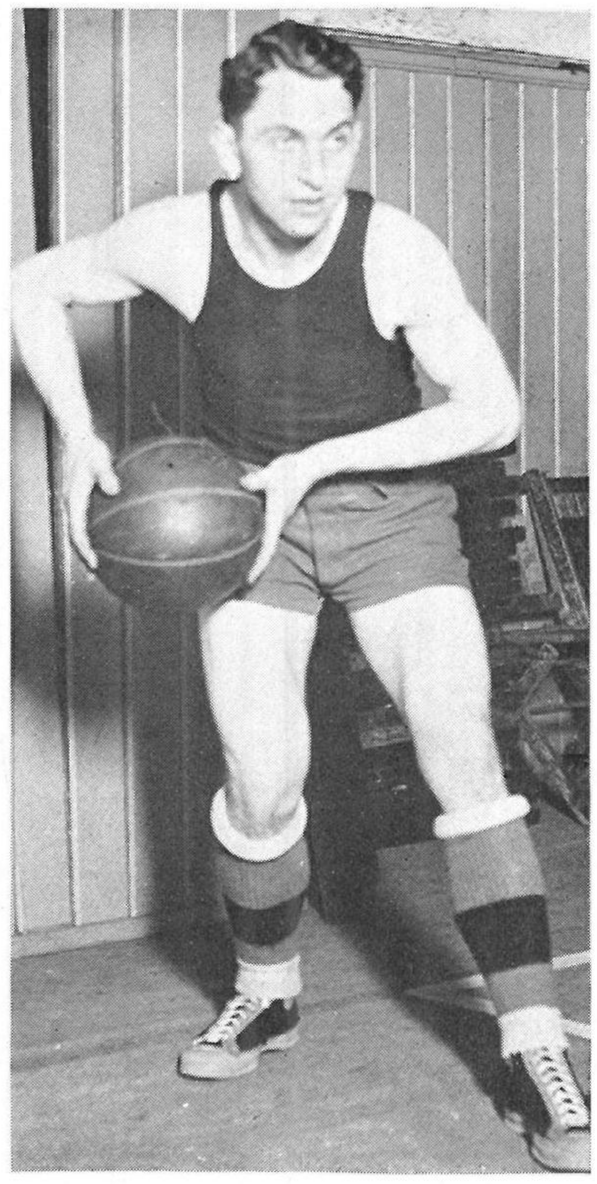

At this point in the season, Washington started on their second road trip of the year. The Huskies met the Willamette team in a return game, winning handily on the Salem floor.

Oregon Agricultural College proved to be the first stumbling block for the Huskies and the Beavers defeated the Washington team by a 27-16 score, playing a return game.

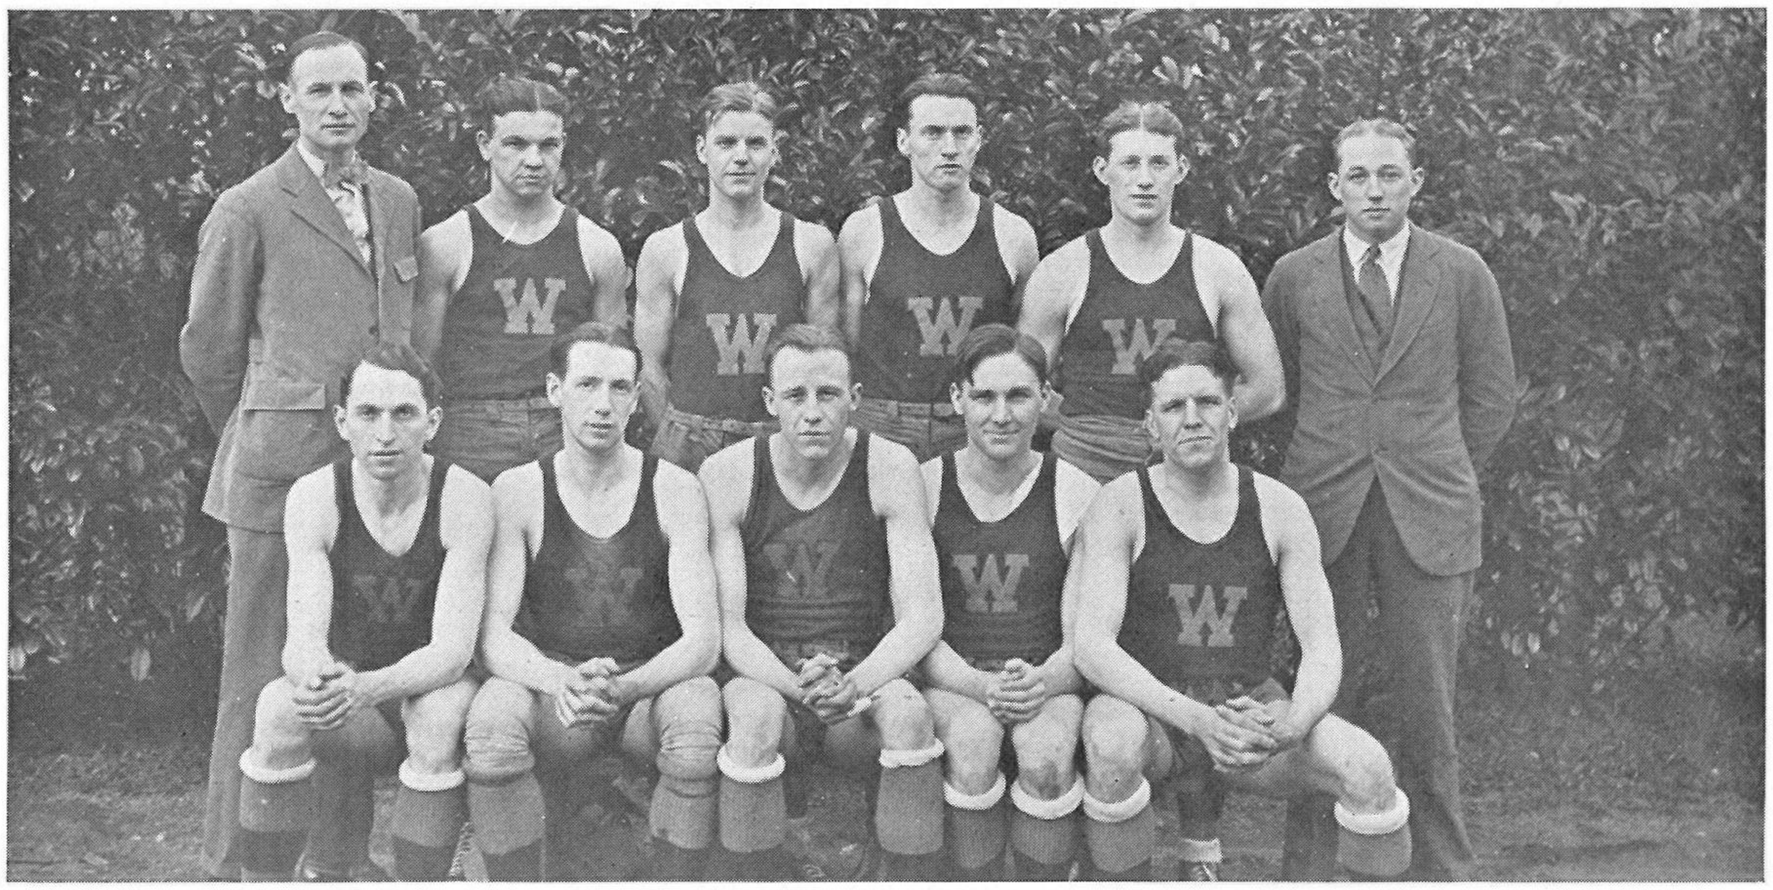

Washington recovered quickly from the Aggie defeat, however, and continued on their road tour to Eugene, Oregon, where they met the University of Oregon basketeers. Washington held a 17-16 score at half-time and by a desperate effort lengthened the difference to a 33-29 win.

Following on the trail of the defeat of Oregon, the Washington State College team came to Seattle for a game with the Huskies. Washington held a 21-16 lead at half-time, and won handily by a 33-23 score. The W. S. C. men fought hard but could not penetrate the Husky defense, resorting for the most part to long shots. A defeat of the Oregon Aggies by the University of Oregon on the same night put Washington back in the lead.

Washington's Conference lead was short-lived, however, because the University of Idaho furnished what was probably the biggest dope upset of the year. The Vandals came to Seattle with a string of defeats at the hands of teams already vanquished by Washington. Washington stepped into an early lead, holding the long end of a 19-13 lead at half-time. Then the unexpected happened. Idaho opened up a stern attack which Washington seemed to be unable to stop, and at the end of the regular period, Idaho had tied the score at 28 all. During the overtime session, Washington scored a field goal, and Idaho counted a field goal and a foul. The score stood, Idaho, 30, Washington, 29, as the game ended.

Gratton Hale

With but a slim chance left to regain their lost Conference lead, the Washington squad left for the last road trip of the season. In order to head the scoring column, the Huskies were faced with the task of defeating three Pacific Coast Conference teams on foreign floors. Whitman, a Northwest titled team, was the first opponent met on their home floor. The Walla Walla men reversed their previous defeat at the hands of the Washingtonians, and defeated their opponents by a 34-25 score. Whitman held an 18-11 lead at half-time which the Huskies never overcame.

The Purple Quintet next met Washington State College for the second game of the season between the two schools. Washington swept the Staters off of their feet and easily won by a 34-14 win. Score between halves was 11-5, Washington leading.

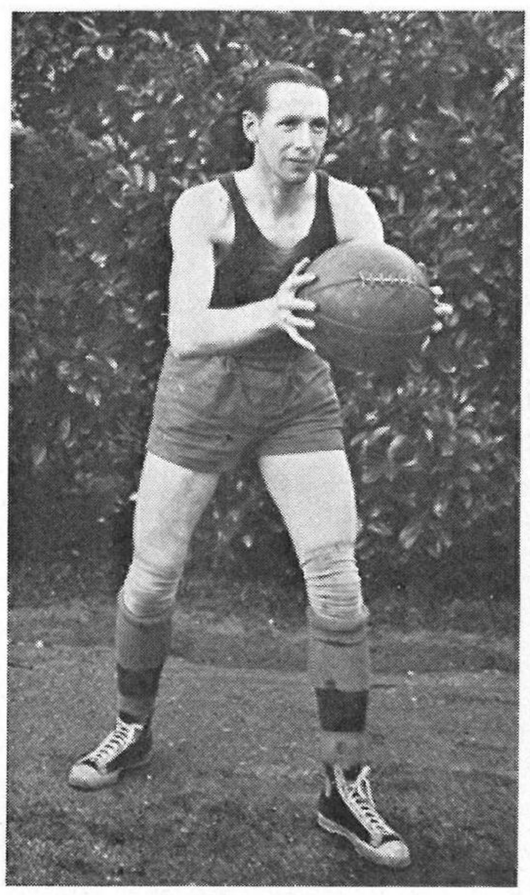

For the second time this season, the Idaho Vandals defeated the Huskies, which permanently put the Washington men out of the running for the title. The Vandals were played in the Moscow gymnasium, leading the game by a 13-3 score at half time. Washington jumped into the lead in the second half, but were finally defeated by the Idaho team by a 27-23 score. Seventeen fouls were called on Washington players to eight for Idaho in this game.

Montana likewise defeated the Huskies on the Missoula floor when the Washington men wound up their trip by playing the Missoula school in a return game. The Grizzlies held a 19-16 lead at half-time, and finished strong winning by a 33-28 count.

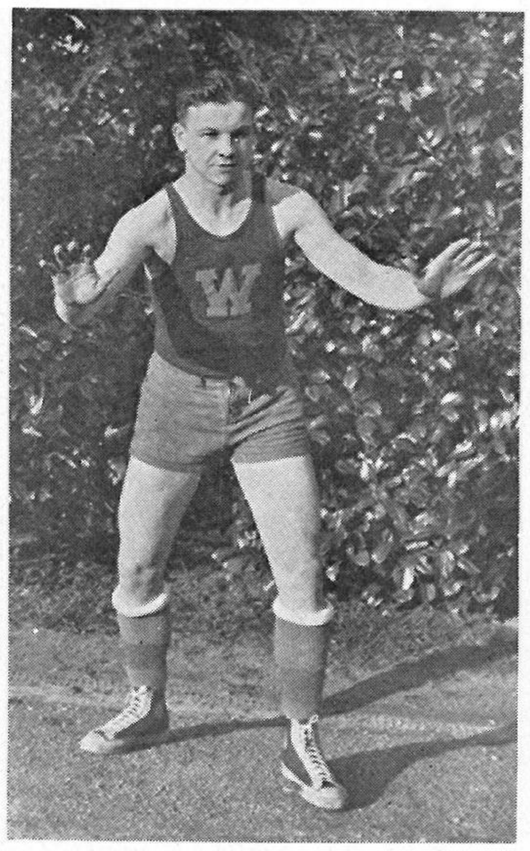

Washington returned to Seattle and met the University of Southern California in an exhibition game. The U. S. C. men proved no match for the Huskies and the Washingtonians added another scalp to their belt winning by a 40-23 score. The Trojans were coached by Les Turner, a former coach at Broadway high school.

The University of Oregon met the Huskies in the final game of the season for the Washington men. With their championship hopes blasted, the Huskies were playing with no especial view except to win, but went down before a terrific onslaught of the Webfooters, 35 to 26. Oregon's victory put the Lemon-Yellow Five in a tie for the Coast lead with O. A. C. and a three-game series which was won by the Aggies was necessary to decide the Northern title holder.

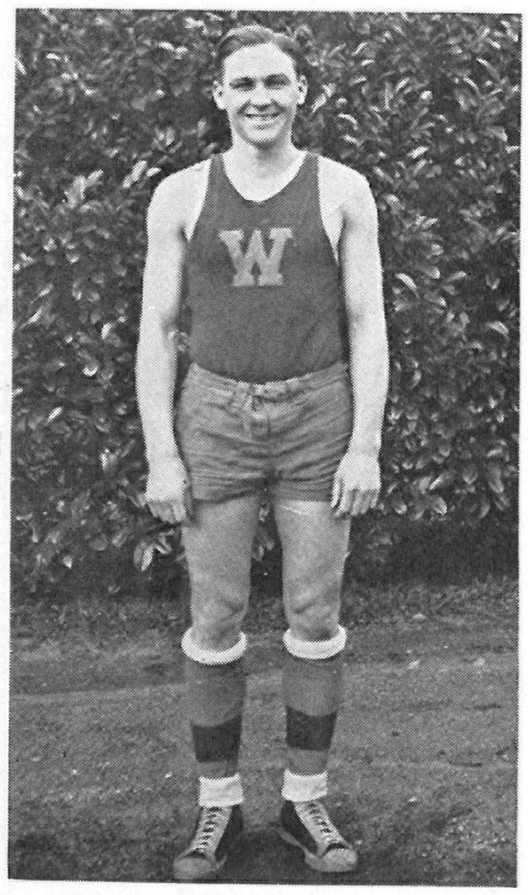

Nine men were voted letters for their services on the Husky basketball court this year. They were: Capt. George Anderson, Dick Frayn, Bob Hesketh, Arnold Cobely, Captain-Elect Gratton Hale, Al Schuss, Earle Jewell, George Browning, and Harold St. John. At a dinner of the basketball squad at the close of the season, the members elected Gratton Hale to lead the Husky team for 1926.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

The University of Washington Freshmen basketball squad went through a long, difficult season this year, winning 12 games and losing but three. Bellingham Normal defeated the Freshmen in a hard game, but were in turn vanquished by the Frosh. The Hi-Stars defeated the Husky yearlings twice.

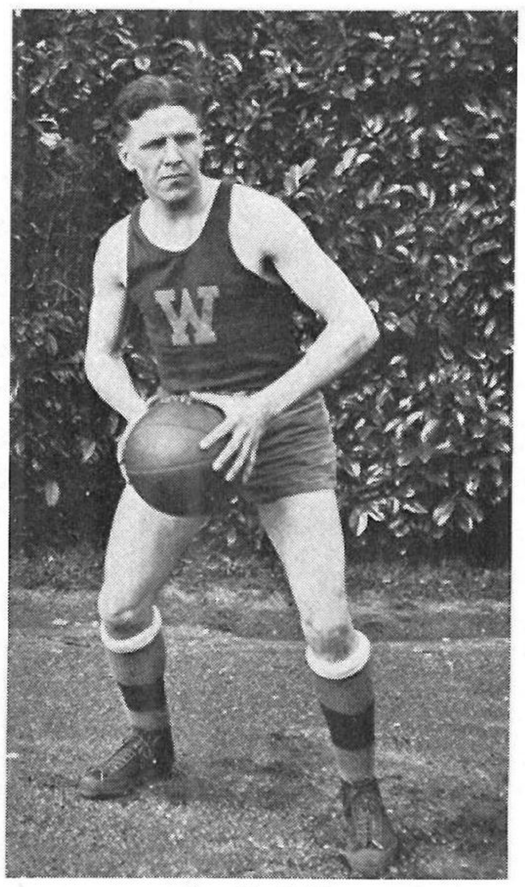

Eleven Freshmen were given their numerals for work done on the 1925 squad. They were: Herman Brix, Don Day, John Dahlquist, John Geehan, Alfie James, Rab Hall, Ed Hagist, Elmer Hutta, Hall Johnson, Ken Slingsby and Frankie Wilson.

Wrestling

By HORACE CHAPMAN

SEVENTY-FIVE MATMEN answered the call of wrestling coach Jimmy Arbuthnot, December 1. From this small army of grapplers, five were given the honor of representing their alma mater.

Looking them over from "light" to "heavy" they were: Stewart Hertz, 125 pounds; Ernest Martin, 135 pounds; Captain Fred Griffin, 145 pounds; Ted Lange, 158 pounds; Ray Rice, 175 pounds.

The most strenuous schedule in several years faced the Husky quintet of mat artists. They visited Washington State and the University of Idaho, entertaining at home with Oregon Agricultural College and the University of California.

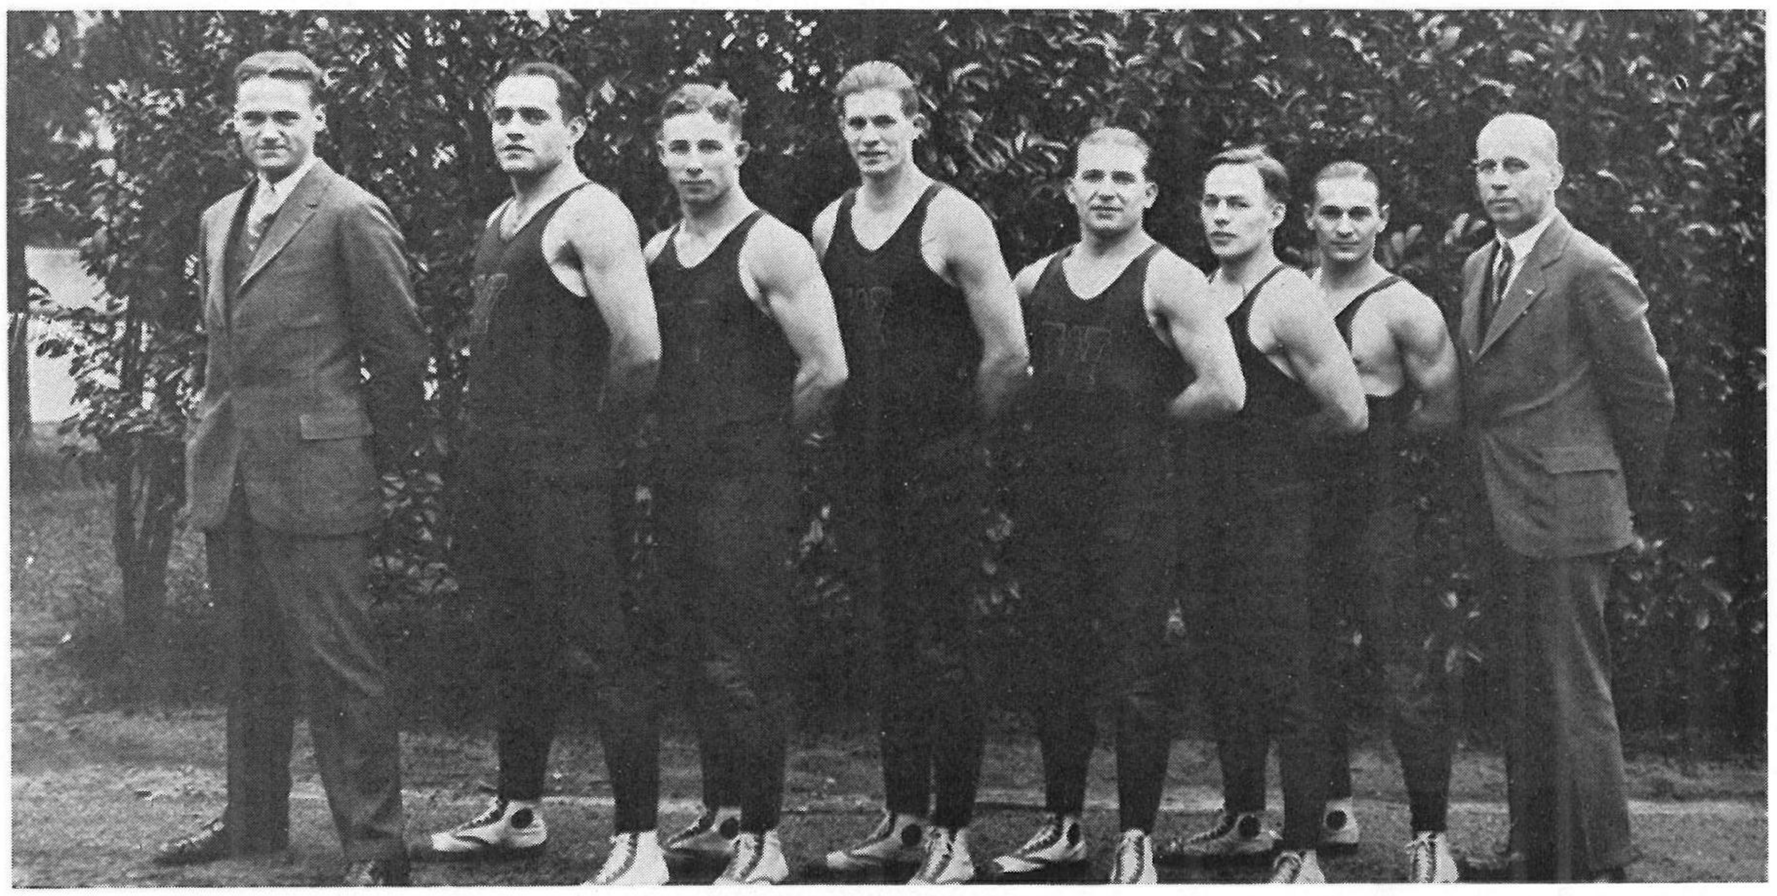

O. A. C. tangled with the Washington men at a Big "W" Club smoker here February 21, leaving with three decisions out of five tucked away to their credit. Captain Griffin won in straight rounds, Ray Rice winning by decision after two overtime periods. The other Huskies were the most generous, being compelled to submit to their "Aggie" opposition.

The wrestlers "rode the rails" to conquer other worlds and were guests on the mat of W. S. C. at Pullman, February 28, and Idaho at Moscow, March 2. Ted Lange, Stewart Hertz, Ray Rice, Ernest Martin, Fred Griffin, Coach Jimmy Arbuthnot and Manager Andy Sorenson were the men that made the trip.

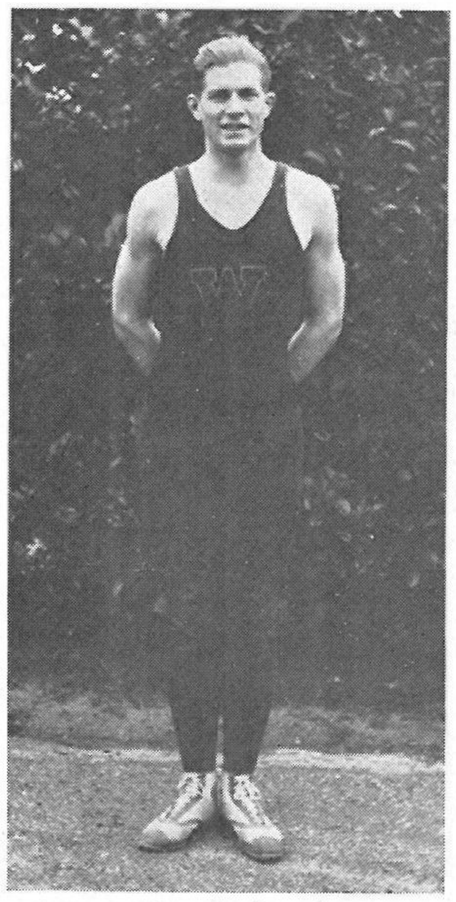

The match with W. S. C. was an easy victory for Washington, defeating the Cougar 3 to 2. Captain Griffin took a fall and a decision. Lange had a more strenuous time, receiving two decisions. Martin won by a fall and a decision.

But Lady Luck wasn't with the purple and gold twice that week, for Idaho gathered the majority of decisions in the second battle of the Huskies' eastern tour. Only one bout was lost by a fall, and two of the Washington men, Lange and Martin, fought for three periods before they gave in. Captain Griffin saved his team from complete defeat by conquering Musser by a decision and a fall.

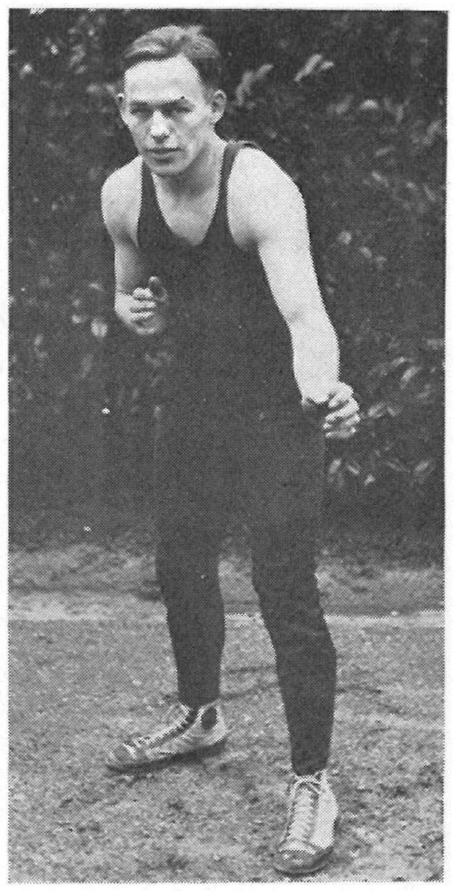

The last event in the wrestling schedule was a mix with California in the local gym, March 21, Washington winning easily, 4 out of 5. The meet with California was of much significance, it being the first time in the history of the two schools that the wrestlers have competed. Ernest Martin took a fall, Stewart Hertz and Fred Griffin won by decision, Griffin almost clinching Captain Stone of California to the mat several times. Ray Rice, although injuring his shoulder early in his bout, fought like a Trojan, and was awarded a decision.

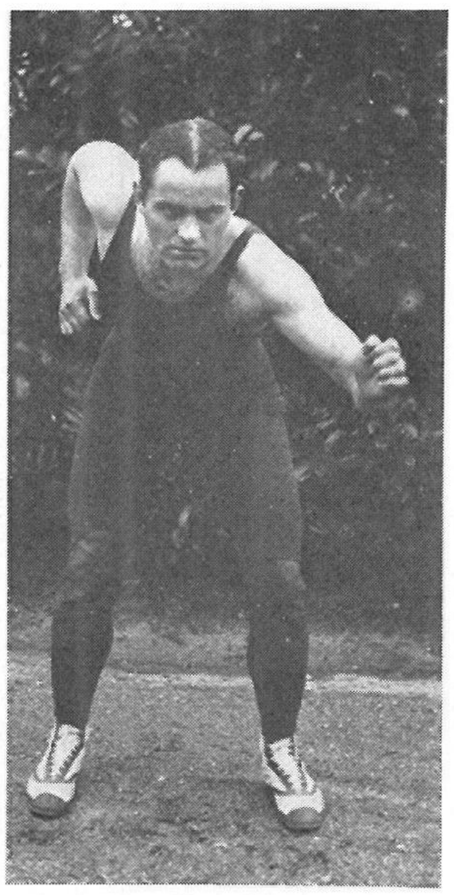

The Varsity Squad

Fred Griffin

Stewart Hertz

Ray Rice

Erling Strand, participating in this match, put up a hard struggle to win his letter, but lost by a fall.

Captain Griffin's win in the California match gave him a record of three years on the Varsity without a single defeat, having participated in ten bouts during that time. He was chosen as welterweight representative on the mythical Northwest Conference team by wrestling coach Whicker of W. S. C.

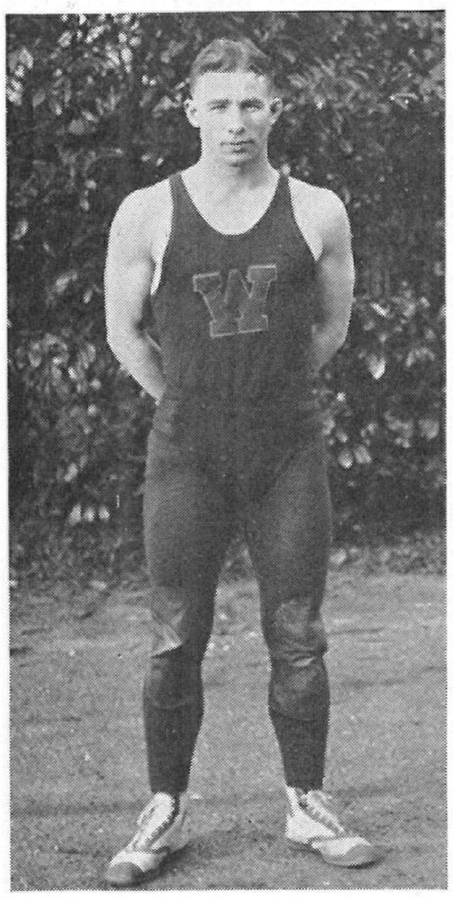

Ted Lange was elected captain for next year at a banquet of the wrestling squad held at the close of the season. With the exception of Griffin, who graduates this year, the squad will remain intact. Glennon Coffee was chosen as next year's manager.

FROSH WRESTLING

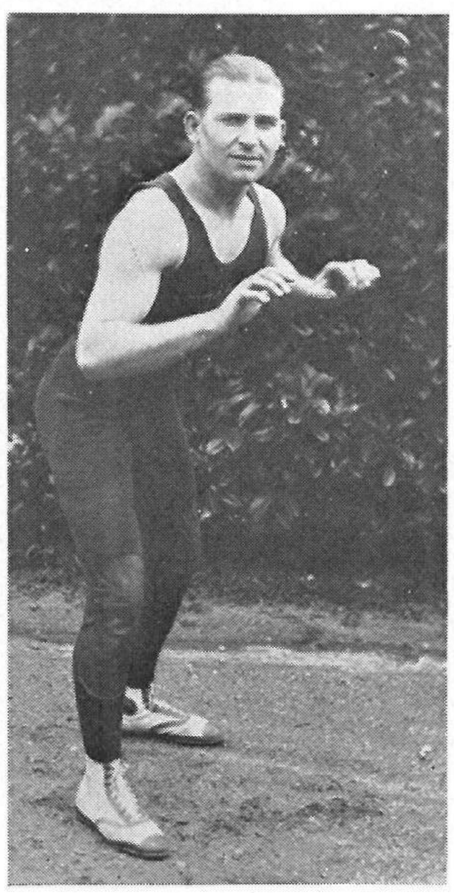

Prospects for the Frosh wrestling squad looked rosy when a host of first year men turned out, about thirty in all.

The following gained places on the squad: Hugh Nuckles, 125 pounds; George Douglas, 135 pounds; E. Suzuki, 145 pounds; Adolph Roth, 158 pounds; Sahli, 175 pounds.

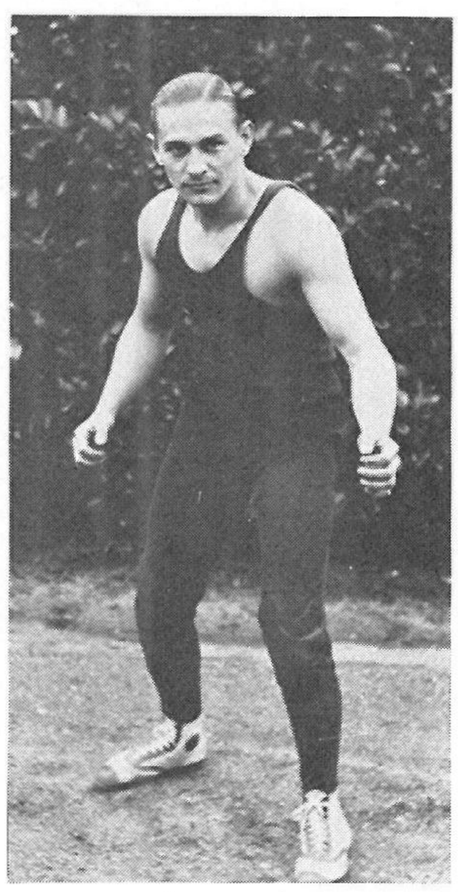

Matches were scheduled with the downtown Y. M. C. A., Renton High School and the Tacoma High School.

Boxing

Palmer, Sanders
Turner, Schlosstein, Curry, Ackley, Hopkins, Weymouth

BOXING, somewhat in the background in years gone by, is rapidly becoming one of the most popular sports at Washington. The idea that has prevailed in the minds of some in the past that boxing is a "terribly" rough game, totally unfit for college "gentlemen," is being substituted by a knowledge of the almost unlimited value to be derived from training with the gloves.

Coach "Rich" Palmer has done much towards putting boxing on its feet, and is continually proving that the sport develops both the mind and body and offers as little or less chance of any detrimental effect than any other phase of athletics.

Decisions in the Intramural bouts were given the following men: Orr, 115 pounds; Drysdale, 125 pounds; Curry, 135 pounds; Hopkins, 145 pounds; Schlosstein, 158 pounds; Ramsay, 175 pounds; Lister, heavyweight. The inter-fraternity boxing championship was awarded to the Sigma Nu's.

Although three conventions of the glove men were scheduled with other schools, the Huskies were only able to participate in one, with the University of British Columbia, March 14, on Canadian soil.

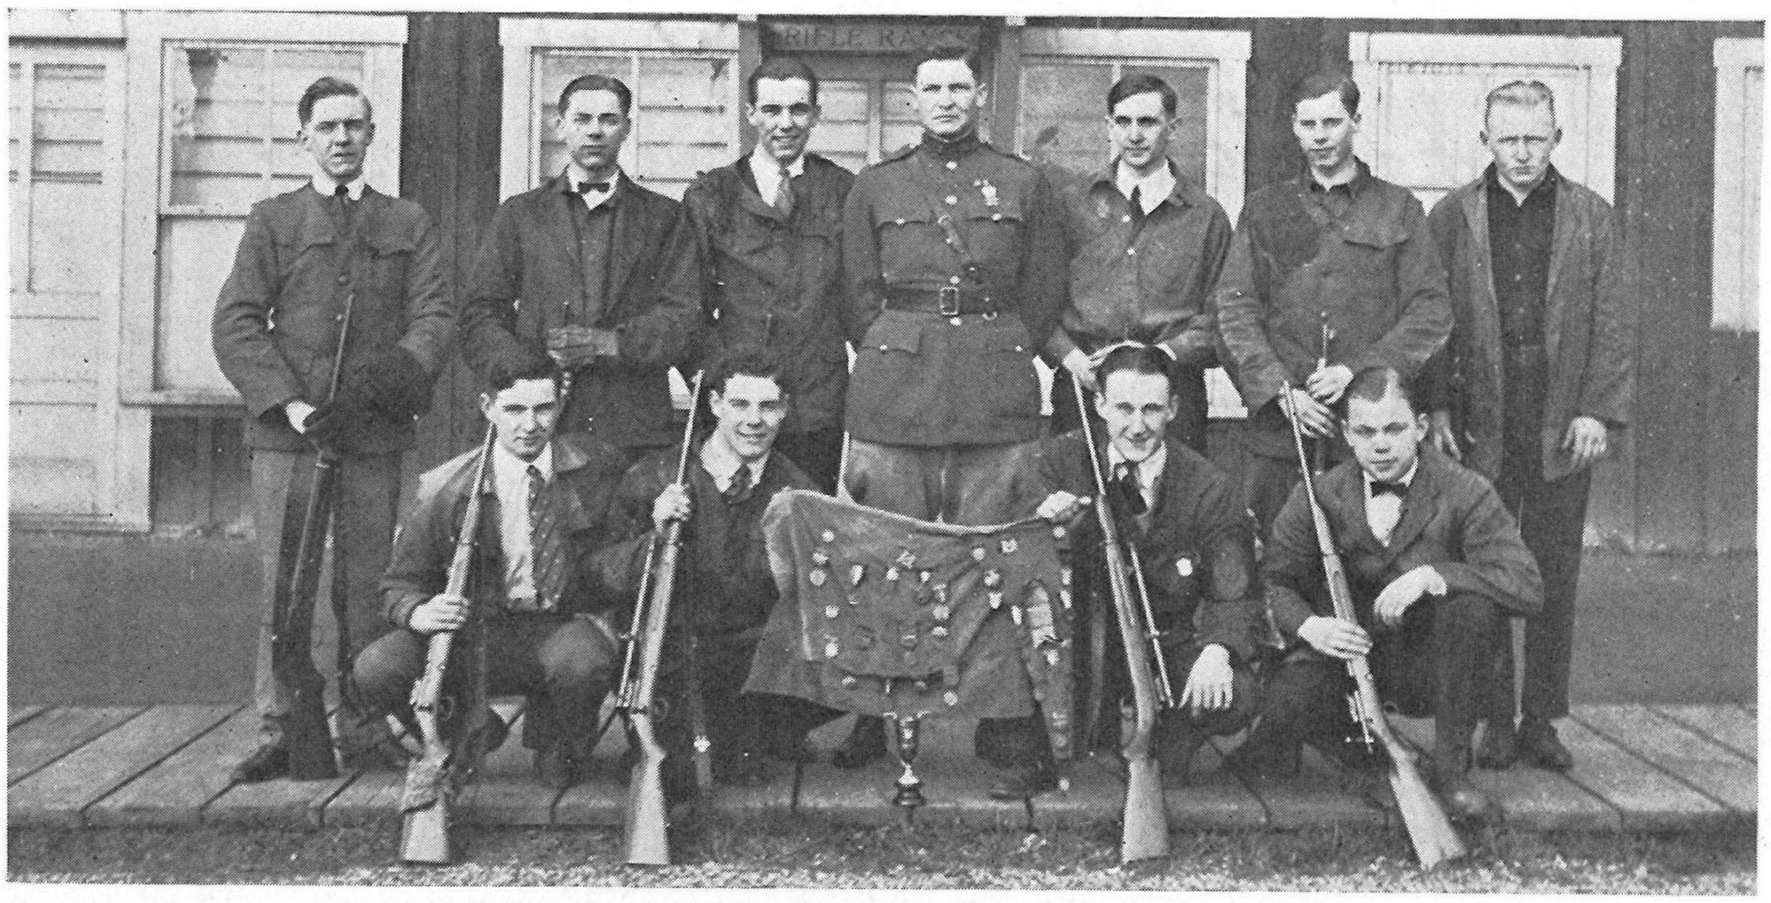

The "Britishers" were forced to "bow down to Washington" to the tune of four decisions out of six.

The boxers who participated were Captain Weymouth, 115 pounds; Ackley, 125 pounds, Curry, 135 pounds; Hopkins, 145 pounds; Schlosstein, 158 pounds; Turner, 175 pounds.

Les Sanders was student manager of the squad.

The Sophomores won the inter-class boxing championship, two knockouts featuring the match. Three bouts were won by the Sophs and one a piece by representatives of the Seniors, Juniors, and Frosh.

The men who won their bouts were: Orr, 115 pounds, Drysdale, 125 pounds; Sowles, 135 pounds; White, 145 pounds; Colby, 158 pounds; Ramsay, 175 pounds.

White, Thayer, Thompson, Capt. Hale, Miller, McClarren, Brown
Cook, Hicker, McAdams, Sowle

Varsity Rifle Team

THE VARSITY rifle team again reigns supreme. Year after year Captain Hale of the R. O. T. C. turns out marksmen second to none in the country, and his squad of "bull's eye" shooters this year is no exception to his general standard.

The squad this year defeated the "7th" Infantry, University of California, Seattle Rifle Club, Snohomish Rifle Club, Norwich University, Johns-Hopkins University and Washington State College, losing only to the Virginia Polytechnical Institute.

Cook, Hicker, MacAdams, Sowle, White, Thayer, Thompson, Miller, McClarren, and Brown made up the team.

Cross-Country

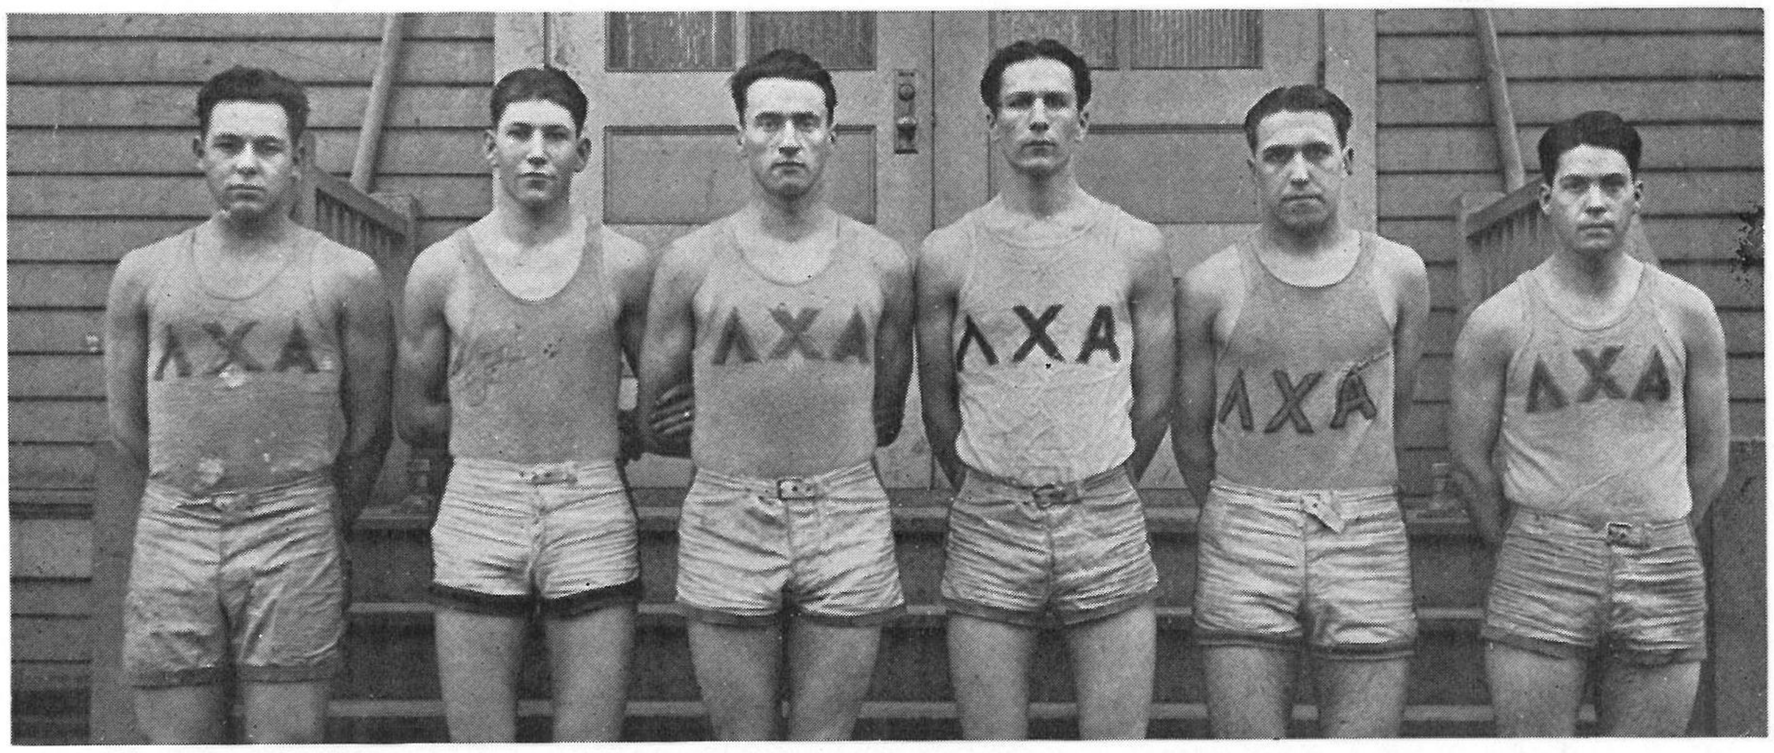

A "CROSS-COUNTRY" race is not as long as it might sound to some, but nevertheless it is a long, gruelling race, and the men that run in such an event and finish "one, two, three," are worthy of mention.

Lander Hall finished first with 236 points. The other leaders finished in the following order: Pi Kappa Phi, 125 points; Alpha Sigma Phi, 101 points; Phi Sigma Kappa, 84 points.

The race was won by Carl Cleveland, Lander Hall in 15:52.

The Lander Hall team was composed of: Nanney, Ford, Heath, Mesford, Woodworth, Cleveland, Jacobson, Doumit, Hudson.

Ford, Woodworth, Cleveland, Hudson, Nanney, Doumit

Dietderich, Gritsch, Jewell, Carstens, Soumella, Lafromboise

Intramural Basketball

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA won the intramural basketball championship. After leading the fraternity hoop competition, with Phi Sigma Kappa in second place, the Lambda Chi quintet defeated the University Y. M. C. A. for the all-University organization championship.

Inter-Class Basketball

BASKETBALL laurels between the classes were bestowed on the Juniors. The third year men defeated the Seniors in the first game, 21 to 19, after two overtime periods.

The Sophomores lost, 28 to 21, giving the Juniors the title.

The winners were: Shidler, Dobson, Dunear, Arnold, Norquist, Augustine, Mitchell, Feek, Elmer Tesreau, Hugh Becket. Firman Flohr was the athletic manager.

Intramural Wrestling

THE INTRAMURAL wrestling championship was captured by Alpha Sigma Phi. The University Y. M. C. A. won first place among the independents, but was defeated by the Alpha Sigs, all-fraternity champions, in the title match.

Leak, 125 pounds; Vassar, 135 pounds; Sundstrom, 145 pounds; Baker, 158 pounds; Sahli, 175 pounds, were the representatives of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Inter-Class Wrestling

THE JUNIORS were decidedly in the limelight in the inter-class wrestling, winning in all five divisions.

The winners in the different weights were: Vassar, 125 pounds; Martin, 135 pounds. Dodson, 145 pounds; Lilly, 158 pounds; Rice, 175 pounds.

Inter-Class Crew

EXPERIENCE came to the front in the inter-class crew race, the Seniors winning and the Juniors, Sophomores and Frosh finishing in the order named, in one of the closest inter-class races in the history of rowing at Washington.

The Senior boat was made up of the following: Walling, stroke; Dutton, 7; Enloe, 6; Condon, 5; Luft, 4; Keefe, 3; Melder, 2; Malone, bow; Morcom coxswain.

History

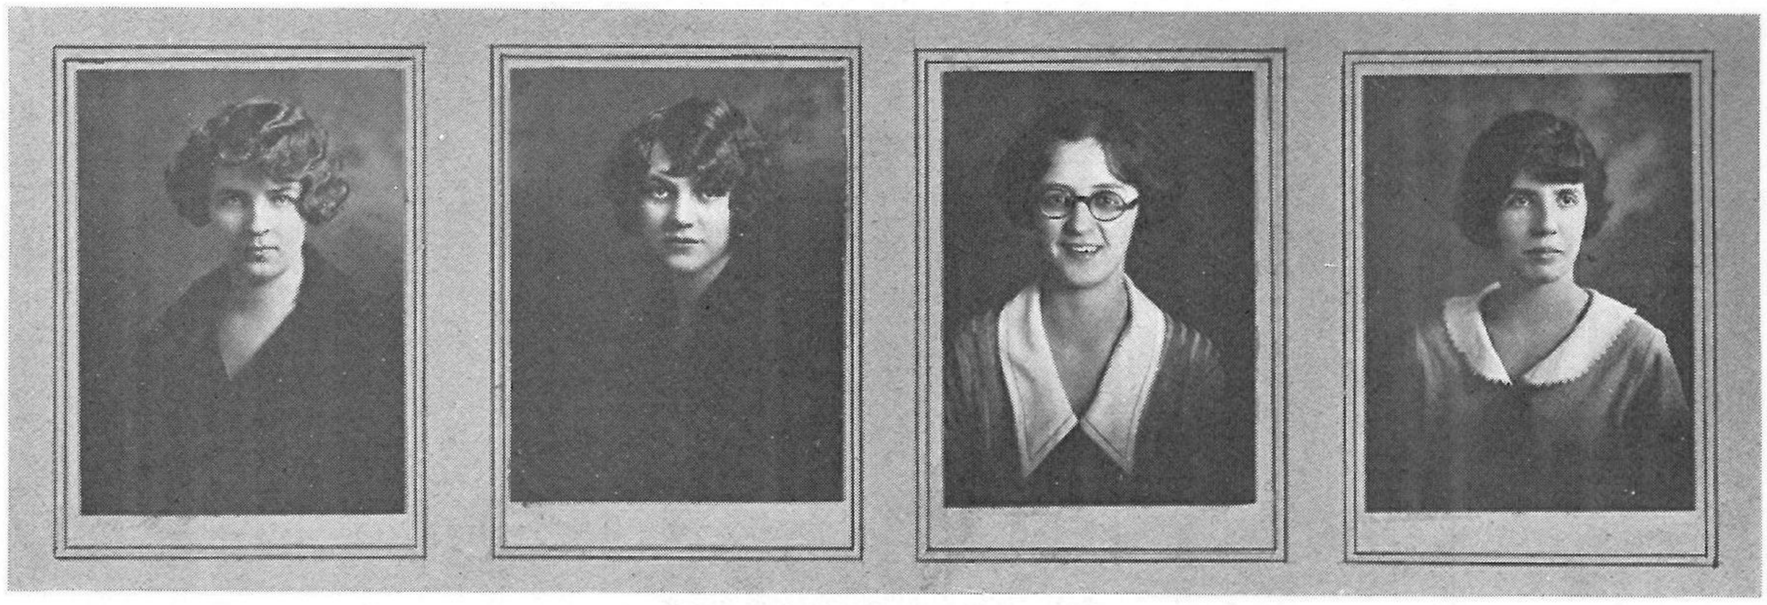

THE YEAR 1909 marked the beginning of organized sports for women. Previous to that time, the women had class crews and played basketball. The development of these sports was left largely to the enthusiasts among the women.

In 1909, Miss Jessie B. Merrick came to the campus as Director of Physical Training for women, and gymnastics and athletic training began on a much larger scale. Sports were begun for each season of the college year, and "W" 's were granted to women athletes who fulfilled certain requirements.

Today, though women's activities still center about the same old gymnasium, which was crowded 14 years ago, women's sports have progressed rapidly. Under the leadership of Miss Mary E. Gross, Mrs. Lou E. Anderson and Miss Leon Helmich, of the physical education department, many different sports have been added and girls turn out in hundreds to participate in them.

All-star teams are chosen for each sport at the end of the season, on the basis of highest type of sportsmanship and skill. "W" sweaters are awarded to women who have earned the requisite number of points, 1200, and stand for good sportsmanship, fine team play, and ability in several sports.

Baseball

Freshmen
Juniors

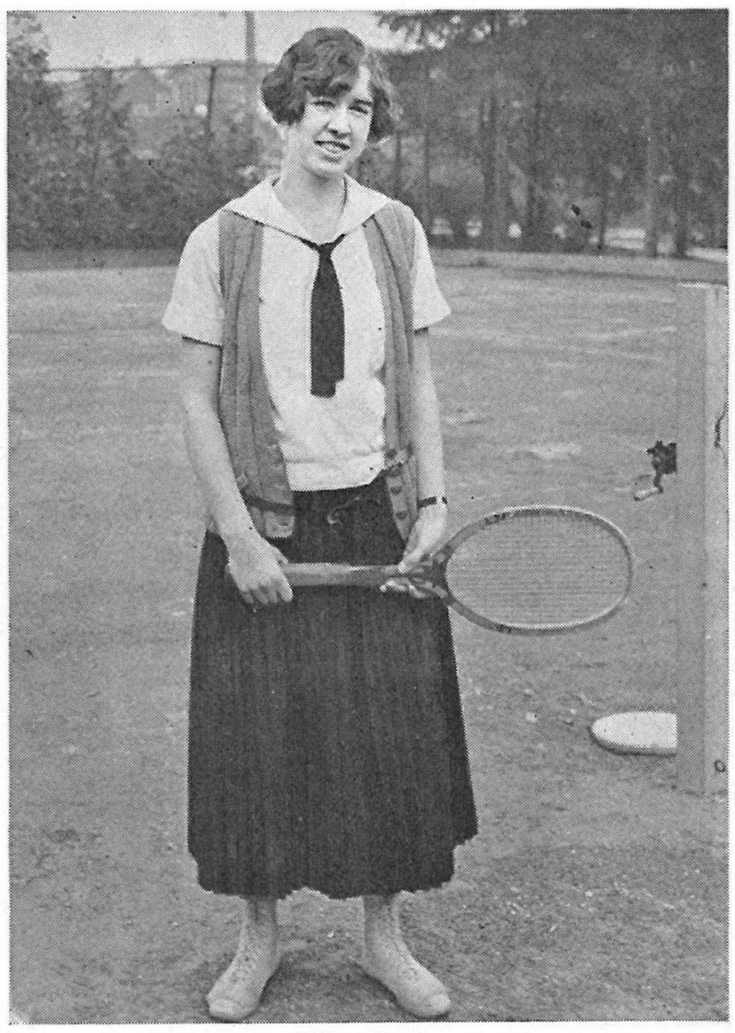

Sophomores
Seniors

THE Freshman team won the baseball championship for 1924 by defeating the Juniors, 15 to 3, in the final game played Women's Field Day, May 31. The Freshmen were also winners of the last year's championship.

The championship team was made up of Margaret Duncan, captain; Charlotte Rawson, Olive Hensley, Helen Thode, Estelle Pease, Dorothy George, Esther Kleinlein, Katherine Britton, Ruth Charlesworth, Jean Wallace, Bergat Maydahl, Marjorie Massar, Pearl Powell and Loretta Sandahl.

With more than two hundred women turning out for baseball in the spring it can well be called one of the most popular spring sports. Contrary to general belief, the girls play with a hard ball, on a regulation size diamond according to the National Regulation Baseball rules. The only difference is that they use five outfielders instead of three, and two shortstops instead of one.

Tennis

Irene Stevens

LAST Spring there was an enrollment of two hundred and ten women in the tournament, the largest tennis tournament the University of Washington has ever had.

In the tennis singles Irene Stevens, Freshman, won the championship for 1924 by defeating Laura Neville, Junior, last year's woman tennis champion, by a score of 6-4, 6-2. In the doubles Laura Neville and Jewell Morgan defeated Virginia Albin and Jane Henriot 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. In the final games of the class tournament the following girls won: Freshman, Irene Stevens; Sophomore, Jewell Morgan; Junior, Laura Neville; Senior, Bonnie McAnally.

Golf

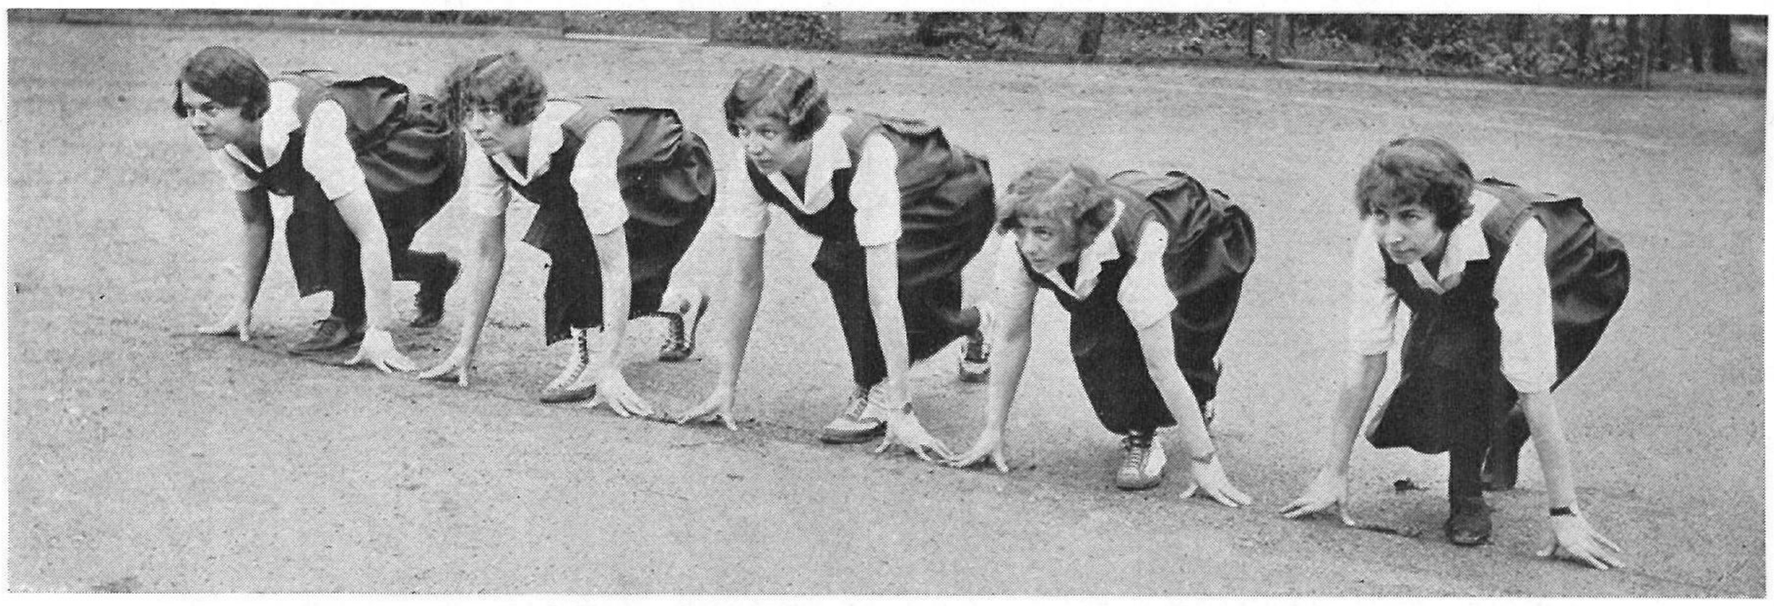

ALTHOUGH golf is not yet a pointed sport at Washington, this does not mar its popularity. Three classes of golf meet every quarter with W. Jefferson as coach and instructor and only the very earliest of those who wish to enter the regular classes are ever able to sign up before the sections are closed.

One hundred women students usually turn out every quarter for golf instruction. Washington is probably the only University in the United States that has a golf course on its campus, according to Miss Mary E. Gross of the physical education department. It is expected that there will be a women's golf tournament on the campus in the near future.

Margaret Felph

Track

Maydahl, Batie, Phillips, Wood, Aust

IN THE inter-class track meet held on Women's Field Day, May 31, 1924, the Sophomore team won the championship with a total score of 55 points based on inter-class wins and class points. The Seniors were second with 50 points.

The record in javelin throwing which last year was 72 feet and 6 inches was broken by Kathryn Britton, Freshman, who threw the javelin 81 feet and 7 inches.

Basketball

Noble, Black, Boyne, Fitzgerald, Pease

BASKETBALL has a larger turnout than any other one sport for women. Not only does each class have a first team that plays for the Varsity championship, but also there are second, third, and sometimes novice teams. Under the coaching of Mrs. Lou E. Anderson, the aspirants gain skill in the finer points of the game—skeleton passing, chest throws, and overarm shots.

The class managers were elected early this year to aid Hattie Fitzgerald, general manager. They were: Lois Boyne, Freshman; Estelle Pease, Sophomore; Mildred Noble, Junior; and Julia Black, Senior. After several hotly contested tiffs, the final game for inter-class championship was played between the leading teams on March 7. Shortly following this came the Winter Banquet at which the All-Star team was announced.

Hockey

Miss Helmich

DESPITE a defeat of 7-4 at the hands of the Juniors at the final game played on the women's hockey field, the Sophomore women's first team won the hockey championship. The winning of the highest place was determined by total high point scored, not by the number of games won.

Two hundred women turned out for hockey at the beginning of the fall quarter, and because of the small hockey field some groups had to have their practice after 4 p. m., in other words, after dark.

Miss Leon Helmich, graduate from the University in '22, coached the classes in hockey. This was Miss Helmich's first year at the University as a member of the physical education department. She was formerly in charge of physical education in Mount Vernon schools.

Members of the all-star team as announced at the hockey banquet following the final game were: Mildred Noble, Beth Bowen, Mabel Kleinholz, Ellen Water, Ione Hones, Irene Evans, Florence Coats, Jennie Chase, Dorothy Pendleton, Roberta Bellazzi.

Pendleton, Noble, Coats, Kleinholtz, Jones, Bowen, Waters, Crawston, Bellazzi

Dorothy George, Margaret Duncan

Hiking

WITH hiking for women students now an all-year sport, an enthusiastic hiker can make 300 points toward her "W" sweater in one year of three quarters. This is made possible by a change in the points allotted to the sport by the Women's Athletic Association.

Any group of at least four or more may take a hike at any time to any place, providing a distance of at least five miles is covered, and be credited for the hike.

When an individual girl has taken ten such hikes and two with the W. A. A. group under the leadership of the hiking manager, she is credited with 100 points toward her "W" sweater.

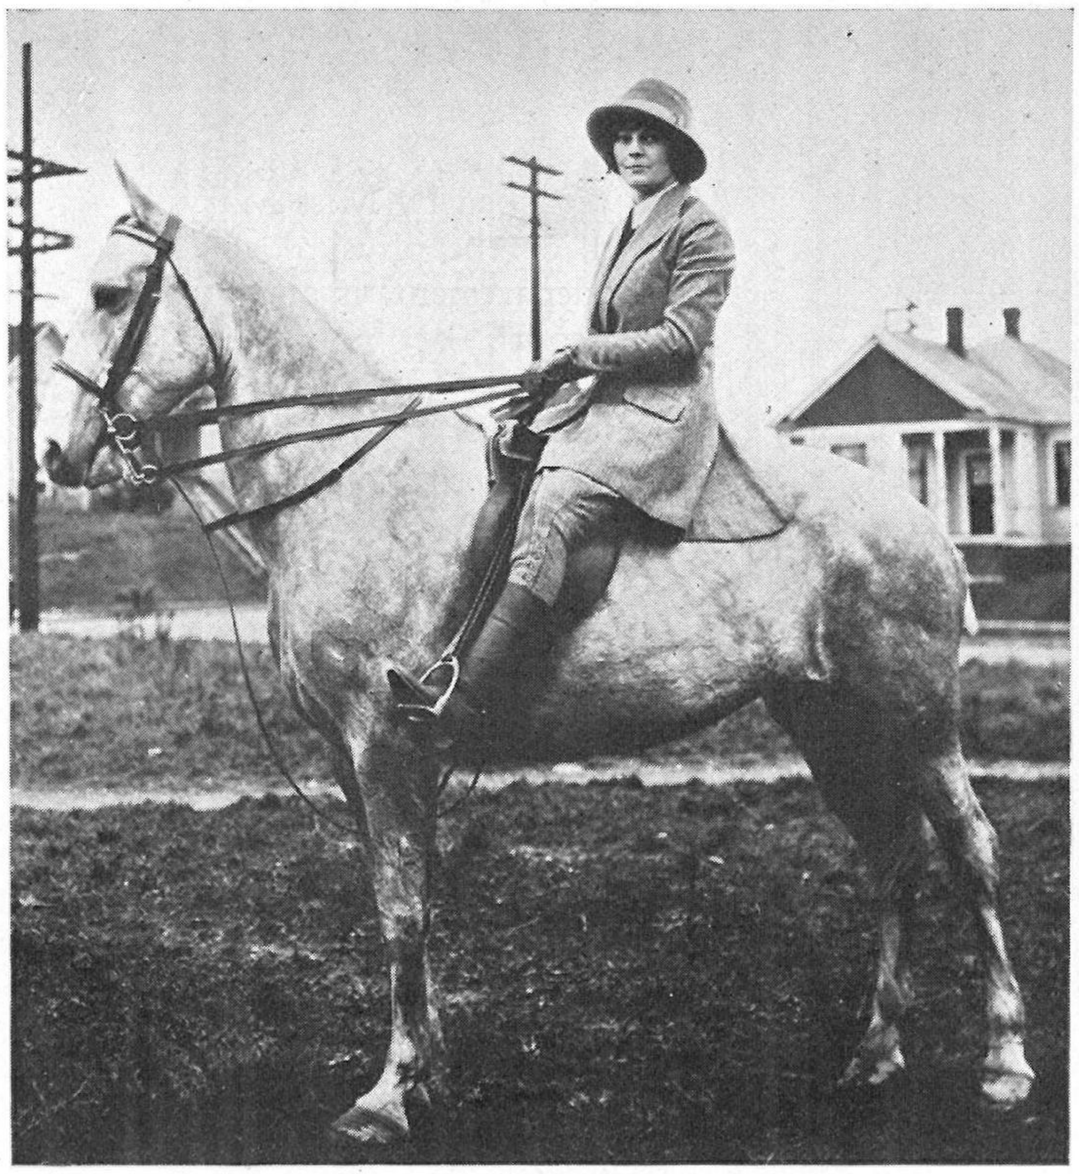

Horseshoe

IN THE HORSESHOE tournament for women's organized houses, which was inaugurated by the women's physical education department last spring, 18 houses participated. Many houses had a 100 per cent enrollment. Each house chose two from its enrollment to represent it in the tournament. Beta Phi Alpha, represented by Blanche Olson and Laurabelle Minter, defeated Pi Beta Phi, which was represented by Bonnie McAnally and Helen Garretson, thus winning the championship for 1924 in the final game played on Women's Field Day, May 31.

Like the spring fever the horseshoe fad spread over the campus until it became a recognized sport for women.

Kathryn Murphy, Nena Copeland

Marjory Hager

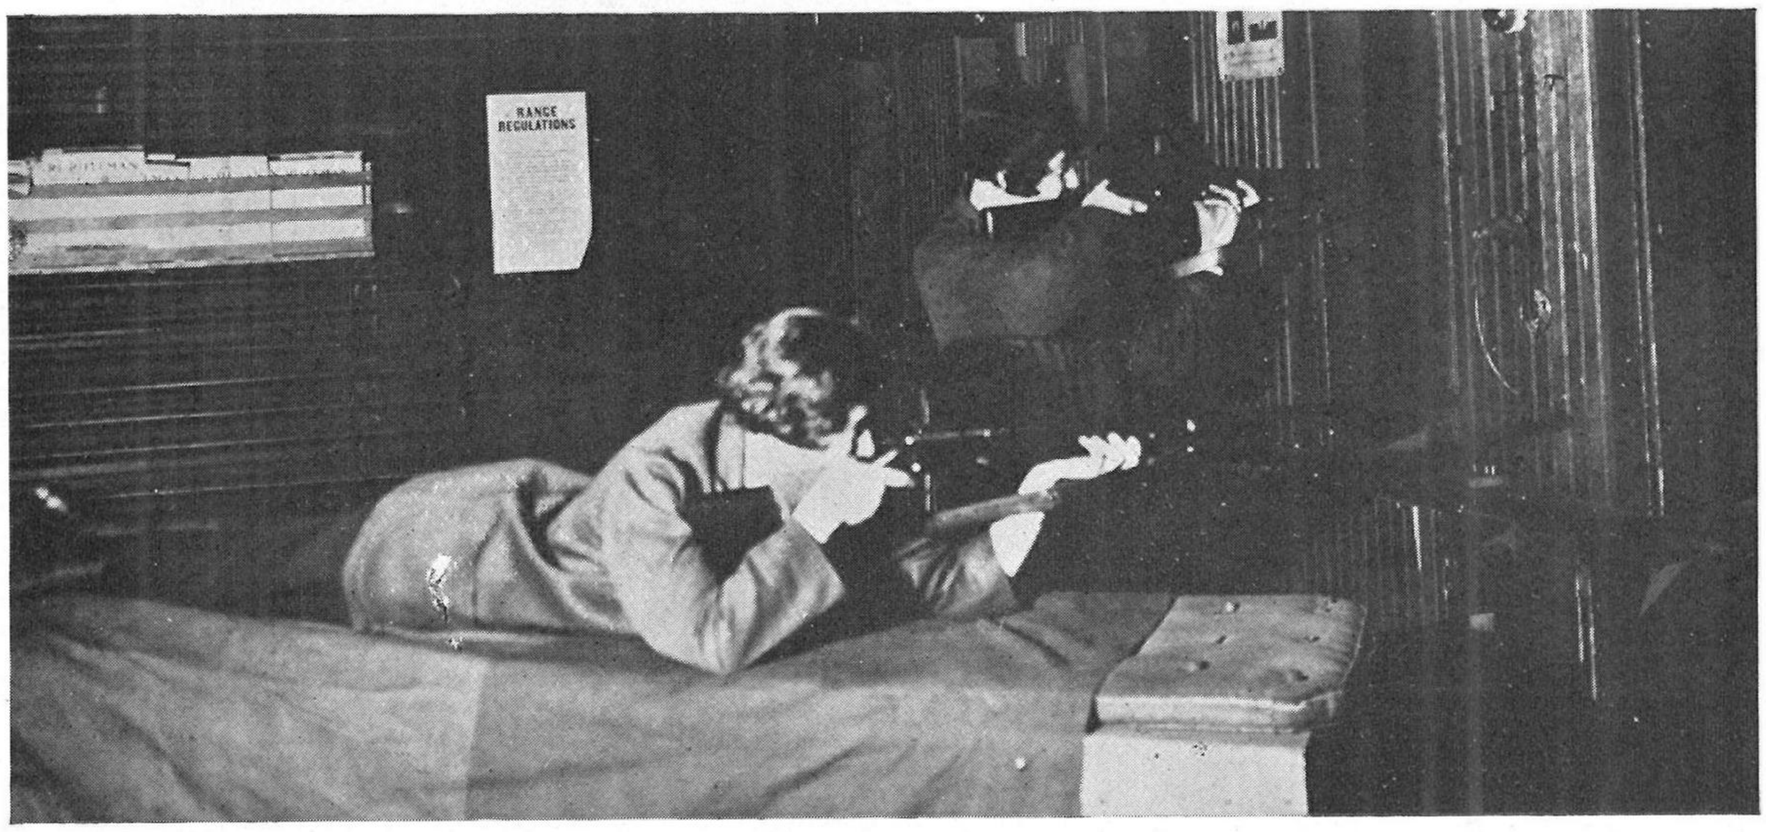

Riding

A RIDING exhibit made its initial appearance on the campus Women's Field Day, May 31. The group participating in the exhibit was taken from Boots and Saddles, national riding club. The riders put horses through the paces of a military drill which included a walk, trot and canter.

Boots and Saddles was founded at Washington three years ago and has two other chapters. There were 52 members in the club last spring. A meeting is held once every two weeks, while weekly rides are taken in the spring quarter.

Rifle Team

WASHINGTON'S women's rifle team has won the intercollegiate championship for the second consecutive year. Rifle shooting is the only women's sport that competes with other universities. This is done by means of simultaneous shoots and telegraphing results.

Norma Hunt, Robertta Bellazzi

Jewell, Burbank

Archery

ARCHERY, which is coached by Miss Mary L. Aid, of the physical education department, is another spring sport that is popular with women athletes on the campus. Four class teams composed of two members from each of the classes competed for the championship for 1924 on Women's Field Day, May 31. Vivian Miller was the high-point winner in the final contest, with a score of 103 in 48 shots. With her partner, Blanche Cloetta, she won the championship for the Freshman class.

Volleyball

THE VOLLEYBALL turnouts were another indication of the growing popularity of women's sports. All the sections this year were filled long before the opening of the season, and many women were put on the waiting list. Myrtle Burbank, volleyball general manager, was assisted by the elected class managers, Ruth Newman, Freshman; Elizabeth Grace, Sophomore; Nettie Bailey, Junior; and Maud Muntzer, Senior.

Volleyball, being less strenuous than other sports, attracts many women who otherwise might not gain the spirit of competition, comradeship, and sportsmanship. The final game for inter-class championship is played on the annual athletic day sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association to which the high school girls of the state are invited. Through these entertainments the Association is helping to develop an interest in the University of Washington among the high school students.

Women's "W" Club

Neville Morgan Bellazzi

THE "W" CLUB is composed of the winners of the "W" sweater, one of the highest honors given to athletic women at Washington. As one means of carrying out its purpose, this club has created the Honor Plaque on which is engraved each year the names of those women who have done most toward furthering the ideals of women's athletics at Washington. The names now upon the Plaque are Elizabeth Richardson, Lena Puymbroeck, Florence Nicolai and Lou Woodcock.

Purpose: "To co-operate with the Women's Athletic Association in furthering its ideals by fostering true sportsmanship; furthering interest in athletics by providing wholesome, recreational activities, and encouraging a feeling of good fellowship among the women of this University."

Dance Drama

WITH the Cello and Violin struggling for supremacy in melody, while the harp wove a web around the song, the Dance Drama opened at Roosevelt High School Auditorium, February 13. Hellen Sherrer interpreted the struggles of the violin, Kathryn Garden the cello, and Jeanette Stark revealed the subtle workings of the harp.

The Circle Frieze, Orchestration, Desert Scene, Les Miserables, Butterfly, and Ode to a Grecian Urn, comprised the dances of the introduction. The dancers, garbed in the old Grecian costumes, gave these interpretations of the music of Debussey, Scott, Lizst, and MacDowell.

The second part of the program was called "The Fantasy." In this the story of an artist's love affair was portrayed by Margaret Tapping.

The scene opens, revealing the artist in his studio. He shows every indication of being in love with a statue which he has just created. However, the model has a rival. The Queen loves the artist and is determined to win him. She determines to give a big festival, array herself in the most pleasing fashion, and give an entertainment with which she hopes to enthrall the artist. The artist is indifferent to her efforts and falls desperately in love with a slave girl who dances at the entertainment. The Queen's next step and the artist's reactions comprise the rest of the story.

The Bard and the Milkmaid, played by Katherine Murphy and Esther Thomsen, danced the "Sir David Wears a Crown," one of the most dramatic dances of the drama.

The other character studies are by Marian Dix, Dorothy Sisler, Marian Robb, Sall Schuman, Dorothy Reusch, Betty McFarlane, Maude Muntzer, and Kathryn Brown. Thirty girls combined their efforts for the completion of the successful production.

Women's Federation

Dean Winifred S. Haggett

The Dean's Message

THIS YEAR the Women's Federation is making the desired progress toward the coordination of women's interests on the campus. The appointment of a part-time secretary, and the opening of a business office in Education hall have made it possible to correlate the work and furnish more definite opportunities for all girls to find their particular interests. The Representative council, a legislative body, made up of presidents of women's organizations and chairmen of standing committees, has been a decided factor in bringing about a better understanding of the many interests involved. The transforming of the old study room into a social hall is also doing its share toward this unity. Partly through University contribution, and partly through the girls' own artistic efforts, the room has become an attractive center where social contacts may be made and friendships furthered. These three advantages promise more definite efforts for cooperation and more pleasure in participation in campus affairs.

THE CONCERTS OF THE YEAR

FOUR SUCCESSFUL and well attended concerts were sponsored by the Women's Federation this year. The artists were of the highest order, and much appreciated by their hearers.

The first concert artist was Louis Graveure, a splendid baritone, who was presented in Meany Hall the evening of November fifth. Mr. Graveure gave the following program:

I

Star of Eve (Tannhauser) ..... Wagner
Look Into Mine Eye ..... Hungarian Folk Song
Songs My Mother Taught Me ..... Dvorak
Cavantine (Valentine's Song from "Faust") ..... Gounod

II

Her Rose ..... Coombs
The Trumpeter ..... Arlie Dix

De Reszke Singers Frieda Hempel

Guy Maier and Lee Pattison

The second concert was given February 11, when Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, master pianists who play in duet, were presented. The perfection and technique of their playing astounded and greatly pleased the audience, which demanded many encores. Some of the most popular offerings were:

Gavotte and Musette ..... Raft
Andante and Variations ..... Schumann
Wedding Waltzes from "The Veil of Pierette" ..... Dohnanyi-Maier
"Arkansaw Traveller" (old fiddler's tune) ..... Pattison
Valse ..... Arensky
Spanish Rhapsody ..... Chabrier

The De Reszke Singers, four young men who were trained by the famous Jean De Reszke, were presented in concert, March 3, in Meany Hall. They were accompanied by Miss Mildred Dilling, a very able and charming harpist. A few of the popular numbers were:

Serenade d' Hiver ..... C. Saint-Saens
'Tis Me, O Lord (Negro Spiritual) ..... Arr. by H. T. Burleigh
Clair de Lune ..... DeBussy

Frieda Hempel, the beautiful soprano, and often called the "Jenny Lind of Today," was the last artist of the year on the Women's Federation concert program. Miss Hempel appeared May 12, and was received by a most enthusiastic audience. Her clear, lovely voice justified all the praise which it has received.

Student Advisory Committee

BETH LIPSKY AND BETH BOWEN, Joint Chairmen

THE STUDENT Advisory Committee is one of the most important of the Women's Federation. Friendship between Freshman and the older girls on the campus is one of the most important functions of this committee. To interest the younger co-eds in the activities on the campus and to make them feel at home at Washington, parties were given during the year where the upper classmen were hostesses to the Freshman sisters.

The work of the Student Advisory committee started about the first of August when letters were sent out to all the high school girls who were expected to enter the University in the fall. The letters were tokens of friendship, telling the girls that Washington was waiting for them and urging them to cooperate by underlining the activity they were most interested in so that they could be placed under the care of a Big Sister who was also interested in the same activity.

Activities were divided into four sections, physical education, home economics, nursing, and general. As the letters were returned they were sorted and each head took the responsibility of placing these girls under the care of a Big Sister. A general meeting was called of all the new girls on October first, and here the plans of the committee were submitted.

Throughout the year different plans have been tried out. A party was held January 20, in the Women's Federation rooms. Student advisory will be placed under the supervision of Interorganization Council next year, as it has been found that the girls needing the most help can be best reached by this organization.

Drama and Music

Music

"Melody is the absolute language in which the musician speaks to every heart."—Richard Wagner

THE MUSICAL SEASON had a triumphant start with the mid-winter concert when Aida, by Verdi, was presented in Meany Hall. The solo parts as sung by Miss Edna Mabon, showed very careful study and were a credit to this very difficult grand opera selection.

Perhaps no greater assistance is given to the young musician than the opportunities offered by the McDowell Club. Once a month this group of music-loving people meet to enjoy the efforts of each other.

Mu Phi Epsilon added another scholarship to the music department this year. Anyone in the department, except members of this musical honorary, is eligible for this scholarship which offers a year's instruction in voice, violin, cello or pipe organ.

Maxine Jeffers won the first scholarship.

For a number of years Mr. Venino has offered a scholarship in piano. His award was won by Norman Clem this year.

The Fine Arts Council, a representative body of the departments in Fine Arts, Dramatic Art and the Dancing department in Physical Education, is the governing body which exercises in the interest of the students in these departments and cooperates with the faculty in bettering the departments in every way.

Juliet Glen and Verner Delaney represented the music department on the Council this year.

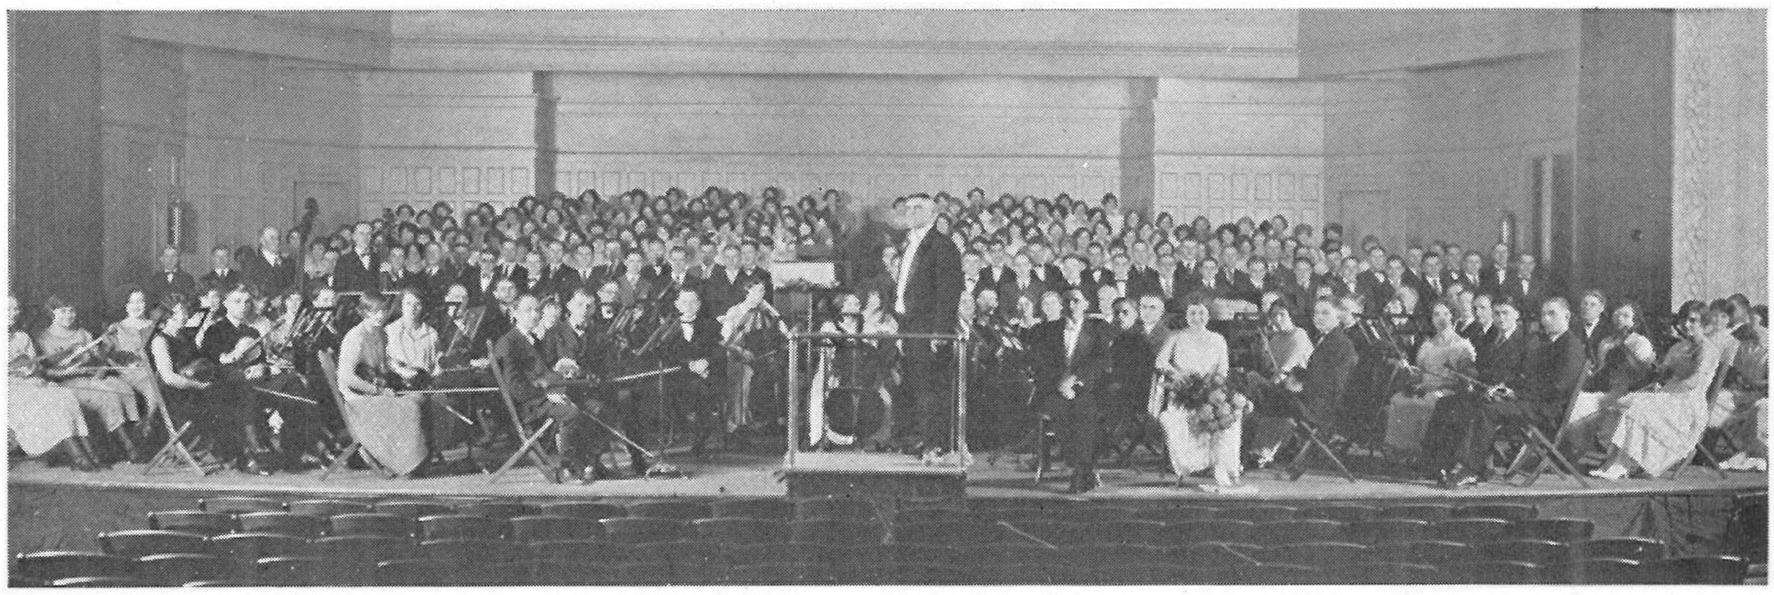

MacHarrie, King

Glee Club

THE UNIVERSITY of Washington Glee Club, during its twenty-fifth season, its silver anniversary year, has met with meritorious success. Two home concerts, with the second broadcasted directly from Meany Auditorium, and twelve outside concerts, including tours to the Gray's Harbor country, east of the mountains, and to the northern part of the state, completed a full program of five months.

The specialty acts this year were, according to press reports and general comment, extremely well balanced. Dick Cook with his Chinese banjo in "Banjophobia," MacHarrie and King in a truly meaningless "nut" act entitled "Vacuumania," Verner Delaney, tenor, and David Lincoln Burnam, violinist, completed the list of the other acts on the program.

The Junior Girls Vaudeville

Speed was the keynote of the 1925 edition of the Junior Girls' Vaudeville, presented March 6 and 7, at the Metropolitan Theatre. Norma Davis, as chairman, managed a most successful production. The Vaudeville this year was a departure from past presentations in that it was organized into a revue of two long acts and six shorter ones. During the twenty-minute intermission between the two longer acts, the six revues were staged. Humorous, dramatic burlesques, tumbling acts, jazz orchestras, dancing and singing were included.

Chuck Crouch and George Eichorn and their orchestra rendered various chorus and patter songs in a pleasing manner.

Juliet Glen and Lindsey MacHarrie gave an original comedy skit which evoked much laughter.

Dorothy Hager and Windy Heuston appeared in a highly vivacious dancing act.

Kathryn Brown gave the musical part of the production a little variation by rendering several songs in "Charlotte Greenwood" style.

Virginia Nachant and Margaret Tapping in a dancing set was one of the best of its sort produced.

A monologue by Leif Melsom was a source of added interest on the bill.

Gregory Morris and Clarence Shreeve with their tumbling and turning drew many "ahs" and "ohs" from the audience.

The "Dead Duck," a burlesque on Tchekov's "Sea Gull," was simply "ultra lugubrious." Ruth Hecht, Mary Greiner, Wesley Kilworth, Fred Blanchard, Steve Brown, and Albert Ottenheimer comprised the cast.

A nineteen-piece orchestra under the leadership of Graham French furnished melodies throughout the program.

The chorus of various dancing acts include the following: Doris McVey, Virginia Shakn, Lorraine Casey, Marion Pierce, Bertha Goff, Phyllis Moore, Frances Williams, Barbara Williams, Geraldine Zindorf. Leona Gaul and Josephine Price featured in several songs.

Spring Opera

SYNOPSIS OF "THE SERENADE"

By Victor Herbert

By singing his serenade to her, Alvarado has won the love of Yvonne. But he has left her, and she is seeking vengeance upon him for his desertion.

Later, with the same enchanting melody, Alvarado has gained the love of the charming Dolores. Dolores is the ward of the Duke de Santa Cruze; he is madly in love with her and vows that no one else shall have her. To keep her from hearing Alvarado's magic song, he resolves to take her to a convent in the mountains where she will be safe.

But Alvarado disguises himself as a postillion, and accompanies her to the convent. Here in this romantic mountain stronghold he is able once more to sing of his love.

Gomez, a tailor, is also in love with Dolores. He discovers that her heart has been won by the serenade of Alvarado. He tries to learn it, but all his notes are of the same pitch. His attempts infuriate the neighbors, and, in desperation, they drive him from the town. Still practicing, he goes to the mountains and there meets Colombo and Yvonne, children of the theatre and of the opera. He persuades them to teach him to sing the serenade, and here the comedy becomes hilarious.

Everyone now knows about the song. It has even penetrated the walls of monastery and convent, and the monks and the convent parrot can sing bits of its melody.

At the end, the tradition of light opera prevails. The Duke must be satisfied with his dukedom, for Alvarado weds Dolores.

Drama Review

A TRIO of one-act plays were given in the Crow's Nest in Denny Hall, on February 6, under the auspices of the Washington Chapter of the Associated University players. These plays were written by students of Professor Glenn Hughes.

The first, "A Story for the Morning Star," by William A. Kimball, is a comedy of unusual merit. Under the director, Fred Blanchard, the play was very pleasingly produced.

The cast included: Bertha Goff, as "Wynne Graham"; Fred Blanchard, as "James Kinsey"; Ruth Haines, as "Susan Graham"; Margaret Hale, as "Mrs. Graham," and Clarence Kavanaugh as "Mr. Graham."

The second, "The Trap," a frank melodrama, was written by Alex do Soto, and ably directed by Mary Greiner. The cast of characters follows:

"Ray" ..... Phil J. King
"Roue" ..... Donald Potter
"Huckle" ..... Albert M. Ottenheimer
"Violet" ..... Sophie Rosenstein

"The Gate," a comedy, directed by Mildred Jewell, was written by Matthew O'Connor. The title role was played by Robert Cantwell. The cast:

"Quixby Paine" ..... Ralph Treffry
"Mrs. Barton Smith" ..... Nadine Robbins
"Quentin Smith" ..... Ned Taylor
"Lucia Paine-Smith" ..... Kathryn Brown
"City Editor" ..... Wilbur Berg

The stage settings for the three plays were under the direction of Burton W. James. The General Production staff is:

General Director ..... Ruth Hecht
Stage Manager ..... Dorothy Simmonds
Property Mistress ..... Edythe Lycette
Publicity Manager ..... Albert Ottenheimer
Business Manager ..... Steve Brown

"Justice," a four act drama by John Galsworthy, was given by the A. S. U. W. Players in Meany Auditorium, November 14. The cast, the most unusual of any play given recently on the campus, consisted of twenty-five men and one woman, all capable performers.

The thread of excitement and suspense which runs through the whole of the play, begins when the crime about which the story revolves, is finally fastened upon the hero. It continues throughout the impressive court scene where the "chariot wheels of Justice" begin to grind.

The Cast:

"William Falden" ..... Jean Paul King
"Robert Cokeson" ..... Mason Campbell
"Walter How" ..... William Knosher
"Sweedle" ..... Shirley Kimmel
"Detective Sergeant Wister" ..... Frank Haggerty
"Mr. Justice Floyd" ..... Lawrence Zillman
"Hector Frome" ..... Burt Burnett
"Harold Cleaver" ..... Albert Ottenheimer
"Captain Danson" ..... E. Kent Kane
"Rev. Hugh Miller" ..... Donald Potter
"Edward Clements" ..... Wilbur Bery
"Wooder" ..... Ernest McElvain
"Warder Instructor" ..... Lloyd Erickson
"Moaney" ..... Clarence Kavanaugh
"Clipton" ..... Mel Voorhees
"O'Cleary" ..... Hal Westmore
"Cowley" ..... Norman Kelly
"Clerk of Court" ..... Clarence Kavanaugh
"Foreman of Jury" ..... Gordon Dodds
"Reporters" ..... Frank Voorhees, Kenneth Fisher
"Ruth Honeywell" ..... Vivian Effinger

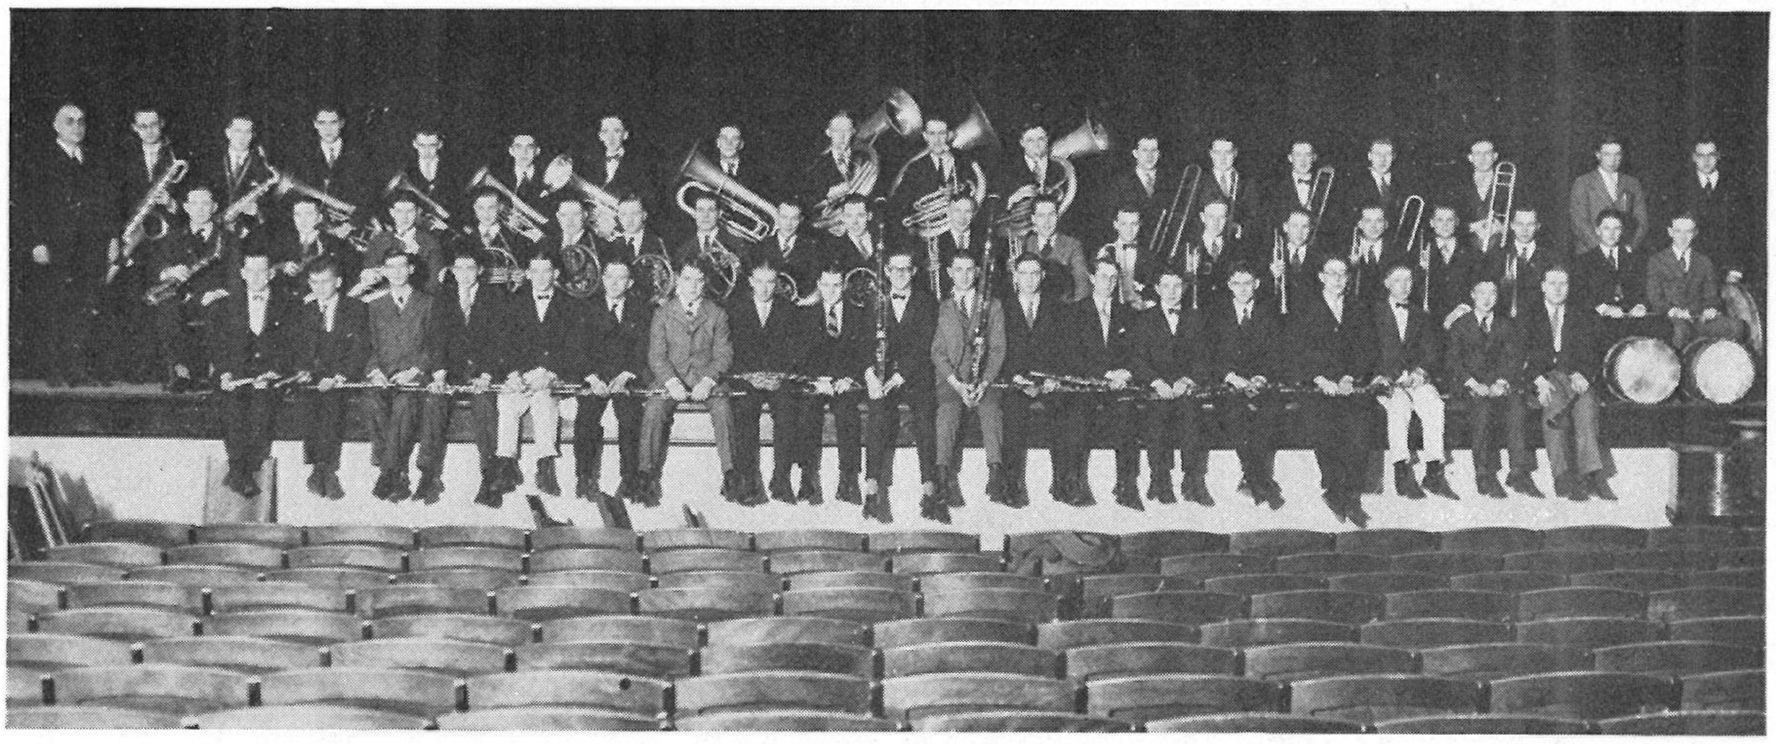

The scenic work was in the hands of the Theater Workshop Class of the University under the direction of Burton W. James. In charge of the appointments were: Charles Crouch, Settings; Edna Grebe, Properties; Mary Greiner, Costume Mistress; Al Balch and Al Ottenheimer, Publicity.

"Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" was a typical Barrie production—lovely, light and clever. It was an unusual satire on the modern problem play.

The cast of characters:

"Alice" ..... Eileen O'Leary
"Amy" ..... Ella Lemon
"Cosmo" ..... Harold Bassage
"Genevra" ..... Helen Trick
"Nurse" ..... Aristelle McDonald
"The Colonel" ..... Lawrence Zillman
"Richardson" ..... Marjorie Leitch
"Fanny" ..... Bernadine Giddens
"Steve" ..... Burt Burnett

WITH THE QUAINT OLD BRIDGE of Louis XVI depicted at one end of the ballroom, and a Ferris wheel at the other, DeHoney's Ballroom was a veritable old Monmartre. The sun cast a golden glow over the gaiety at the first of the dance, while the moon and stars appeared at the close of the evening, bidding the guests adieu. IN THE SPANISH BALLROOM of the Olympic Hotel, the Formal Prom of the Class of '26 was held February 20. The party was formal in all its appointments.

An old Spanish volume, the family record book, made of maroon leather and lettered with gold, formed the ladies' program. Each dance was a chapter. The men's programs were of a simple formal nature.

THE CADET BALL, the annual spring formal sponsored by Scabbard and Blade, was given in the Masonic Temple, May 8. Elaborate floral decorations were combined with the militaristic decorations. The programs, too, were uniquely appropriate for the party given by our honorary militarists.

Senior Soiree

Byrne, Davidson, Thomsen, McGoldrick
Thiry, Phelps, Anderson, Uhlmann, Easterbrook, Nims

SEVENTY-FIVE COUPLES attended the Senior Soiree which was held in the Wilsonian Ballroom November 8. The Ballroom was simply decorated. Two large spotlights alternately played on the dancers with a purple and golden glow.

The "Balloon Dance," the feature of the evening, furnished much amusement. The ladies tied balloons around their ankles and the winner was the one who still wore a balloon intact at the end of the dance. She was presented with a pair of "Balloon Gumps."

Tolo

Brassington, Bendetson, Hansen, Talbot, Cundiff, Dix

TAXIS, LIMOUSINES, SPORT CARS, FORDS, and "Nature's Own," all sped to the annual Leap-Year-Style dance at the Armory, January 23. Tolo this year was more traditional than ever before.

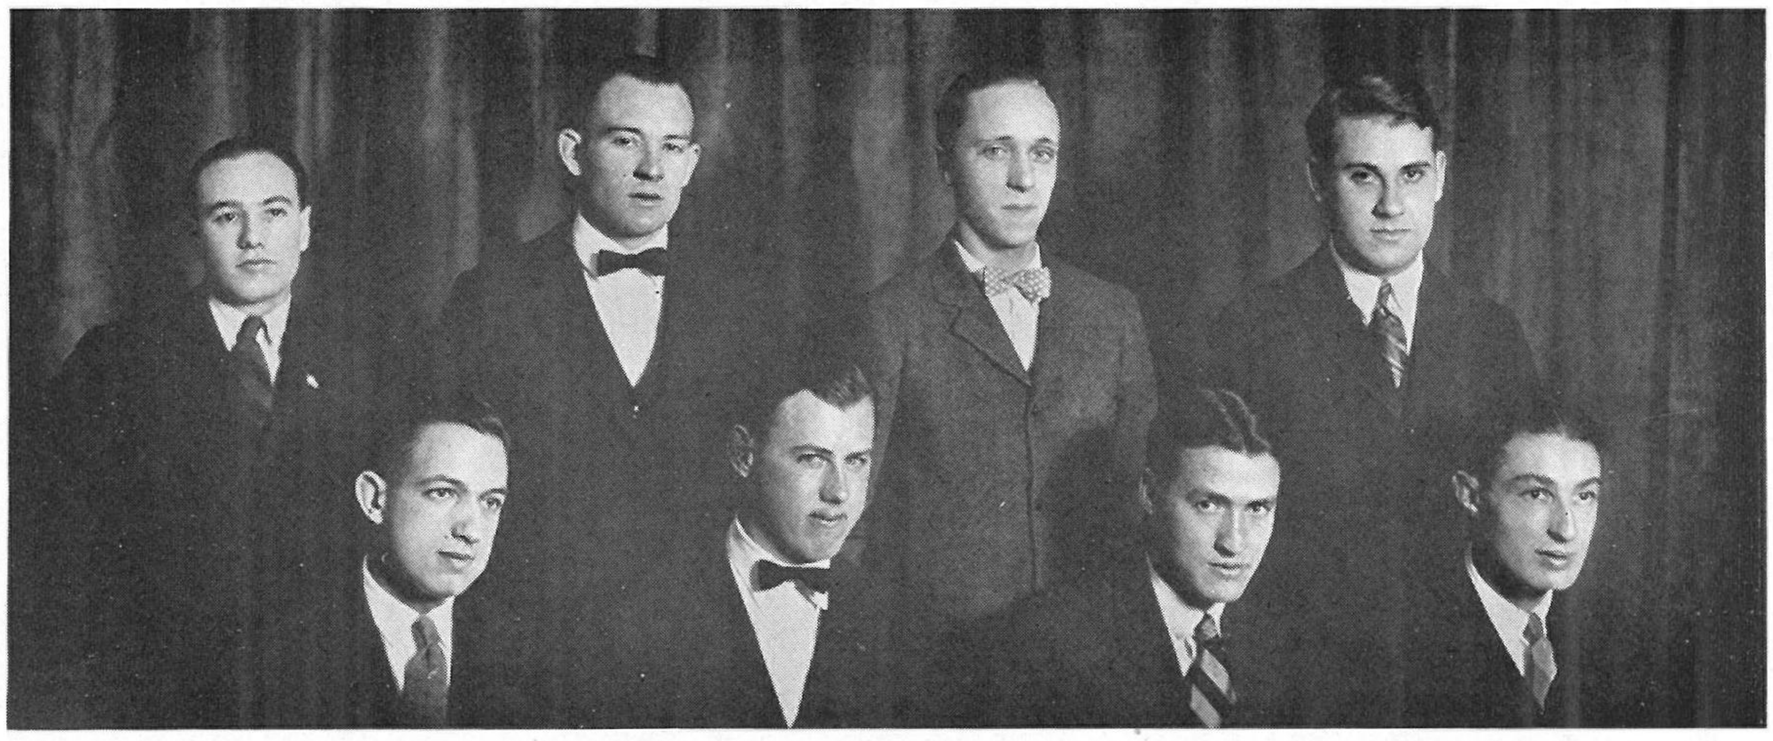

Indian blankets draped around the orchestra stand lent the characteristic atmosphere to Tolo. The Grant Merrill and Bud Fisher musicians proved that harmonics had advanced by leaps and bounds since the Indian had beaten the tom-tom. The drums alone expressed the spirit of our Indian Pioneers.

Engineers' Informal

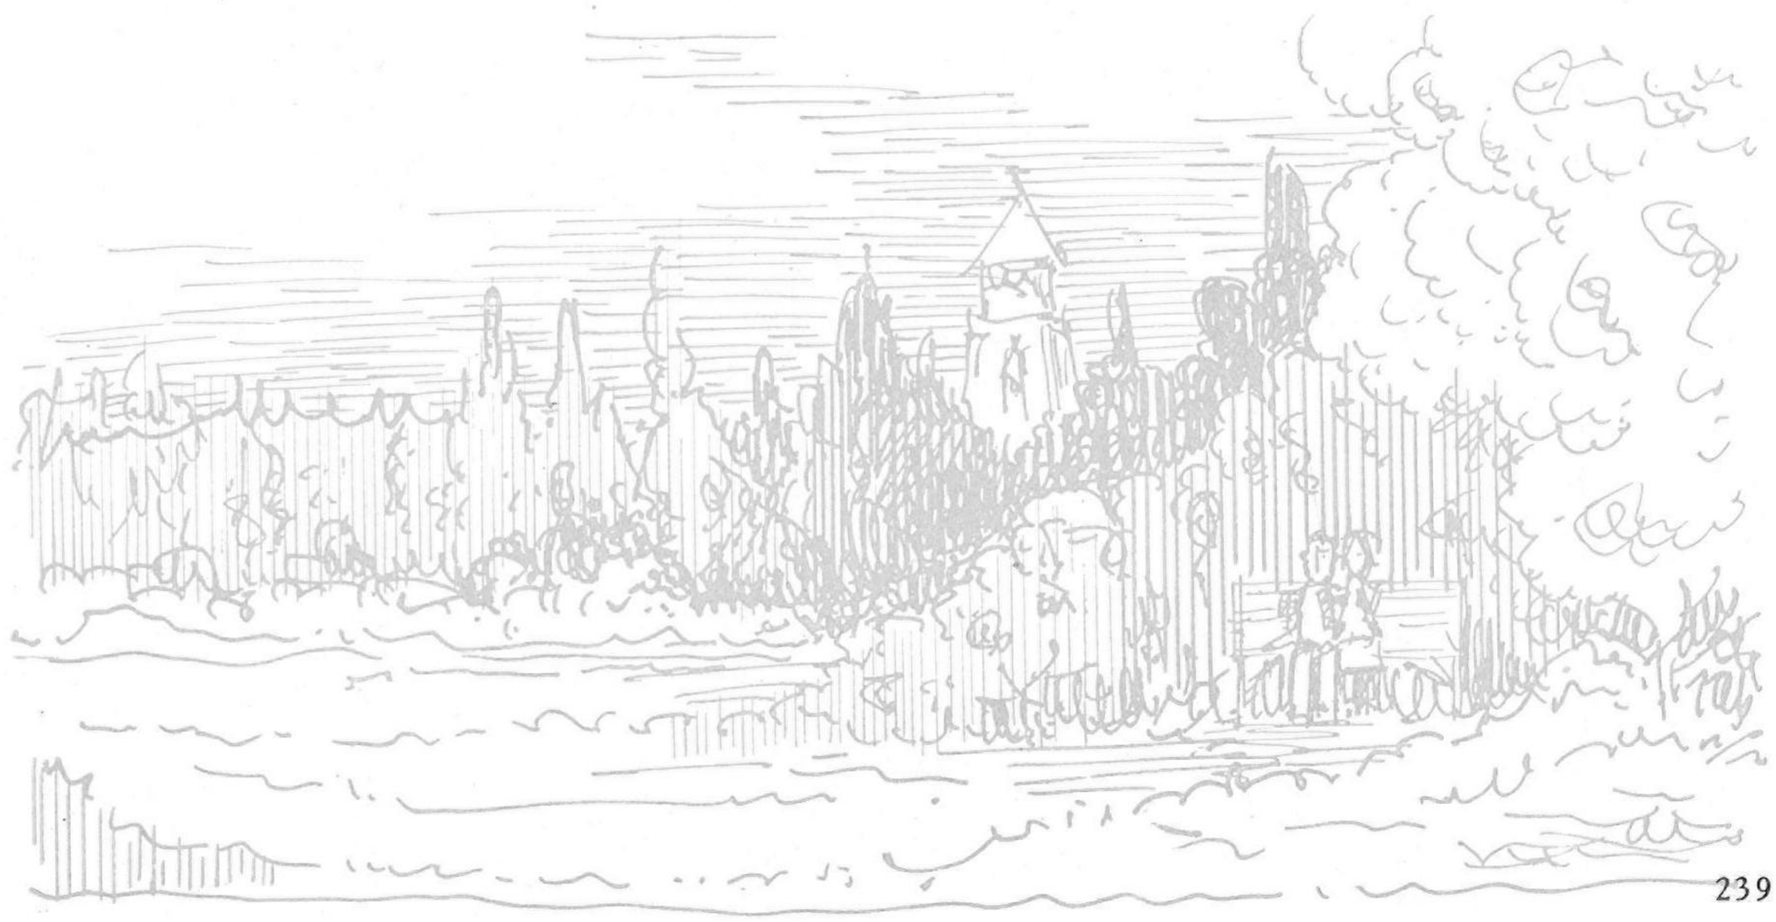

Benjamin, Appelgren, Nordahl, Muehler
Ross, Hallstrom, Buckley, Gross

WITH TEN STREAMERS of red and blue lights strung from one end of the Armory to the other, with five big rotating cylindrical lights in different parts of the room, the coloring effect of the Engineers' Informal, held February 6, was fascinating. During different dances, different lights played over the jolly guests.

Evergreen boughs covered both the ceiling and the walls of the Armory. Engineers' protractors gave the programs a unique and clever form.

Society Review

MARITIME decorations gave DeHoney's ballroom a typical sea-going atmosphere the evening of January 9, when the Varsity Boat Club gave their annual informal.

Unique lighting effects gave the appearance of billows on the surface of the water. The punch boys were dressed as sailors.

A skeleton sat in a scull, patiently waiting the signal to start from end of the ballroom and furnished much amusement and merriment for the gallant escorts of the dainty, timid co-eds.

The Poughkeepsie trophy, the Piggott and Triangular Trophies and an eight-paired shell were displayed on a platform near the orchestra.

The programs were arrowheads when closed and opened into miniature sculls. Seated in this frail though sea-worthy craft were the nine crew men who manipulated the course of the guests throughout the evening.

During intermission, movies taken at the midpoint of the 1924 Poughkeepsie races were shown.

The Junior-Senior annual party developed from a no-date mixer into a date informal entitled "The Round-up" this year.

The Roundup took place at the Olympic Golf and Country Club to which the guests were conveyed in busses furnished by the committee in charge.

A Western motif was used throughout. The spacious porches of the club were thrown open and green lights were used as beacons from the drive-way to the porch.

The programs were typical little cow-punchers. Bandanas were given to the girls as trophies of the party.

Knights of the Hook gave their annual Informal at the Armory, January 16. The armory wore the festive air of a virgin forest with green streamers forming an artistic skyline.

Grant Merrill's eight-piece orchestra was hidden behind a wall of purple and gold balloons. An added feature of the music was the use of two pianos.

The traditional Hook, the Golden Bear and the Cougar of Washington State College were displayed during the intermission. Bob Keefe, president of the A. S. U. W., announced the initiates of the Knights of the Hook.

Debate

Debate In Review

OTH from the point of view of the coach, Kai Jensen, and the manager, Webster Gullicksen, the year in Debate has been a success.

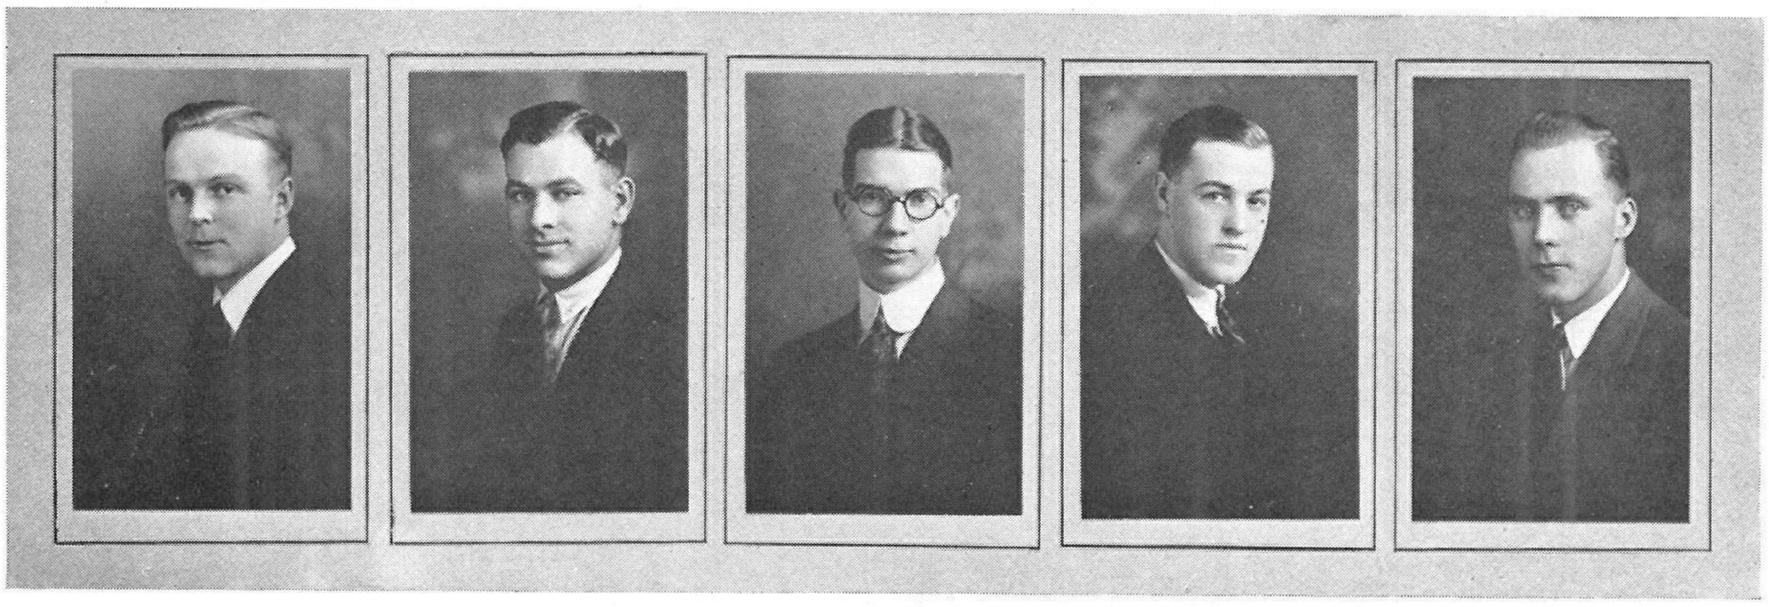

The season opened with the Oxford-Washington debate, the first international debate ever held on the Washington campus. Washington received both the judges' decision and the popular one. The University was represented by Wesley Randall, Lawrence Seltzer, and Elwood Hutcheson. The Oxford team consisted of Malcom MacDonald, J. D. Woodruff, and M. C. Hollis. The English representatives upheld the presidential type of government, while the Washington men argued for the cabinet system. Washingtonians showed a keen interest in this debate, for Meany Hall was packed to the galleries.

On February 7, at Meany Hall, Washington debated Washington State College. The question was: "Resolved that Congress by a two-thirds vote should have the power to overrule the decisions of the United States Supreme Court declaring acts of Congress unconstitutional." Washington debated on the affirmative side of this question. As in other debates over the entire country, no decision was rendered. Maurice Orth and Elwood Hutcheson debated this same question for the affirmative at Whitman College.

The University of Oregon took the negative side of the Supreme Court question, while Washington upheld the affirmative on February 12, at Meany Hall. A decision was given at this debate, 3-0, in favor of the negative, defended by Oregon. The judges were: B. K. Daniels of Tacoma, L. P. Bennett of Broadway High School, Seattle; and E. H. Gelvin of Bellingham.

Dean Spencer was varsity debate manager at the beginning of the season. When he left school he was replaced by Webster Gullicksen, with Howard Bargreen assisting. Kai Jensen has been the coach during the entire season. It has been the policy this year to have an interesting program of music and recitations in addition to the debates.

Women's Varsity Debate

George Burrus Smith Simonds Hubbard

THE WASHINGTON Women Debaters for the year 1924-1925 were Adelyne Burrus, Dorothy Thomas-George, Arline Hubbard, Dorothy Simmonds, and Charlotte Smith.

Adelyne Burrus and Dorothy Simmonds were letterwomen of the University of Washington. Dorothy Thomas-George was a former letterwoman of the Southern Branch of the University of California.

Dorothy Thomas-George was appointed student debate manager for the season. Her assistant was Adelyne Burrus.

The second debate of the year 1924-1925, was the Women's Triangular meet with the University of Idaho, and Whitman College, held January 22, 1925.

It was a no-decision contest on the question: "Resolved, that the Initiative and Referendum are desirable adjuncts of Representative Government."

The affirmative team, Dorothy Thomas-George and Dorothy Simmonds, met the Whitman College team at Seattle.

The negative team, Adelyne Burrus and Charlotte Smith, met the University of Idaho at Moscow.

A Women's Triangular Debate was scheduled with the University of California and the University of Oregon for March 5th. California canceled, leaving Washington and Oregon to meet in dual debate.

The affirmative team, Charlotte Smith and Arline Hubbard, met the University of Oregon in Seattle, while the negative team, Dorothy Thomas-George and Adelyne Burrus, debated at Eugene.

THE WASHINGTON INDEPENDENT SENATE was organized in the spring of 1923 for the purpose of creating a medium through which all independent men could work for a common end. The personnel of the Senate is composed of accredited representatives from men's independent clubs on the campus. The Senate conducts independent athletic tournaments, manages dances, banquets and smokers for independent students, awards a scholarship cup yearly to the member-organization having the highest scholastic rating, and functions as an advisory body in all matters pertaining to independent men.

THE ODESSEY of a "COLLEGE" MAN.

Book, Lyrics and Libretto as well as General Responsibility for the Crime,
by Albert M. Ottenheimer

Scenic Investure and Mural Embellishments
by Chuck Sargent

WILLIAM BOSTON PLOPP came to College under Compulsion, Protest and a Cloud. The Train carrying William arrived in Seattle at about the same Time as a frosty October Dawn. The Iron Horse was two Hours and Fifteen minutes late, but the Dawn was running on Schedule.

William surrendered his Bags to a Motor Bandit who drove a Tin Contraption painted like a Futuristic Sunset. The motorized Jesse Jimmy took Willie to the University District. He also took Willie to the Cleaners—for about $5.50 in Fares. The Gasoline-Guzzling Nightmare deposited Our Hero at the Foot of the Washington Statue at the Campus Entrance and Willie Scared the Sea Gulls from George's placidly folded Hands in dismounting.

Of Willie's Coming and the Manner thereof, is like the After Deck on a Dog, for thereby hangs a Tale.

Willie was the Son of rich but honest Parents. At his Entrance upon the present Muddle, he was Eighteen, with still Slight Suspicion of Dampness behind his Auditory Appendages. He had been Christened William after an Uncle and Boston after a Town—both of them Dead. His Mother called him William, because she had picked that Handle out for him. His Father called him Bill because he had always been so Expensive. His Brother, who had been in the Army, called him Willie because he had been Canned so much—from School.

Poppa Plopp was an Industrial Magnate. He was a leading Captain of Industry and a well-known Napoleon of Finance. He was a Restaurant King. He had begun Life at a very early Age. Like all Great Men, he soon showed Evidence of his subsequent Invasion of "Who's Which." Not that he was overly Smart. The only Reason he got past the Third Grade was that he got too Big for the Seats. But he quit School in the Sixth Grade—at the Request of the Teacher, after he'd been in the same Grade for Three Years—and went to Work. He got a Job as a Salesman for a Locomotive Works, but quit when they insisted that he carry Samples.

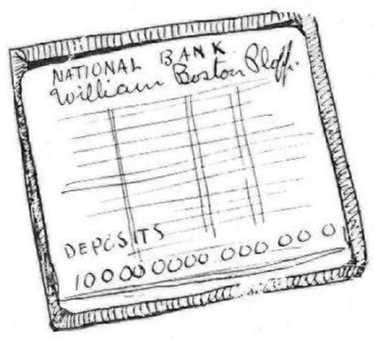

By that Time, however, he had taken a Liking to Heavy Work, so he got Himself a Job in an Off-the-Arm Restaurant making Griddle Cakes. It was hard to keep him Down because he had been Brought Up in an Elevator, so he started a Food Factory of his own. It was a Departure from the old Hunting Case Type of Hash Hang-outs. He made it one of these Open-Face Affairs, where you look in the Window and see a Fellow in a White Apron wrassle Flap-Jacks and Juggle a Stack of Hots. The Nothing-Up-Our-Sleeve Idea in Restaurants took, and pretty soon Poppa Plopp found the President Bowing at him when he came into the Bank.

Then the Old Boy got another Idea. The first one knocked him all out of Shape, but he was Game and didn't let that put any Sand in his Transmission. Never having heard of Caesar, he was Ambitious. The second Idea was a new Way of Vulcanizing Pancakes and the Curse of Time found his Bank Account reading like the Engine Number on a Ford. Poppa was a Sheckle-Herder of High Horsepower and an All-Weather Tread. As a Coin-Corraler he was the Cat's Uncle. He had an Ingrowing Faculty for surrounding the Shiny Stuff. The business grew like the Auto Mortality Rate and after a couple of Years he turned it over to a Flock of Deficiency Experts and devoted his time to Golf and Worrying about what the Help was doing with the Business.

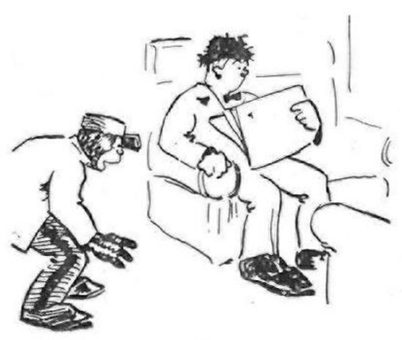

And so the Family moved out of the House back of the Gas-Works and into a big Joint built in the Early Jig-Saw Type of Architecture, Furnished throughout in Fumed Oak of the Latter Grand Rapids Period. Mom Plopp began Enjoying the Luxury of Sick Headaches and Poppa started wearing his Coat down to Dinner. Momma disinterred Poppa's Middle Name, which was Aloysius, and made him have his Cards printed with his Monniker parted in the Middle.

Momma Plopp was a Social Climber, but being of a dizzy Nature, she didn't get very High up. She was a Large Lady with excess Jewels, Ambition and Avoirdupois. Her brain was Muscle-Bound but she was Normal other than having a rather Weak-Minded Predilection for Ukulele Music. She had a Musical Soul but her Heels got in the Way. She was addicted to Milk-Baths, Pig's-Knuckles a la Delicatessen and the Homely Ladies' Journal. She also believed Everything she read in the Newspapers. The rest of the Plopp family, outside of Willie, isn't very Important for the purpose of our Yarn. He had two sisters. One of them Wedded a College Man, but the other Married well. Her Husband wrote Sex Novels and was immensely Wealthy. Willie's Brother Oliver, having just Graduated from College was a Bond Salesman, of course. The only other important fact about Oliver was that he was Cursed with a Sense of Humor and a Desire to Write.

Willie was a very taking Baby. He took every Disease that came along, ranging from Galloping Whooping Cough to the Seven Year Itch that ran itself out in Five and a Half. His Mother made him wear his Curls until he was Eight, which Accounts for the Fact that both of his Ears were all pounded out of Shape.

As so many Children have a Habit of doing, Willie Grew Up. A Year before he arrived at this Institution of Learning and Football, he was at the Stage where he was all Hands and Feet. Twice on the Way to Seattle, the Porter had tried to pick Willie's Feet up out of the Aisle, thinking they were Suitcases. But Willie had largely gotten over the Gangly Period, however, and at the Time of which we Write, he began to look less like an Animated Wrecking Crane or an Extended Drink of Water, and more Human-Like.

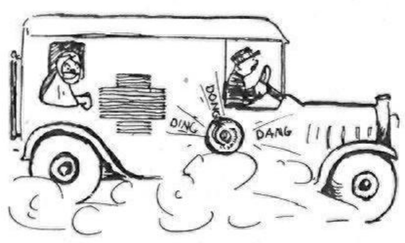

Willie was not Handsome. He was Near-Sighted and his Nose turned up. He had Molasses-Colored Hair and Eyes of the Color of Monday's Wash after most of the Bluing has been used up. But, as his Mother said, he had Nice Teeth and Retiring Ears, so he could have been some Worse—not much, but some. The bane of his Life was an Acrobatic Adam's Apple, because every Time he Talked his Eden Fruit Wig-Wagged like a Boy Scout in a Yellow-Jacket Colony. His Neck was so Long and Elastic that he could easily keep Everything under Observation but it made him Extra Work every time he washed.

Willie got Kicked Out of School on an Average of Twice every Month. He had a Natural Knack for getting in Wrong and he made the most of his Talent. No Teacher was Safe in his Presence. He gave one of them Poison Ivy, another the German Measles and two others Nervous Prostration.

The last Match that lit the Camel's End, however, was the immediate Cause of Willie's coming to College. He was always in Trouble or looking for it—and usually he found it. He was in the City Bastille for speeding so often that the Jailor had a Rubber Stamp made of Willie's Name to save writing it on the Blotter so much. Willie was in the Jug at such frequent Intervals he began feeling almost Fluid. Willie and his car wrecked everything from Perambulators and Push-Carts to Street-Cars and Hay Mows. On an Average of once a Month, Willie tried to make a Collar for some Citizen out of one of his Fenders and the Nerves of both Poppa Plopp and the Unfortunate who Wrote Willie's Automobile Insurance were beginning to get on the Ragged Edge.

What chawed the Climax, however, was Willie's getting Woozy on a bottle of Vanilla Extract one Night and making Mulligan out of a Truck Garden, driving his Car through a Barn without bothering to open the Door and spreading Death and Destruction the Length and Breadth of a Barnyard, resulting in the sudden Demise of twelve Plymouth Rock Hens, four Ducks, two Turkeys, a pink Pig, one with black Spots, a Colony of Guinea Pigs and an Alley Cat of Ripe Vintage. He completed the Evening's Entertainment by wrapping his eight thousand Dollar Car around a Fire Hydrant and taking a quick Ride to a Hospital in a White Taxicab with a Red Cross on it. His Nose looked like a Piece of Underdone Hamburger and they Nicked a Hunk out of his Shin to give the wrecked Nasal Accouterment Visibility again.

The Irate Citizenry of Willie's Home Town wanted to Ride him on a Rail, but Poppa said he'd Punish him worse and send him to School, and so Willie came to College.

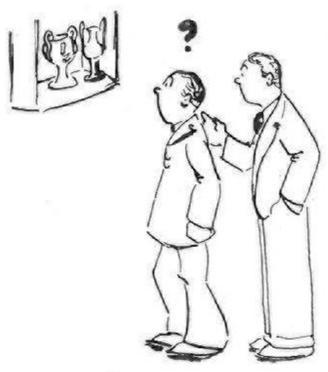

Willie had not wanted to come. College had practically Ruined Oliver, he thought. Poppa Plopp hadn't been especially Anxious either, because the Dent Oliver had put in the Parental Accumulation of the Filthy Lucre was just beginning to come out under the Palliating Influence of a Raise in the Price of Corrugated Pancakes in all of Poppa's Waffle Works. Poppa Plopp was afraid that maybe Willie would get the Idea, like Oliver did, that Poppa was suffering from Fatty Degeneration of the Bank Roll and apply Drastic Remedies. Oliver had a Natural Gift for disposing of the pretty Green Pictures of the Presidents and Willie was no Slouch himself.

On his arrival here, Willie took a Room in a Boarding House on the Avenue that had Fourteen Bedrooms and one Bath. The Bedrooms had Initials carved on the Door Posts and Beer Stains on the Carpets, but the Bathroom was still nearly New.

Willie Registered with the rest of the Mob. He stood in Line for all of two Days and never Walked more and made less Progress in his Life. He wore his Shoes so Thin he could tell the Design on a Carpet by merely standing on it. He finally got through the Mill, though, with Eng. I, Poli. Sci. I, Psych. and Military Agony on his Program.

For about two Weeks Willie was about as Lonesome as an Oyster in Fraternity Oyster Soup. His Outlook on Life was about as Dark as a Negro dressed in Mourning Shoveling Coal in a Manhole at Midnight. But after a while the Davenport Divers on the Hill got Hep to the fact that Willie was Alive, that Willie had a Poppa and that Poppa had a Corner on the Hot Cake Market—if you can get a Corner on Round Hot Cakes. The Eta Bita Pi's and the Dambda Phi Nu's both invited Willie up to Lunch and then to Dinner. The Last Time both House Presidents called Willie aside and told him some of the Boys wanted to Talk to him Up-Stairs.

In both Cases he was shown a Collection of Silver-Plated Shaving Mugs and faded felt Dust-Accumulators that Represented Athletic Prowess and Photos of Be-Whiskered Founders who helped build the Chicago Sewage Canal or assisted in Introducing American Ideals, Corsets and Saxophones into Latin America. Both sets of Brothers claimed that their Athletes broke more Records than a Bull in a Phonograph Shop and that they were especially strong in the East and that the President of the Cheese Cake Trust and the Secretary of the Amalgamated Shoe Button Moulders' Association of West Pittsburgh were among their Revered Members.

Willie thought it over. Oliver was an Eta Bita Pi and he had often spoken to Willie about his Brothers. Consequently Willie Pledged Dambda Phi Nu. The Boys Pounded his Back and Wrung his Hand with Wim and Wigor and told him they were glad to have him and did he own a Car? Willie let them hang the Enameled Hardware on his Lapel and That was That. He moved his Belongings into the Dambda Phi house and inside of two Hours he was Washing Windows and Weeding the Back Lawn.

Having a Hardy Constitution and somewhat of an Inability to Realize what it was all About, Willie Weathered Hell Week fairly well. It was a Rough Trip, but Willie lost only four Meals. He came through with Colors flying, but they were Black and Blue. He wondered for a While if he had gotten in by Mistake into the College of Hard Knocks.

That was the only Week in all of Willie's College Career that he was at all Keen about going to Classes. They were the only Places he could Sleep that Week. At the Behest of the Heads of the Fraternity Inquisition, he skated to West Seattle and Back one Night. He sold Newspapers in Front of the Metropolitan when Half of his Home Town seemed to have Turned Out for the Occasion. He Coo-Cooed in every Business House that had a Clock between the District and Yesler Way, Ending Up in the Police Station, where the Boys behind the Badges thought there was something Suspicious in Scandinavia and were going to put him in the Silly Seminary at Steilacoom, where he could coo-coo with Impunity, until some of the Brothers heard of it and came Down Armed with enough of the Long Green to get him out of Hock.

The Boys left him in Ballard one Night and he nearly Froze to Death before he found somebody who could speak enough English to direct him to a Street Car. The Brothers sent him to Roger's on another Evening in a Track Suit with Orders to eat a Marshmallow Sundae while Ensconsed on the top of the Candy Counter. He did, but the Hair on His Legs Embarrassed him Terribly.

But Finally they figured Willie Weal and True and so he was Nauseated with the other Pledges. To the Tune of Low Chants and Flickering Candles that got Grease all over the Fraternity Center-piece, they Hung upon Willie's Heaving Buzzum the Pearl-Studded Fish-Hook that the Dambda Phi Nu Boys used as a Substitute for a Diamond Solitaire at least once in their Lives.

Fairly started on his College Career, Willie speedily became the College Man. His Clothes changed First. He discarded the Brown Check with the Pinch-Back and Patch Pockets and ditched the Plush Fedora that fit him too Soon, and bought himself a Suit that looked as though it had been Designed by Omar the Tentmaker, with a Sack Effect in the Coat and Semi-Balloon, Low-Pressure Pants. He bought Shoes of the Nigger-Yaller Color he used to Kid the Loggers about back Home for wearing on Sundays, Holidays and Paydays, and a Hat that Turned Down and dripped Rain Water down his Neck, and Robin's-Egg Blue Shirts and Red Bow Neck-Ties with Yellow Dots and a Horse-Blanket Effect Overcoat and an Oyster Fisherman's Four-Dollar Rain-Shedder for Nine Dollars.

Then, as all College Men do, he grew Cynical. First he got Cynical about Women, about Love, about Education, Art and Life. He ended Up by being Cynical about Cynicism.

He soon Learned to Howl about the Prices the Book Store charged and the Editorial Policy of The Daily, to Dance at a Forty-Five Degree Angle, to Walk Bare-Headed in the Rain, to Yes-Yes his Profs and No-No his Women and how to write Persuasive Letters Home for Checks.

Also, as all College Men do, he fell in Love. Not once. Many Times. Often it didn't Last Long, but Always Willie was Moon-Eyed about a new Rib. There was quite a List of Them.

There was Lorna. She was the Deceptive Kind, who gave you the Open Block Signal with her Eyes and then Slapped your Face when you paid any Attention to her R. S. V. P. Angie was the Boastful Sort. She always Bragged about her Tankage Capacity for the Old Embalming Fluid in Terms of Gallons, but if you let her just Smell a Cork, even, she grew Playful and wanted to Eat with her Fingers.

Bella was the Serious Variety. Willie took her out Twice and then she started trying to make him Save his Money.

Celia was one of those Rough Babies. She was Big and Athletic and Packed a Wallop like the South End of a Missouri Long Ear. She was Wont to get Playful and had a Powerful Grip. She broke two of Willie's Ribs.

Selma was a Sentimental Specimen. She was the Kind that Squeezes your Hand when you Dance with her and talks about the Moon on the Water and how Bright the Stars are Tonight and how many of the Sisters have gotten Engaged in the last Year and gone the Double-Halter Route.

Harriet was a Giggly Exhibit. She laughed in High C and Screamed at the Slightest Provocation. She was always Sure to go into Hysterics over some Crack of Uncertain Age for no Reason at all at least Once in an Evening.

Velma was a Sullen Customer. She could get up on her Tall Pony if you didn't Notice the new Way she had of Curling her Hair over her Ears and not Talk to you for the Rest of the Evening. And then while Dancing she'd give you a Dog-With-a-Broken-Leg Kind of Look until you Perspired in the Palms of your Hands and got Pin-Feathery in the back of your Neck. Velma was about as Pleasant as a Case of Mumps to a Vinegar Tester when she got Peevish.

Della was of the Expensive Species. She felt Faint in Front of every Restaurant in Town and the very sight of a Taxi made her Feet hurt. Her Favorite Author was the Man who wrote Menu Cards, but Prices were nothing in her Young Existence. Her appetite was Expensive and Expansive.

Barbara was one of these Unreliable Bombos. You were about as Sure of a Date with Barb as you were about getting an Ethiopian Gentleman into a Marble Orchard in the Dark of the Moon. She broke Dates oftener than a Vaudeville Sharp-Shooter breaks Clay Pipes.

Elvira was a Talkative Infant. She Gushed like a Texas Oil Well. An evening spent with Elvira reminded Willie of Nothing more than a Broadcast of the Conversation of the Ladies Aid Society Sewing Circle of the First Baptist Church at a Coffee Klatch, doing the Anvil Chorus at the Expense of an Absent Member, picked up on a Set with a Tube Howl on a Bad Night for Radio.

Doris was one of these Devilish Samples. She told Off-Color Stories just to see Willie Blush. She tried to see how long after 12:30 she could Stay Out without getting Caught. More than Once Willie had to Spend Half the Night flinging Gravel at her Sisters' Windows to get them to come down and let the Wayward Child in before the Neighborhood and the Dean of Women got the Dirt. Doris drank Hard Likker and smoked Russian Cigarettes, both of which made her beautifully Blah.

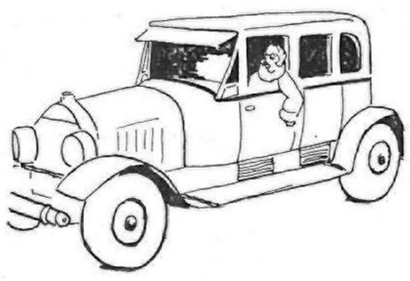

Eugenia was an Egotistical Article. She only Talked about Herself and didn't give Willie a Chance to Strut his own Stuff, which didn't Suit his Style of Ego.

Greta was a Philandering Proposition. She was True to more Men! You would have thought Greta was some Kind of a Garden by the Way the Boys planted Pins on her. Her Jewel Case looked like the Contents of a Fraternity Jewelry Salesman's Sample Case. She got Willie's Pin, but it was a Case of Give and Take and he got it Back eventually. Greta didn't have much of a Future, but, Hotsy-Totsy, what a Past!

Virginia was a Pal. She owned a Big Car and two fur Coats. She played Tennis, Bridge and a Ukulele equally well. She was Beautiful and it didn't Rub Off. She Danced Divinely and would rather eat Chili than Caviar. Willie wanted to Marry her, but she said Nixie and pulled the "I'll-be-a-Sister-to-you" Line and they kept on having Good Times.

Maida was a Young Intellectual. She wore Rubber-Tired Goggles and talked Freud and Aural-Consciousness and the Mechanism of Teleology until Willie's Head Swam. She liked Brahms better than Con Conrad and read Andreyev in Preference to Harold Bell Wright. Willie caught her Laughing at a Funny Paper once, however, which shows she was part Human, anyhow. He knew she had a Weakness for Ice Cream Cones and Babies, too.

Luella was a Fidgety Edition. She was more Active than a St. Vitus Dancer with the Ague and she had more Energy than there is Veal in a Boarding House Chicken Pie. She always Wore Willie Out and after an Evening spent Dancing with Luella, he came home all in but the Proverbial Shoe Strings.

Patricia was a Plain Dish. She wasn't particularly Pretty nor expecially Bright nor yet a Marvelous Dancer, but she was Sensible and Good Fun and Willie liked her. She was the Kind Men seldom Marry but often Wish they had.

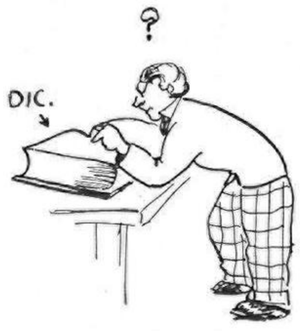

Such were the Loves of William. They Occupied a Good Deal of his Time. He found that his Studies Interfered a Lot with his Amusements, but he didn't Mind. He Turned out for Dramatics and got a Part in an All-University Play. He was one of the Villain's Henchmen and Died in the First Act when the Hero Explored his Innards with a Rapier, but he came to Life in the Third Spasm for a Speaking Part where the Script called for "Howls of the Mob, off Stage."

The House President made him run for Vice President of the A. S. U. W. He lost by two Ballots and the four Frosh in the House who forgot to Vote ate off the Mantle-Piece for a Week and a Half. All Willie had to show for the Campaign was Hand-Shaker's Cramp.

Willie was going to be a Chemical Engineer when he started to College, but there is many a Slip twixt the Hip and the Lip and he couldn't find the Place where the Engineers Registered so he became a Major in English instead. The Clerks in the Registrar's Office didn't get Callouses on their Thumbs writing A's on his Grade Record, but Willie was sufficiently well Mentally Equipped so that all of his Visits to the Office of the Dean of Men were of a Friendly Nature.

Whatever his Faults, he did have some Ability in the Word-Scrambling Line. He wrote a pretty fair Variety of Drool and he had the Editor of The Columns calling him by his First Name by the time he was a Sophomore. William Wielded a Disastrous Line of Language. Having been Born in Boston, he Surrounded a lot of twelve-Syllable Words and he knew a Few that would make an Orthographer Ory-Eyed. Willie Spouted large Chunks of Conversation without a Quiver and he Wrote Essays that sent even his English Profs into Consultation with the Hide-Bound Funk and Wagnalls.

Willie went the Usual Course of the Average College Man. As a Freshman he wondered what it was all About. As a Sophomore he knew what it was all About. As a Junior he began to be Doubtful and by the Time he had Assumed the Woes and Worries of Seniordom, he was All At Sea again.

Tempus Fugited and William found himself about to Graduate. He wrote Petitions to the Board of Deans until the very Sight of Yellow Paper gave him the Wee Willie Winkums and the Dread

Logoes on the Bogoes. He made quite a Record however. He wrote Twenty-Three Petitions and Two of them were Accepted. His Batting Average in this Respect was the Best in his Class.

The Eventful Day Rolled Around and Willie Enfolded himself in a Black Kimona that kept getting under his Heels and Crowned himself with a Mortar-Board Hat that would Not stay Put. He joined the Procession of Seniors and Marched in the Hot Sun and Wilted his Collar and got Rocks in his Shoes, just like the Rest. Prexy gave him a Glad Hand and a small square of Grade C Vellum printed in Red and Black with an Exaggerated Red Cog-Wheel in one Corner, thereby changing Willie from a Senior to an Alumnus. The Diploma let All Men know by these Presents that Willie was a Real-Honest-to-God Bachelor of Arts, and no Fooling.

Most of the Family was in Meany Hall to see Willie get his Synthetic Sheep-skin. They were all there except Sister Margaret's Filth-Flinging Hubby, who was in the East, attending the Seventy-Fourth Edition of his latest Opus on Sin and Seduction in College Circles, called "Passionate Pulchritude." Incidentally, the closest Peg's Hubby got to an Institution of Higher Learning was Tractor School.

Willie sat on the Platform with the rest of the Herd and had a terrible Time trying to find Somewhere to put his Hands. He Perspired like a Fat Man at a Brewers' Picnic.

All the Family Remembered Willie with an Appropriate Gift. Poppa bought him a new Car with Four-Wheel Brakes and a One-Arm Drive, with a new Check-Book in a Side Pocket for Paying Fines. That Space-Annihilator had more Cylinders than you could Count in a Week, talking Fast. Momma bought Willie a Diamond-Studded Watch with a Guaranteed Single-Shift, Ball-Bearing, Reciprocal Action, Sleeve-Valve, Gear-Drive, Non-Detonating, Gravity-Feed, Twelve-Inch Piston Displacement Works. It was the Kind of a Watch that would make a nice Gift to a Man Behind a Gun some dark Night.

Poppa Plopp was Resigned. He had been Satisfied to send Willie to College. He didn't mind the Nine Thousand Dollars the Experiment cost him. He Figured that Knocking some of the Rough Edges off of Willie was Worth that. Now that Willie was Graduated, Poppa put him down on the Debit Side of the Ledger and the Price of Waffles went up another Nickel. That Willie would go to Work never Entered Poppa Plopp's practically new Mind.

But Willie did. His Mean Accumulation of Polysyllables and his Ability to Throttle the English Language and make it say Uncle stood him in good Stead.

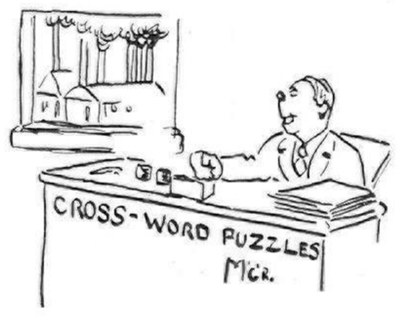

He got a Job inventing Cross Word Puzzles!

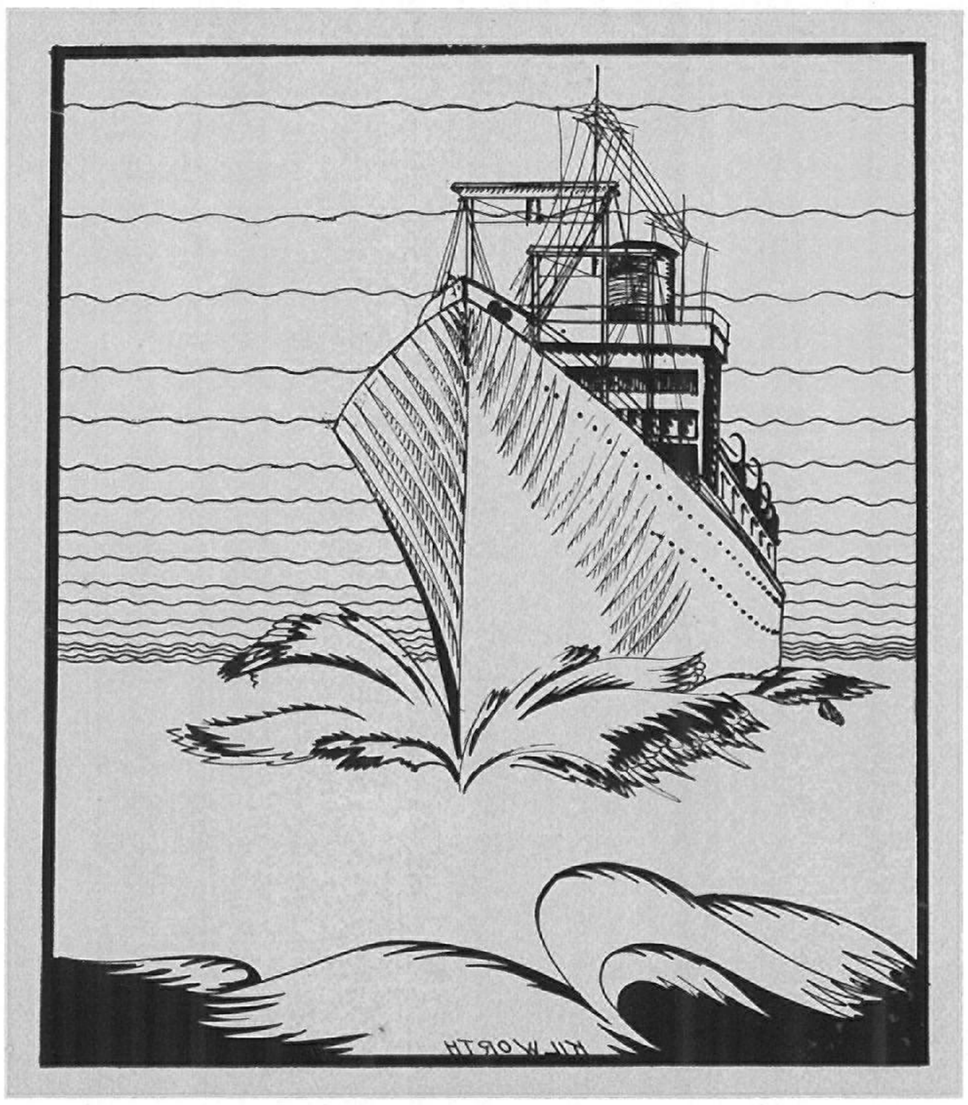

Willie rose to Fame on the Crest of the Wave of Popularity of these Asylum-Fillers. He bore the Distinction of being the first one to use the Word "Emu" in an X-Word Puzzle. He was also the Initial Perpetrator of the Idea to call a "Tee" a "Nodule of Earth." He Discovered that "Rajah" could also be spelled "Raja," much to the Discomfiture of the Addicts.

He started a Cross Word Puzzle Foundry of his own and turned out the Books in Floods, Flocks and Freshets. He also made Considerable of the Elongated Verdancy by Publishing Cross-Word Puzzle Joke Books, after the so-called Humorists got Loose on these.

Willie knew he had a Half-Nelson on a good Proposition and he made the Most of it. His Income Tax read like the Receipts of a World's Championship fight. He made Poppa Plopp's Measly Thirty Million Lady-Medallions look like the Collection in a Scotch Sunday School the Week after the Tax-Collector had been around, along side of Willie's. At last reports Willie was Seriously Considering giving the University a Gold Bowl to put the Frosh Pond in and the Free Services of an Expert to try and keep the Chimes in Tune.

Moral: A College Man is God's Gift to a Cheerless World. Only he is like Olives—you've got to learn to Like him.

PRESERVE HOME CONTACT

¶ When the student accomplishes something of moment in his college life, or is accorded special recognition, his first thought is to tell Dad and Mother about it.

¶ The most direct way is to call them up. Nothing ties the student closer to home than the voice-to-voice contact over the telephone.

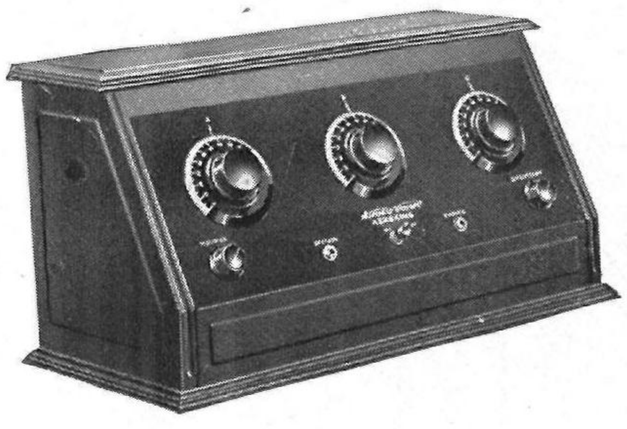

¶ The "Station-to-Station" long distance rate is lower than that of a "Person-to-Person" call. From 8:30 p. m. until midnight it is about one-half, and from midnight until 4:30 a. m. it is about one-fourth, the "Person-to-Person" rate.

It's easy to find "fair to middling" printers ~ but their efforts can never give you full returns for your printing investment.

When we class ourselves as "good to better" printers, we mean that our work for a host of printing buyers, big and little, proves that we are good printers now. We're never so well satisfied with our ability, however, but that we try to make your job a little better than the last one.

The Packard Six five-passenger sedan, $2585 at Detroit

The Packard of Today— Scion of a Distinguished Family

Many a Packard owner remembers, as a child, standing wistfully, watching a Packard roll by—and hoping that some day he, too, might own such a car.

Perhaps a "24", a "30" or an "18". What memories the names recall! And later, the "38's", and "48's" and then the mighty Twin Six, which reigned for eight years—truly a distinguished family.

And now, today, the finest and greatest Packards of them all—the Packard Six and the Packard Eight—alike in beauty, in quality and in distinction.

A liberal monthly payment plan makes it possible for you to immediately enjoy Packard distinction, quality and beauty—purchasing out of income instead of capital.

The · Stylish · NEW · Franklin

Instantly appreciated, no fine motor car in years has been so cordially received by American motorists. These distinctly new style creations of deCausse, internationally famous custom designer, have immediately developed an enormous overdemand.

All established Franklin values have been retained. Franklin comfort, which has been a world standard for years, is more highly developed. Franklin's well known economy has been upheld. Its famous pressure air-cooled engine will survive conditions that would stop any other engine made. Lightness, safety and reliability continue as outstanding characteristics, which find new emphasis in these superb Franklin creations.

These modish new Franklins have a new snap and dash in getaway and performance that is most agreeable. Smartness in appearance is coupled with brilliant roadability.

Forming a "Friendship" that Will Endure Through Life

It is not difficult to understand the popularity of the Buick with college men throughout the country.

It is a car for which they form a real attachment—an enduring friendship.

For, with its flexible power, its ready responsiveness, it seems to enter eagerly into the spirit of their needs and sports. You come to depend upon it as upon a staunch and trustworthy friend.

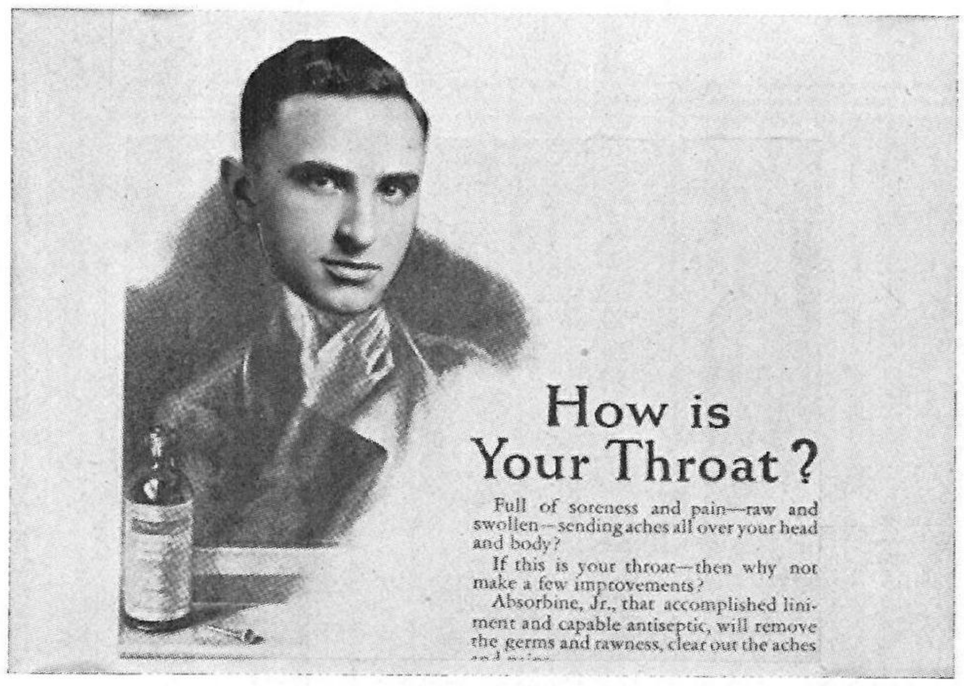

And this solid reliability, this unfailing dependability, make it the continuing choice in the business and professional years that follow.

College men, both sides of graduation, are a large factor in the "More than a Million" who now own and drive the Buick.

HOTEL SAVOY is one of Seattle's leading hotels.

Its location is central; its construction is fire-proof; its rates are moderate.

For example: one person, $2 to $4 a day; two persons, $3 to $6 a day.

Private dining room for parties. Famous Savoy Cafe in connection. Also the fire-proof Savoy Garage.

Someone, sometime, will ask you to suggest a good Seattle hotel. You will say "Hotel Savoy" and earn the inquirer's gratitude.

What do you do with Your Earnings?

If you spend all as you go you will come to want as sure as night follows day. An account in this Savings and loan Association is a dead-sure plan of eventually attaining a competency.

The principle of Savings and Loan investment is regularity. You determine upon a certain definite saving every month and plan for it. You should make it an unalterable ideal to keep faith with your own savings schedule.

Because REGULAR savings, even when small, grow to surprisingly large and worth-while totals.

Increasing Your Sales

THE BEST advertising we get comes from our pleased customers," says many a business man. "A satisfied purchaser will always tell his friends, because he feels that they, too, will benefit by trading where satisfaction is assured."

The biggest problem today, is not in keeping customers, but in getting them. Today, quality is the foremost factor in all lines and to put before your prospective buyer, the goods you sell or the service you offer, printer's ink must be used liberally.

Good advertising and attractive printing is the answer. This is our product, and our service has solved business problems for Seattle firms for many years. Give us the opportunity to boost your volume and profits.

THE Freshman team won the baseball championship for 1924 by defeating the Juniors, 15 to 3, in the final game played Women's Field Day, May 31. The Freshmen were also winners of the last year's championship.

The championship team was made up of Margaret Duncan, captain; Charlotte Rawson, Olive Hensley, Helen Thode, Estelle Pease, Dorothy George, Esther Kleinlein, Katherine Britton, Ruth Charlesworth, Jean Wallace, Bergat Maydahl, Marjorie Massar, Pearl Powell and Loretta Sandahl.

George Guttormsen is making a brilliant return of a long punt made by Russ Swan, the coast's best punter, at the start of the fourth quarter of the Montana tussle. Roy Petrie, the giant Husky tackle, is stretched out on the ground after sweeping the path clear of Grizzly tacklers for the speedy Washington quarterback. Washington defeated the Grizzlies from Montana by a comfortable margin and the ball toting tactics of Enoch Bagshaw's new find, Guttormsen, was largely responsible for the scores made by the Varsity eleven.

Lead U. S. in Scoring

Washington led the United States in scoring during the 1924 season, piling up 355 points to their opponents' 24. Montana, Oregon, and California each scored 7 points while O. A. C. grabbed one field goal.

The Huskies defeated the following collegiate rivals: Willamette, Whitman, Montana, O. A. C., College of Puget Sound, and Washington State College. They lost to Oregon and were held to a tie by California.

Two weeks after the first call for a turnout, Washington played its first games. On September 28, defeating West Seattle Athletic Club and the U. S. S. Maryland by scores of 33 to 0 and 32 to 0.

Displaying the power and machine-like precision that has been lacking in many a Husky team, Washington sent the Willamette Bearcats home on the short end of a 57 to 0 score on the following Saturday.

Mike Hanley scintillated in the game, dazzling the boys with his ball toting tactics. He passed and carried the ball brilliantly and finished up a perfect afternoon with a 35-yard drop kick.

Comes with Ageing!

The Purple Tornado, the term that sports writers chose to call Washington's football team, did not win the Pacific Coast football championship, but the men of Enoch Bagshaw did put up a mighty battle for the honors and kept their good record, established during the new regime. The Huskies attracted national attention, as they have done in the past. Walter Camp, considered as a foremost authority on football, picked a Washington man, George Wilson, on his second All-American eleven. He mentioned other Husky gridders as worthy of praise and the Purple team was a feared one up and down the coast.

Next year Washington will travel to the Middle West for a big intersectional game and the year after Nebraska will come to the Stadium. A new addition has been made to Washington's coaching personnel in Bart Spellman, former Oregon mentor, and the Huskies now have a complete experienced staff.

For a long time Washington has been noted for its baseball teams. The Huskies played in the East and across the Pacific. Wherever Washington's ball tossers played in 1924 they made a good impression. The Purple and Gold tossers just barely lost the Conference championship, but Coach Tubby Graves had a powerful nine, nevertheless, and according to the pre-season dope for the 1925 season the amiable Husky mentor will have an aggregation that will be hard to beat.

Coach Hec Edmundson who guides the destinies of both track and basketball always puts teams on the hardwood court and cinder path that give opponents lots of competition.

Washington's hoop team this year was considered as the potential champion for a time, but the Huskies were edged out of the coveted place later in the season, on their road trips. However, the Purple quintet made a good showing and several of the Huskies were mentioned on all-star teams.

In track the local men were nosed out of the Conference meet, but once again the Washington men displayed power and finished close to the top. The 1925 season promises to be an important one for the popular spring sport here. Plans were made for a large program, including the annual Relay Carnival and the Northwest and Pacific Coast Conference championships, which are to be held in the Stadium.

While the athletes are placing Washington in a prominent position University officials are aiding with a big program which is being carried out.

Washington will have a new baseball field soon, as part of the plan for Washington Field, which will have football, track, and baseball fields, tennis courts and all the facilities to cate for college sports. The shells that college crews fight for honors in are being built at Washington, the football team is taking on opponents from other conferences, the basketball team will play in the Orient again, the State basketball tournament is growing in popularity and a baseball tourney, similar to the hoop play-off, is being worked on.

That in short is what has been done or is being done in the athletic field at the home of the Husky.

Twenty Years After

THE real kick in an annual doesn't develop until a number of years have rolled by. About the time you are beginning to think that the younger generation is going to the bow wows, and that you were never like that when you were young, you'll appreciate what it means to re-visit the old school through the pictures in this annual. Just watch an old grad get out his annual of twenty years ago and look at the pictures. Then you'll understand why "your story in pictures leaves nothing untold."
